HAWKS BREAKS WEST-EAST RECORD

Plans Even Faster Time; Weather Was "Perfect"

NEW YORK, Aug. 14. — Not satisfied with establishing a new trans-continental flight record of twelve hours, twenty-five minutes and three seconds. Captain Frank M. Hawks today announced he would soon attempt to cross the country in "real fast time." The new record is the fastest time ever made by man for such a distance.

Hawks, who arrived here last evening after his record-breaking dash from Los Angeles, which lowered the record of Colonel Chas. A. Lindbergh by more than two hours and twenty minutes, said that after the national air races when better atmospheric conditions and more helpful winds may be possible, he would make a new assault on his own record. He said he was confident he could lower his record spurt from coast to coast.

"At no time during the flight yesterday was my engine opened wide," the air racer said. "Flying conditions were almost perfect. I first had the moon to fly by on leaving Los Angeles and then the sun. I struck a little rain near St. Louis but soon came into clear weather again.

"I made the fastest time in my trip between Albuquerque and Wichita," he said. "A tail wind of thirty-four miles an hour followed me out of Albuquerque and stayed with me for 300 miles or more. I moved along at 250 miles an hour and could have increased that speed."

Hawks left Los Angeles at 6:16:27 a. m., New York time, and arrived at his goal here at 6:41:30 p. m., he halted for fuel at Albuquerque, Wichita and Indianapolis, stopping for about fifteen minutes each time.

At times Hawks flew at more than 10,000 feet.

Hawks said a great deal of his success was based on the splendid service and good time made by crews who refueled his ship at the three stops. He said they were men specially trained for the work and that they handled their jobs to perfection.

As soon as his plane is overhauled he will fly to Chicago to participate in the national air races the later part of this month.

Captain Hawks began his persistent attacks on the transcontinental records in 1929. Twice before he held the west to east record, losing it last Easter Sunday when Colonel Lindbergh made his record flight with Mrs. Lindbergh as his passenger.

Only a week ago he took off from New York and flew west in fourteen hours, fifty minutes and forty three seconds, beating the record for the westward flight made by Captain Roscoe Turner by more than four hours. He now holds both the eastward and westward records.

MARATHON DANCER HELD FOR BURGLARY

DETROIT, Aug. 14.—Emmett McClellan, 22-year-old marathon dancer of Sandusky, O., and Mrs. Lena Farber, wife of a convicted Indianapolis bootlegger, are being held by police today for authorities at Indianapolis where they are under indictment for alleged participation in fifteen burglaries.

About $500 worth of alleged loot was recovered from their room in a fashionable hotel where they were arrested.

McClellan has taken part in marathon dances in various sections of the country. He at one time danced 1,400 consecutive hours. He is a dapper looking youth. Mrs. Farber, his sweetheart, police said, is the wife of Fred Farber, who is now said to be serving a term in the Marion County, Indiana, jail on liquor charges.

CYCLONE HITS NAPLES, ITALY

NAPLES, Italy, Aug. 14.—A violent cyclone struck Naples today, killing three persons and injuring twenty.

The terrified population sought refuge in the churches, praying loudly for cessation of the howling storm. All booths in the market place were smashed and littered about the streets.

The sea pounded fiercely, crashing huge waves upon the shore.

YOUTH LAUNCHES EFFORT TO CAPTURE JUNIOR TRANS-CONTINENTAL RECORD

Eighteen-Year-Old Flyer Would Lower Time Set By Young Goldsborough; Will Make Refueling Stops

WESTFIELD AIRPORT, N. J., Aug. 14.—Edward Schneider, 18-year-old Jersey City boy hopped off from here for Los Angeles at 5:55 o'clock (E. D. T.) in his Cessna 110-horsepower cabin monoplane. He hopes to lower the junior trans-continental record established by the late Frank Goldsborough.

The record east to west is thirty-three hours and twenty-five minutes.

Schneider carried eighty-three gallons of gas but at Wichita he will equip his plane with a gas tank of 200 gallons capacity.

The youthful pilot carried letters from Mayor Walker of New York and Mayor Hague of Jersey City to the Mayor of Los Angeles. From the coast city Schneider planned to make a return flight.

Schneider has flown 275 hours, including a nine-hour flight from Wichita to New York.

Goldsborough, who held both the eastward and westward records for junior flyers, was fatally injured in July near Bennington, Vt., when his plane crashed on a mountainside. Goldsborough's father, Brice Goldsborough, was a noted aviator. He went to his death in the plane Dawn which disappeared on an attempted trans-Atlantic flight.

Young Schneider is a high school graduate. His plane was purchased for him by his father, Emil A. Schneider, a resident of Jersey City.

FESS NAMES HER

A former pupil of Senator Simeon Fess, chairman of G. O. P. national committee, when he was president of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, O., Mrs. Ellis A. Yost, national committeewoman from West Virginia, has been named director of women's activities in the party. She succeeds Mrs. Louise M. Dodson of Iowa, who resigned as a protest against what she believed unfair treatment of her former chief, Claudius H. Huston.

FIFTEENTH GUNMAN SLAYING OCCURS AS GRAND JURY FORMED

Fugitive Killed In Auto; Companion Makes Escape

DETROIT, Aug. 14. — Detroit's fifteenth gangland slaying in forty days occurred here today as preparations were completed for a twenty-three man grand jury investigation into crime conditions and the slaying of Gerald E. Buckley, crime-crusading radio announcer.

The guns of the underworld had been dormant since the murder of the radio idol July 23. They barked again today when Genaro Mangipani, 31, a fugitive from justice from New York, was shot and killed while driving his automobile.

Mangipani, who has a police record, was slain by a gunman who was riding with him in his car. After riddling his victim's back with five bullets, the assassin jumped from the automobile and escaped.

Police were unable to provide a definite motive for the slaying. They said, however, that he was a "petty" racketeer and that his death may have resulted from those activities. He had previously been arrested on burglary and larceny charges in New York City.

Prior to the slaying of Buckley, ten gagnsters had been slain in a two week period. Coupled with four other slayings and today's murder the toll was brought to fifteen.

The twenty-three man grand jury probe, which climaxed Buckley's violent death in the foyer of the LaSalle Hotel, will also delve into the general crime situation here.

COL. HORACE MANN TO FORM POLITICAL MACHINE FOR SOUTH

Lays Foundation For Uprising Among Hoovercrats

WASHNGTON, Aug. 14.—While administration leaders scoffed, and refused to take the movement seriously, Col. Horace H. Mann proceeded grimly today with the organization of a political machine in the South which will be diametrically opposed to the dictates of the White House and the Republican national committee.

The man who led the southern delegates to Kansas City in 1928 to ballot en masse for Herbert Hoover, and then failed to receive the recognition in southern affairs he thought due him, already claims to have laid the foundation for his uprising. With M. O. Dunning and Glenn Skipper, ousted Republican national committeemen from Georgia and Florida, respectively, as his principal lieutenants, Mann has assembled two meetings of disgruntled Dixie Republicans, and plans a third tomorrow in Atlanta. His next step, he says, will be the opening of "an intensive educational campaign," which will include use of the radio, distribution of literature, and even acquisition of newspapers at strategic points.

Great mystery surrounded the last gathering of the Mann clan, said to have been held here yesterday and the day before. First intimation that bolters from the Hoover organization were even in town came through the medium of a lengthy statement from Mann saying the meeting had been concluded and announced a "declaration of principles" thereat adopted. The colonel refused to say specifically who had met with him other than that it was his executive committee, but he asserted every state in the South but Mississippi was represented.

In administration quarters, this fact drew the comment it probably had been a "one-Mann meeting." The men who are in control of the national organization were inclined to belittle Mann's efforts. Mann has stated he will lead an army of "uninstructed and uncontested" delegates to that convention as against the array of Hoover supporters he collected together in 1928.

Mann was careful to state that this organization, "based on principle rather than patronage," is not for or against any candidate for office, but that he no longer regards President Hoover as highly as he once did might be gathered from this additional statement:

"The present depression represents no failure of Republican policies, but a failure promptly and fully to apply Republican policies."

An application for charter is to be filed, possibly tomorrow, at Atlanta for the new political organization. A suite of offices already has been leased in the Georgia city for permanent headquarters.

GUNMEN KILL WIFE OF BOOTLEGGER

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 14.—Gunmen, believed by police to have been attempting to assinate Rocco Perri, wealthy alleged Ontario bootlegger, early today shot to death his common-law wife, Mrs. Bessie Perri, 35, as the couple arrived home from a party.

The slayers hid in a car in the Perri garage and let loose a hail of slugs as Perri and his wife appeared.

EDUCATOR DIES

NEW CANAAN, Conn., Aug. 14.—Funeral services were held here today for Abram D. Wilt, 88, prominent business educator. Interment will be in Dayton, O., his former home.

WON'T COME DOWN

LAMBERT-ST. LOUIS FIELD, Aug. 14. — Swooping as gracefully as a gull the endurance plane "Greater St. Louis," possessor of the world championship record, sailed into its twenty-fifth day of sustained flight at 7:11 this morning. The pilots, Jackson and O'Brine, had been in the air 576 hours at this time.

DECOMPOSED BODY OF MISSING DAYTONIAN FOUND NEAR OSBORN

Suicide Verdict Is Found By Coroner; Had Slashed Neck

The decomposed body of L. J. Wagner, about 60, of 36 E. Hudson Ave., Dayton, who had been missing from his home since July 23, was discovered on the site of Old Osborn Wednesday afternoon by two boys, who were playing amid the ruins of the buildings.

Dr. R. L. Haines, Jamestown, county coroner, who viewed the body, said that in his opinion the man had killed himself, all indications pointing to suicide because of despondency.

An open razor was found tied to the right hand and a handkerchief was bound about the head and in the mouth as a gag. Coroner Haines expressed the belief Wagner had cut his throat and that the handkerchief covering the mouth was designed to prevent an outcry which would attract attention.

The two boys discovered the body near a wrecked building on the old road leading into the former village site from Fairfield. This is near a farm owned formerly by Wagner, who sold it to the Miami Conservancy district when Old Osborn was re-located on a new site.

The youths who made the discovery brought the news to Samuel Todd and William Mellen, Fairfield, who communicated with authorities.

Although the body was badly decomposed, partial identification was made by the teeth, clothing, a watch and an umbrella. Mrs. Wagner completed the identification.

Mrs. Wagner said her husband was accustomed to taking long walks and that she had not seen him since the morning of July 23 when he got up and went for a walk. She believed he had been brooding over the sale of his old farm. It developed that the man had been seen in the neighborhood by a farmer the day after he had disappeared.

Wagner had $6.50 when he left home three weeks ago but only 50 cents was found in his pockets. There was also a large empty bottle in one pocket.

Marks on the neck indicated the razor blade, also identified by Mrs. Wagner as belonging to her husband, had slit the left side of the neck to the bone. The razor was evidently tied to the right hand in order that it would not slip. The blade was opened downward.

The body was taken in charge by Morris and Sons, funeral directors at Osborn.

DOLLAR DAYS ARE BEING HELD

FRIDAY and Saturday will both be Dollar Days in Xenia, it was revealed Thursday in advertisements in this paper.

The double bargain feast is being sponsored by the Xenia Retail Merchants Association and merchants generally are co-operating in the mid-summer sale program.

Bargains based on the "dollar day" idea are offered in all lines of merchandise, and as a result, merchants promise that the buyer's dollar will go much farther during these two days than at any other time.

The bargain feast is being carried over to Saturday so that the usual Saturday shopping crowd will be able to take advantage of the offerings. Merchants expect that the usual preparations for school days will make the sales here especially interesting to parents and are offering many attractive bargain features that will help in buying economies.

DIRIGIBLE BEGINS HOMEWARD FLIGHT; HAS PERFECT START

May Break Eastern Record To Trip To Cardington

ST. HUBERT'S AIRFIELD, Montreal, Aug. 14.—Gaining speed with the break of dawn, the dirigible R-100 passed the island of Anticosti on the gulf of St. Lawrence at 5:15 a. m. today Eastern daylight time.

The airship was speeding towards Newfoundland at the rate of eighty miles per hour, keeping in direct touch with the radio control room here. Anticosti Island is approximately 540 miles from here.

The huge dirigible was favored by a takeoff from the huge mooring mast here so graceful that experienced observers lauded it as the "smoothest in history."

The majestic airship's visit to Canada terminated at 9:26 p. m. Eastern daylight time last night, when she leaped ahead of her scheduled departure by nearly half an hour with no more than a gentle swing and a faint rattle of mooring clamps slipped into the air and pointed her nose upward.

Gray in the reflected light of motor cars and spotlights, the largest and fastest air queen of the world swung eastward and within eight minutes had disappeared in the dark skies. Three of her six engines roared au revoir to Canada.

The thirteen newspapermen and official Canadian government observers aboard as passengers peered down into the faces of thousands of cheering persons. Below them, momentarily, they spied

STAR RECOVERS

Lina Basquette, former dancer and actress, widow of Sam Warner, is recovering from a suicide attempt in Hollywood. She swallowed a draught following a party at her home. Friends say she was grieving for her two-year-old daughter, Lina, who was adopted by Warner's brother, Harry, when the dancer married Peverell Marley, film actor. Miss Basquette has since left Marley in hope of regaining the child, in which she has failed.

FOUR SENATE RACES TO CLAIM INTEREST AT NOVEMBER POLLS

Prohibition Issue to Turn Attention To Ohio Contest

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—Four senatorial battles will engage public interest next November, it appeared today, as a result of Tuesday's primaries.

The quartet of contests will find Senator George W. Norris (R) matched against former Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock (D) in Nebraska; Senator William B. Pine (R) oil millionaire, opposing former Senator Thomas P. Gore, the blind Democrat, in Oklahoma; Senator Roscoe McCulloch (R) against Robert J. Bulkley (D) of Ohio, and Senator Thomas J. Heflip repudiated by his state party fighting for another term against John H. Bankhead, regular Democratic nominee in Alabama.

The Ohio contest will be fought on the prohibition issue, since Bulkley is dripping wet and McCulloch bone dry. In the other states, all the nominees are classed as dry.

The defection of Norris in 1928, when he supported Alfred E. Smith for president, alone will make the Nebraska contest close. Some Republican regulars have declared they will bolt Norris in November but Senator Simeon D. Fess, new Republican national chairman, has declared his organization will support the Nebraska insurgent.

The light vote polled by Norris and by the whole Republican ticket in Nebraska's primary throws some doubt on the outcome. The total vote Tuesday was less than 200,000 far less than the 345,000 total given Hoover in 1928, or even the 274,000 Norris drew when he was re-elected in 1924. On the other hand, Nebraska Democracy has seldom exceeded a strength of 200,000 votes and Hitchcock drew but 148,000 when he was defeated for re-election in 1922. The results of former elections rather show Norris will be re-elected, despite opposition in his own party.

The Oklahoma race may be closer, with Gore likely to be a favorite. For one thing, the Democrats got out a 335,000 vote in Tuesday's primary, one of the largest totals ever recorded for them in Okla-

YOUTH KILLED WHEN PINNED UNDER AUTO

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Aug. 14.—One youth is dead and another is in a critical condition at Union Hospital here today as the result of an automobile crash near Beach City last midnight.

Bruce Wallick, 19, of Dover, died a few hours after the accident. Roland Beaver, 24, also of Dover, driver of the car, is suffering from a possible fractured skull, a fractured hip and serious internal injuries.

THREE EMPLOYES AND CUSTOMER MENACED; GUNMEN OBTAIN $700

Two Hold-Up Men And Look-Out Companion Escape After Robbery In Auto; Southern Ohio Police Search For Trio

Holding three employes and a customer at bay with drawn revolvers, two youthful bandits, unmasked, robbed the National Bank at Waynesville, O., between $600 and $700 in currency about 10:15 o'clock Thursday morning and escaped in an automobile driven by a third companion.

John O. Cartwright, vice president of the bank; L. M. Henderson, cashier; Miss Helen Welch, bookkeeper, and a man who was a customer were in the bank when the two youths entered. Each stood at a different window and Cashier Henderson's attention was first attracted to them when one announced they "mean't business."

The youth standing in front of Mr. Cartwright's window commanded him to "hand over what you've got." The vice president pulled open a drawer and handed over six or seven piles of currency each amounting to $100, whereupon the hold-up pair walked out of the bank and jumped into an auto parked at the corner with a third man at the wheel. The customer who was in the bank at the time was ordered back into a corner while the robbery was in progress.

The bandit car, described as a brown Ford sedan with wire wheels, turned onto North St. at the bank corner and headed west along a road which would eventually bring it to a highway connecting Dayton and Lebanon.

Bank officials notified authorities of Xenia, Dayton and Lebanon and other surrounding cities. Police Chief O. H. Cornwell arranged to have the Cincinnati Pike closely watched for the bandit machine. Sheriff Fulkerth of Warren County hurried to the scene of the holdup.

Officials of the bank were engaged in checking Thursday morning to ascertain definitely the exact amount of the loot but the currency stolen is not thought to have exceeded $700.

The two youths who perpetrated the robbery were about 25 years of age. One passerby, although ignorant of the hold-up, noticed the bandit car drive away.

AVIATOR ADMITS HE PILOTED AIRPLANE THAT BOMBED MINES

Flyer Declares He Was Forced To Fly Bombers

MURPHYSBORO, Ill., Aug. 14.—Authorities today were to investigate the story told by Paul Montgomery local aviator, who confessed to piloting an airplane from which non-union coal fields near Providence, Ky., were bombed last Monday and said he was compelled to do so at the point of a gun.

Montgomery at first denied being involved in the bombing, but later admitted before department of justice and department of commerce officials and Sheriff William Flannigan that he had flown the plane. Nine bombs were dropped as miners were on their way to work, and six exploded. No one was injured, and the damage was slight.

Montgomery, a member of a prominent family, was held for extradition to Kentucky. He said he went to the Murphysboro airport with two girls and another young man for an early morning flight after a party, and was accosted by two men who forced him to fly them over the coal fields under death threat. He refused to identify the two men, saying he feared reprisals.

The aerial bombing came in the midst of a labor war which has been in progress for some time in the mine fields near Providence.

THREE INJURED BY AIR TANK BLAST

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 14.—Three workmen were recovering today from injuries which they received when a compressed air tank in the La Belle steel mill here exploded yesterday.

The injured men are Michael Stancewicz, 35, and Dan Murovich, 34, both of Pittsburgh, and Clarence J. Bachman 22, of Mt. Washington. The two local men were seriously burned about the hands and face as they attempted to extinguish the fire which followed the blast. Bachman received lacerations on the hands and arms.

DEMOCRATS GATHER TO DISCUSS COMING CAMPAIGN IN STATE

Republicans Plan To Confer Later; Set Convention Date

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 15.—Plans for the Democratic fall campaign in Ohio will be considered at a conference here this afternoon.

The conferees, including state nominees chosen at Tuesday's primaries, and other leaders of that party, will meet at Democratic state headquarters.

Nominees on the Republican state ticket will confer here sometime after Governor Myers Y. Cooper returns from Washington, D. C., where he is meeting with President Hoover and governors of other states in an effort to map out a program of relief for farmers in the drought-stricken states.

Indications today were that the Democratic state convention may be held here on Tuesday, August 26. A majority of the Democratic nominees prefer this date, it was stated. The Republican convention may be held about the same time. The state platforms of the two parties will be adopted at these conventions.

Strong pressure is being brought to bear upon Democratic leaders seeking adoption of a wet plank in the Democratic platform, in view of the nomination of former Congressman Robert J. Bulkley, Cleveland, for United States senator.

Henry G. Brunner, Mansfield, is scheduled to be re-elected for another two-year term as chairman of the Democratic state executive committee. He has held this office during the past three years, following the resignation of Thomas Dye, Urbana, as head of this committee.

Some opposition has developed to the retention of Arthur A. Nixon, Dayton, as chairman of the Republican state executive committee. A number of Republicans are urging that Charles R. Frederickson, Coshocton manufacturer, who managed Governor Cooper's gubernatorial campaign in 1926, be placed again at the head of this committee.

SEVEN PRISONERS FLEE COUNTY JAIL

GREENVILLE, O., Aug. 14.—Search for seven prisoners who escaped from the county jail here through a basement window Wednesday was continued today by a posse headed by Sheriff Samuel MacBride.

The men now enjoying a period of freedom are Arthur Ely, 25, of Union City; Otto Davis, 20; William Gibson, 18, and Donald Driner, 17, all of Muncie, Indiana; D. R. Rench, 19, and K. E. Rench, 18, cousins; and Arthur Horner, 20. All of the escaped prisoners were awaiting transfer to either the Ohio Reformatory at Mansfield or the Ohio State Penitentiary, at Columbus, on theft charges.

The prisoners gained their freedom by prying a bar loose in the bull pen and then loosening another bar in a basement window. Four other men who were in the bull pen at the time refused to participate in the wholesale delivery.

FARMER KILLS TWO MEN CAUGHT STEALING POTATOES; IS HELD

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 14.—Lester Coy, 23-year-old Toledo farmer, shot and killed two unidentified workmen today as they fled from his potato patch with two dollars worth of potatoes they had allegedly dug on Coy's property.

Coy called the sheriff's office in Toledo after the slayings and then went to bed and to sleep, according to police. He is at liberty pending an inquest.

One of the dead men was about 19 years old and apparently undernourished, authorities said. The second man was about 45 years old. Both were dressed in overalls.

Coy told deputies that during the past six months thieves have dug $200 worth of potatoes from his farm just east of the Toledo city limits.

When Coy discovered the men in his patch this morning, he opened fire with a shotgun. Both were killed.

ENDURANCE RECORD-CARRIES MAN TWO MILES

CLEVELAND, Aug. 14.—Another record for a new type of endurance contests was added to the already heavy list here today by one Paul Poltarec, a core maker, who yesterday had the pleasure of dumping his friend, Rudolf Ravas, a carpenter, into Lake Erie after carrying him two miles on his back.

Poltarec, incidently, won a bet of twenty-five cents. It was for the bet that he declared, in a moment of boastfulness, that he could carry Ravas for the two miles without dropping him. The privilege of tosssing Ravas into the lake at the end of the trip was decided upon as an added reward.

The men, who had announced their pending contest in the afternoon papers yesterday, were followed by more than 200 persons as the "ride" got under way.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY XENIA KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS HERE

Henry Walsh Xenia, was elected grand knight of Xenia Council, No. 1801, Knights of Columbus at an election and installation of officers held jointly at the club rooms here Tuesday evening.

J. Linn Cochran, Dayton, district deputy who supervised the ceremonies and Charles J. Brennan, Dayton, former district deputy, both addressed the Xenia Knights and Joseph Abel Dayton, recited. Members of the Dayton degree team attended the meeting.

Other officers elected were: William Baker, Yellow Springs, deputy grand knight; T. J. Canning, chancellor; Martin Berry, warden; Charles Weber, advocate; J. T. Hibbert, trustee; James McCurran, treasurer; Lawrence Whittington, recorder; Bryan Monahan, inside guard and William Rachford, outside guard.

Refreshments were served after the election.

WOMAN IS SUDDENLY CLAIMED BY DEATH

Suffering a cerebral hemorrhage while on her way home in Clifton, Mrs. Anna Elizabeth Reed, 67, was found dead on the sidewalk, near her home Wednesday night at 10:30 o'clock. Mrs. Reed had only been dead a few minutes when found by Adam Brewer, also of Clifton. Dr. J. H. Harris, who was called, said death had been instantaneous.

Mrs. Reed was born in Kentucky but had spent the greater part of her life in Clifton. Her husband, William, preceded her in death several years. She was a member of the Methodist Church in Clifton. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Aden Barlow, Cedarville and three sons, Lester and Stanley Reed, Cedarville and Arthur Reed, Clifton. Two sisters, Mrs. Stephen Whalen and Mrs. Louis Boolman, both of Springfield, and nine grandchildren survive.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home in Clifton and burial will be made in the Clifton Cemetery.

"A WONDERFUL HELP TO ME"

Read What Mrs. Arnold Says About Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Dothan, Ala.—"What a wonderful help Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been to me. I was so nervous and rundown I couldn't be up half the time. When I had taken one bottle of Vegetable Compound I could tell I felt better, so I took seven bottles and I recommend it highly. It helped my nerves and keeps me strong to do my housework and wait on four little children. I hope some other suffering woman will try it." —Mrs. Porter L. Arnold, 1013 S. St. Andrews St., Dothan, Alabama.

W. C. T. U. UNION ELECTS OFFICERS

Election of officers was held Wednesday afternoon when members of McClelland W. C. T. U. met at the home of Mrs. J. S. Van Eaton, Van Eaton Road. The election resulted as follows: president-Mrs. William Weiss; vice president, Mrs. Clint Manor; recording secretary, Miss Myrtle Barnett; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Walter Hess; treasurer, Mrs. R. L. Gowdy and parliamentarian, Mrs. J. S. Van Eaton.

The regular business meeting was held and took the place of a program. Wednesday's meeting marked the close of the point contest with the side captained by Miss Myrtle Barnett winning. The losing side, captained by Mrs. William Weiss, will entertain the winners, the time and place to be announced later.

Thirty women were present at the meeting Wednesday afternoon and following the business meeting a refreshment course was served by Mrs. Van Eaton, assisted by Mrs. William Butcher and Mrs. James Hollingshead.

HERR-SHIPLEY NUPTIALS PERFORMED AT PARSONAGE

In a quiet ceremony performed at the parsonage of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, W. Market St., with the Rev. W. N. Shank officiating, Miss Margaret Herr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Herr, W. Third St. became the bride of Mr. Herbert Shipley, Lancaster, O., Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Shipley was attired in a suit of maize satin with accessories in a harmonizing shade. She carried an arm bouquet of Bernet roses and orchid scabiosa. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Shain, Cincinnati, brother-in-law and sister of the bride. Mrs. Shain wore a navy blue crepe suit with hat and footwear of the same shade and carried Killarney roses.

After a two weeks' trip through the East Mr. and Mrs. Shipley will be at home at 317 S. Columbus St., Lancaster, where Mr. Shipley is employed in an official capacity by the Hocking Glass Co., and is also conductor of the Rainbow Revelers Orchestra.

BRIDE-ELECT HONORED AT PARTY WEDNESDAY

Mrs. John Finlay and Miss Mary Beals entertained at the home of the former on S. Galloway St., Wednesday afternoon in honor of their sister, Miss Ethel Beals, bride-elect of Mr. Dwight Bennett. The party was in the nature of a miscellaneous shower and Miss Beals was "showered" with a lovely array of gifts.

Thirty-five guests were entertained during the afternoon. Mrs. John Ray was winner in a contest and she presented her prize to the guest of honor. Large baskets of gladioli, carrying out a color scheme of pink and white, were used about the rooms of the Finlay home. Late in the afternoon a salad course was served by the hostesses.

Miss Beals, whose marriage to Mr. Bennett will be an event of next week, will again be honored Friday evening when members of her Sunday School class entertain at the home of the teacher, Mrs. George Street, E. Third St.

SMARTLY DRESSED PARISIENNES INDICATE NEW TREND IN FASHIONS

THROUGH THE MICROPHONE

BY BROADCASTER

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—The hospital of the air, as Tom Noonan's Sunday afternoon broadcasting from the Chinatown Mission is sometimes called, has completed its winter's work. Now the summer lull gives him a chance to tally the results in the numbers of wheel chairs, crutches, braces, radios, phonographs and other things which have been distributed over the radio to needy cripples, shut-ins and others.

The necessary articles are supplied by members of Tom's radio audience who listen-in to the services in the hope that they may be able to help some less fortunate person. This audience stretches out from the Rescue Society at 5 and 7 Doyers St., in New York and along the Atlantic coast from Boston to Baltimore through a special five-station hook-up. The services which are conducted by the "Bishop of Chinatown," are non-denominational in every respect and requests and gifts alike are all considered without respect to race, creed or color.

The check-up for the season from September to May shows the following approximate totals: wheelchairs, 34; crutches, 38 pairs; leg braces and artificial limbs, 30; radios, 81; phonographs, 68; and ear phones, 640. In addition, there have been scores of special gifts of bicycles, baby carriages, canes, pianos, cuckoo clocks, ear-trumpets, pets, toys and clothing.

No important request is sent out as an appeal to the radio audience until it has been investigated by a competent and reliable authority. When medical assistance is required, the case is usually referred to a local institution and where treatment is expensive, gifts of money are often made. In several cases where blood transfusions, have been necessary, donors have volunteered to give their blood without cost. In almost every case investigated, the requests have come from persons in real need.

Not all of the appeals which come in to the Chinatown Rescue Mission are for material things. Last winter, one hymn was sung for a young man who was spending his last week in the death house at Sing Sing, and more than one prayer has been said to comfort the widows of police and firemen who had lost their lives on duty. There have been many emergency pleas to broadcast the name of some member of a family who had become estranged or lost touch, to return because a father or mother was dying, or was dead. And now and then a message would come from a child pleading for the return of a deserting parent.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14—The radio industry owes its existence to the new economic theory which recognizes the workman as the purchaser of goods as well as their producer, in the opinion of H. B. Richmond, president of the Radio Manufacturers Association.

Speaking over the Columbia Broadcasting System recently, Richmond said the radio industry in turn "has contributed much to our national prosperity. In a decade, the radio broadcast industry has grown in volume from nothing to a billion dollars a year."

"The Influence of Radio on Prosperity" was the topic discussed by the industrial leader, who faced the microphone in Columbia's new station, WPG, at Atlantic City. His talk was one of the weekly series on Romance of American Industry arranged in co-operation with the Washington branch of the American Trade Association Executives.

Richmond described the immensity of the radio business, saying: "In this decade, the annual sale of radio products has leaped to a figure at least twice that of all sales of sporting goods, and yet the demand for athletic equipment dates back at least to the days of the ancient Greeks and Romans."

"Following the war," he said, "there appeared to be a decline in the interest of music, both in the part of individual participants and in concert attendance. We were being criticized as a materialistic people. There is today a nation-wide awakening. People who have never before felt the beauty of music are responding. Can there be any question as to the important part the national distribution by radio of the concerts of our greatest orchestras or the songs by the great artists has had in this growing consciousness of the importance of music in our lives?

"There can be no quetsion but that radio has replaced the special editions of newspapers as the quickest medium of broadcasting the results of special events. It is equally certain that radio broadcasting is a most important factor in making us news-conscious and thereby exciting a desire to read the full story in the press.

"A ten-minute news summary by radio seldom covers over 1,000 words. On this basis, and with most liberal allowances for headings, it would take at least an hour to present the material of a single solid page of a metropolitan daily. No, the radio is a salesman for the newspaper, rather than its competitor."

NEW YORK, Aug. 14—Representatives of the broadcasting industry and educators have made plans to co-operate for the purpose of encouraging and fostering educational broadcasting in this country, according to Levering Tyson, author of "Education Tunes In: A Study of Radio Broadcasting in Adult Education," published by the American Association for Adult Education. The study is based upon a six months' survey of the possibilities of radio in adult education, made by Tyson for the Association with the co-operation of well-known educators, representatives of the radio industry and the Advisory Committee on Education by Radio appointment by the secretary of the interior.

According to the report, representatives of the broadcasting industry have assured educators that broadcasting facilities will be made available as soon as eductors devise programs that are educationally sound and at the same time adapted to the peculiar demands of broadcasting.

"One of the greatest obstacles to the development of educational broadcasting in the past," the report states, "has been the educators' insistence upon the retention of certain practices that have become traditional in our educational system. They have not realized that a lecture which is perfectly adapted to the class room may be useless for radio purposes. A class assembled before a teacher is compelled to listen to him for the length of the class period—forty, fifty or sixty minutes, as the case may be. But radio audiences is under no such compulsion."

A great deal of broadcasting that can be classified as educational is now being done in the United States. With the co-operation of persons interested in adult education in various parts of the country, Tyson has collected data which show that, over a period of four months in 1929, there were broadcast 1,169 programs which had definitely educational significance. Many of these programs were sent out by stations owned and operated by state universities and other educational institutions. Arranged in order of their popularity the list of subjects on which the programs were based is: health, home economics, English, music, history, religion, business, child training, sociology and community advancement science, agriculture, drama, political science, sport news, languages, fine arts and library and museum service.

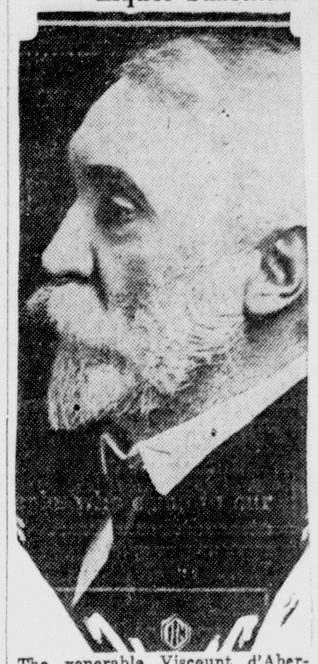
"The listening public is not interested in a "course," Tyson declares. "It wants to listen to lectures or talks that are sound in subject matter, spiritually, artistically or intellectually helpful and stimulating and attractively presented. The American public will eventually want to see established, educators believe, some constant source of supply of educational broadcasting material, and this the educational world of America should provide. Educational, however, will never be demanded at the expense of entertainment and emotional thrill; broadcasters need not worry about that. As time goes on there will probably be an increasing demand for such features as broadcasting of a presidential inauguration and of other events of general public interest. These broadcasts are valuable, but they should not be allowed to obscure the need for educational programs that possess academic soundness and a reasonable degree of continuity.

"Fields such as science, agriculture, home economics, parental education, nature lore, travel, public health and safety, to mention only a few of them, offer almost unlimited possibilities for educational broadcasting."

A chapter of the report is devoted to educational broadcasting in Europe. Great Britain, Denmark, Austria and Germany have made definite provision for it in their national broadcasting programs. Tyson advocates a study of European methods for the purpose of applying them, wherever feasible, to conditions in the United States.

Until recently there has been no central agency to develop educational broadcasting. Within recent weeks, however, the National Advisory Council on Radio in Education has been organized with this particular object in view. Tyson has been appointed director of the council. The council will make plans for and encourage educational broadcasting and act as a clearing house for information.

British Peer Seeks Liquor Substitute



The venerable Viscount d'Abernon, chairman of the wartime Liquor Control Board, has startled liquor interests by declaring that the world greatly needs a substitute for alcohol as a beverage. "Alcohol does badly what it sets out to do," is the explanation given by Lord d'Abernon of his stand.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE DAY OF JUDGMENT—Many will say to men in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity.—Matthew 7:22, 23.

MISSIONARIES IN CHINA

According to reports coming out of China, an American missionary, who had spent more than 35 years attempting to convert Chinese to Christianity, was stabbed to death in the recent sacking of Changsha by the socalled "Communist" army. All the other Americans in Changsha had been evacuated. This aged missionary, who pinned his hope to the Chinese friends he had made in his long residence in the district, chose to stay. There are two ways of looking at such a decision. One is that he who prays and runs away may live to pray another day. The other points to a martyr's crown.

American diplomatic and naval officers have no authority to compel Americans in the interior of China to come within range of their gunboats; but as gunboats can't climb hills or navigate paddy fields, anyone who wants protection must come to them. All the government in Washington and its agents in China can do is to warn Americans in the interior of their danger and urge them to come out to where they can be covered by American guns. The government has done that repeatedly during the present disorders.

The authorities in Nanking, who have lost practically all of the country north of the Yangtsze to the Yen-Feng faction and are now assailed in the rear by a proletarian revolution, confess their inability to afford protection to foreigners in the area overrun by the "Communists." There is only one thing for the foreigners, if they wish to save their lives, to do—and that is to get out, at least temporarily. One can see the point of view of the missionary who remained in Changsha to be stabbed to death; but it is doubtful that in China a Christian church will spring from the blood of such martyrs. The very friends he depnded on were proscribed and went down in the first slaughter by the sans culottes who took the city. Well intentioned and loyal as their native friends may be, at a moment like this the bodily salvation of foreign missionaries, if not their spiritual salvation, will be found more likely under the guns of their warships than in the friendship of those who themselves are marked by the enemy for death.

TRAGIC REMINDER

The applause that followed the recent pronouncement of the governors of seven southern states against lynching had hardly ceased echoing around the country before a mob stormed a county jail in northern Indiana, took from the authorities two Negro prisoners and summarily hanged them. This is a tragic reminder that the primitive urge to take the law into one's own hands knows no Mason and Dixon line. Only the District of Columbia and South Dakota, New Jersey and the six New England states are shown by the records to have been free of lynchings between 1889 and 1928.

The crimes to which the police claim the victims of the Indiana mob confessed are the most revolting on the calendar. The Negroes shot and killed a young man and then assaulted his girl companion. There can be no pity for them, if they were guilty; but there is pity for a community that lets its passions run as wild as theirs. An electric chair awaits murderers in Indiana. The accused were already in the hands of the law ; and a jury chosen from the same element that composed the mob would have sent them to a legal death, without compunction.

Another community has added a collective crime to an individual crime by itself overriding the law and stigmatizing it as inadequate. Complete submission to the orderly process of the law in this country is a distant goal, which will be reached only by slow and persistent steps. One of these is to visit the penalty for murder on those who commit it collectively, as inexorably as on those who commit it one by one.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

CAN YOU BE QUIET?

Most of man's troubles, said the philosopher Pascal, come from his inability to be still. Can you rest? Relax? Be quiet? Many cannot. Many men find they are too restless to sit down, to spend a week-end at a quiet place, too restless to put in an evening at home reading or thinking. They must have ceaseless activity. A kind of substitute for relaxation comes in constant movement. Some like to drive an automobile at high speed, not because there is any hurry but because there is a sort of relief to the unhappy tenseness of the nerves in rapid movement. If you are one of the victims of this inability to be still you ought to take yourself in hand. Perhaps you ought to have a thorough physical examination by a good doctor. Perhaps you ought to consult the best nerve specialist you know. You may be sure there is something the matter with you if you are keyed up to the point you cannot rest and relax in normal, natural fashion. The bowstring must not be always tight. The bow must be unstrung. If you can not do it there is something wrong in your manner of living.

MISJUDGING THE FARMER

A Brooklyn preacher, back from a trip through the middle west, says the farmer is better off than ever before. He says he saw few farmers who did not have radios and motor cars.

That's too light a judgment of the farmer. The preacher didn't look far enough and long enough. In the first place there are thousands of farmers who do not have radios and automobiles. In the second place what what if they do have radios and cars? What does it mean? Radios are cheap. So are cars. A man, by small installment paying, may have both. Surely the farmer deserves both. He is cut off from human contact to a greater degree than other men. And the possession of these things does not mean he is prosperous. He may be poor, doing badly, getting underpaid for his product and over-changed for his purchases and still have a few comforts that he has bought by long sacrifice. Nobody can judge the farmer so quickly and say that he is well off.

HAPPY DAYS

It is a happy thought of an admirer of the great fairy tale writer, Hans Anderson, to give to the birth-place of the author an Andersen memorial hall. In the town of Odense, Denmark, the hall stands next to the birth-place of the men whose imagination peopled a world of fairy folks for children. It is pleasant now and then to note that men who never rattled a sword or led a heroic cause are remembered for the good they did and the happiness they brought.

SELFISH DRIVING

Let's not think we are good automobile drivers just because we watch out for ourselves and our passengers with the geratest care. The policy of concentrating on our own car and our own driving is not a good one, though it sounds reasonable. The good driver watches out for the other fellow also. There's no such thing as being independent in motor driving.

Ex-Kaiser's Church

"In the Question Box appearing in our Daily Northwestern, you made the erroneous statement that the ex-kaiser is a member of the Lutheran church, which has been the state church of Prussia for many years.

"The ex-kaiser was a member of the 'Reformed church.' He endeavored to force a church union in Prussia, forcing Lutherans and Reformed to be one church body called 'The Prussian Union,' which union was the Prussian state church."

WAS THERE ever such a person as "Mother Goose"?

In 1860 a story was started to the effect that "Mother Goose" was a Boston woman; and she was later identified as Elizabeth Goose, widow of Isaac Vergoose, or Goose, and the mother-in-law of Thomas Fleet, a Boston printer, who issued a collection of the Mother Goose Melodies in 1719. However, it is now conceded that "Mother Goose" belongs to French folklore and not to English tradition. There is no reason to think that "Mother Goose" was a term used in English literature until it was translated from the French equivalent, "Mere l'Oye."

Of Indian Origin

What was the origin of the word caucus?

The word caucus was first used in Boston in the early part of the eighteenth century as the name of a political club, the "Caucus" or the "Caucus club," where public questions were discussed and arrangements made for local elections. The word is said to have been derived from an Indan word, kaw-kaw-was, meaning to talk.

Four-Leafed Clover

Why is it considered good luck to find a four-leafed clover?

America's Bread Basket

What states produce the bulk of the wheat in the United States?

Kansas, North Dakota, Montana, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Washington, South Dakota, Idaho and Illinois lead the states in the production of wheat and in the order named. Kansas produced 177,833,000 bushels in 1928, according to the department of agriculture.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK—Old Dave Belasco addressed the congregation recently, his text being "The Talkies." In the course of his remarks he referred to them as the "Squawkies." He has since been credited with originating the term and so far as I've been able to learn has not taken the trouble to deny it.

It's a very small thing and really doesn't make any difference; but the term "Squawkies" didn't originate with Belasco.

David is not an originator. Like Confucius, he merely transmits.

It was for the Belascos of the world that quotation marks were devised.

ANCIENT DAVID

Years ago when Belasco and the elder DeMille were producing in partnership, in the course of a rehearsal DeMille voiced objection to a line in the play. The author spoke up:

"Why, Mr. DeMille," he said, "that's not my line. The Ancient David said that.'

"Yeah," said DeMille, disgustedly, "that sounds like Belasco!"

HOBSON'S HASH

The average theatrical producer makes the mistake of trying to force on the public something he thinks the public should swallow.

The procedure, in its conception, is like that of the eating house proprietor in a wild little border-town out West. In some fashion, never explained, the proprietor obtained a Sherry-Netherland menu which he went to the trouble of daily reproducing, in type. The hungry visitor scanning the array of delectable ailments would call for some fluffy dish, whereupon the proprietor, spinning his six-shooter on the forefinger of his right hand, would drawl:

"Th, hash is pretty good today, stranger!"

QUIZ

"On the right," said the sight seeing bus barker, "we have the Rockefeller home."

"The John D. Rockefeller home?" queried the out-of-town passenger.

"No," said the barker, the Penrcy Rockefeller home."

"No," said the barker, "Harold Vanderbilt's."

The Pyne home was encountered next.

"Moses Taylor Pyne, eh?" said the man from the hinterland.

And only a few minutes thereafter the barker cried aloud:

The out-of-town man turned to his neighbor with a grin:

"YOU ask him, he said.

FIGURES DO NOT LIE

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Senator Coleman L. Blease of South Carolina, who wants to succeed himself in Washington, is meeting with a good bit of opposition, from what I hear, for the Democratic renomination, which everyone recognizes as an ironclad guarantee of election in his state.

Why he is being fought, it seems to me, is easy enough to understand.

Not in years, if ever, has the country had "Coley" Blease's equal at getting up in the senate and, in ringing tones and the plainest terms, describing spades so that no one possibly can mistake them for anything but spades.

This is considered very poor taste, by folk who make a practice of referring even to a scoopshovel as a silver teaspoon.

Smug respectability frequently does things that it will not admit —or even discuss tolerantly.

Senator Blease insists on admitting whatever he knows is going on all around him—and talking about it—as, for example, drinking, under prohibition; an occasional lynching—subjects which most of his associates think ought to be ignored entirely or mentioned only in whispers.

Urged to "shush," he simply throws off all restraint and sometimes almost overdoes matters, in an obvious effort to puncture affectation and conventionality.

Illustratively, he practically defends lynch law in certain circumstances.

It sounds like sixty, undeniably.

Nevertheless, I have my doubts if the South Carolina solon is more bloodthirsty than various other statesmen, who, maybe, view necktie parties, for an especial class of offenses, much as he does, but are too discreet to say so.

In short, his candor appears to me to be Senator Blease's outstanding characteristic, rather than any exceptional streak of savagery in him. In fact, somewhat to the contrary, one of the principal complaints against him, as governor of the Palmetto commonwealth, was that he granted entirely too many pardons.

"Coley" unquestionably does derive a great deal of satisfaction from the laceration of standardized sensibilities.

He has a genuine gift for irreverent utterances—not religiously irreverent; he inclines to the fundamentalistic in that respect—but politically so. His language is picturesque, to express it displomatically. As soon as he takes the senate floor, all hands prepare to be shocked—and "Coley" seldom disappoints them.

I believe he is the ablest debunker in his house of congress.

Senator Pat Harrison can make funnier speeches and Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway is wittier in debate, but neither of them can say, in effect, "Aw! blah!" with the telling effect than Senator Blease can.

That "Coley" must have a fine crop of enemies is perfectly comprehensible.

If he is as indifferent to his home voters' likes and dislikes as he is of the senate's, the wonder is that he is the most-elected politician ever produced by South Carolina—as his record indicates.

To be sure, his detractors assert that this is not the case—that his appeal chiefly is to the rabble.

If so, how does it happen that he hails from so dry a state?—and yet has said more contemptuous things concerning prohibition than any half dozen senators, from wet states, put together?

My personal impression is that he is as independent as any Democrat who ever wore a toga.

He refuses to abide by orders from his own party caucus, anyway.

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

SOMETHING'S WRONG!

If someone had given the Ants a pound of sugar for a feast, they could have been no more excited than at Peter's offer to help them carry their burdens. For one awful moment Peter fancied he was going to be smothered. With hoarse cries the Ants again pressed 'round him. Then Peter saw the Ants had turned their backs and were bending and snatching at the white bundles that they had carefully laid on the ground beside them. A number of Ants on the outer edge of the crowd scuttled off, as if for dear life, with their white bundles. More stood their ground, glared at Peter. Peter was puzzled. What in the world had he said or done. Their manner toward him had changed in the twinkling of an eye. It had been so friendly. No one would have thought he was indeed an enemy.

"What can the matter be?" asked, Peter, of his companion. "Are your relatives mad or scared?" But before Ant could answer, the fat Queen took command of the situation. This time she spoke directly to the Ant who had brought Peter.

"Well, Busy, what does this mean? What have you to say for your friend now? Do you approve of what he has just said? Is he honest? Can he be trusted? Does he really wish to help us, or is he trying to worm his way into our good graces, that he may harm us? His idea may be good or it may be bad. You brought him here, Busy! You ought to know what his intentions are. Come on, Busy, speak up! We'll take your word for it."

Next: "Busy Passes Judgment."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

Veal Loaf
Potato Chips Tomato Jelly Salad
Whole Wheat Rolls Butter
Sliced Peaches on Vanilla Ice Cream
Iced Tea Cup Cakes

Here is an easy Sunday dinner to prepare. The veal loaf could be made on Saturday and either reheated or served cold on Sunday If you do not care for potato chips, cook potatoes in their skins on Saturday, then peel, and make a white sauce to cream them in. The menu will serve four.

Today's Recipes

Tomato Jelly Salad—One cup tomato juice, one cup water, one package lemon gelatin. Mix tomato juice and water and bring to the boiling point. Add lemon gelatin and stir until dissolved. Pour into molds to harden. Turn out jelly on lettuce and garnish with mayonnaise.

Suggestions

Meat Loaf

A good standard recipe for meat loaf is capable of many variations. One may use all beef, or half beef and valf veal or fresh pork. Or a little of the beef may be left out and ground salt pork added The liquid may be water, meat stock, milk or tomato juice. Or one may use the water in which vegetables were cooked for it.

Seasonings are an important ingredient in the meat loaf, for to be tasty it should have a definite flavor. Enough salt is an absolute necessity. In general one teaspoon to a pound of meat is enough, but more is sometimes added. Pepper, either black, white or cayenne, is used with discretion, while paprika, mace, a dash of allspice, catsup, chili sauce, Worcestershire, etc., used in moderation, will always give a "snap" to the loaf.

Sometimes, to this same standard recipe, we may substitute bread crumbs or cracker crumbs, or one of the packaged cereals.

Some new amusing paper ribbons for wrapping gifts come in a box with a slit, so the ribbon may be pulled out easily. We always have birthday presents or bridge prizes, etc., to wrap, so this new form should prove helpful. Some of the designs are done in gold or silver, as well as colors.

Have you a set of decorative skewers? If not, do get some. They are inexpensive and make food look more appetizing and "French-y." Leftover meats may be served en brochette with mushrooms and bacon rolled in egg and crumbs and browned.

The Basque linens being shown in the shops are most colorful and different. They fit in perfectly for the porch meal, or for a supper on the lawn, or for a breakfast or informal lunch. When using them set the table with plain china and get the full decorative note of the colored cloths.

These warm days are the ideal time to get recipe files up to date. It may be too hot to sew, but clipping recipes and pasting them on cards is just enough occupation to keep one from complaining about the weather.

Dr. Says Meat Eating Is Natural

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The body is made of certain materials, and these materials are constantly being torn down. The animal body differs from any man-made machine in this: that along with doing its work it replaces its worn-out parts.

One of the structures that must be replaced is protein, one is salt and one is water. Yet many diet faddists stress meat, salt and water as things to be avoided in the diet.

Protein, of course, can be obtained from vegetable sources. Beans, peas, nuts, wheat flour, all contain protein that can be utilized by the body. But in spite of all the enthusiastic preachments to the contrary, they are a wasteful form of obtaining protein. Man was designed by nature to be a meat eating animal and he never was built for vegetarian purposes. His intestine is short, while natural vegetable eating animals, such as the horse and cow, have enormously long intestines. His digestive glands are especially designed for digesting meat. And again, despite all the contrary arguments, meat does him no harm.

In fact, it is probable that lack of meat gives rise to several diseases. I know that many vegetarians live healthily on their strict diet, but most of them break over enough to eat eggs and drink milk. And as old Clemenceau, who besides being a statesman was a physician, is reported to have said:

"To be a vegetarian! How silly! When you even drink a glass of water you annihilate a million animals."

How much protein does the body require a day? There has been a great deal of scientific research on this topic, and there is much disagreement even among the best physiologists.

The lowest figure was that proposed by Professor Chittenden of Yale. He worked with a group of volunteers, who were all healthy young male athletes. He reduced the amount of protein they took lower and lower day by day. He found they could live healthily and feel well on 60 grams or about two cunces of protein a day. This included vegetable as well as animal protein. If he got lower than that they began to lose weight and strength. So he concluded that was the amount of tissue loss that occurred daily and had to be replaced.

Other investigators have, however, thought 100 or 150 grams was safer. I agree with them, and believe that over long periods of time this is the safest figure.

In rough amounts this represents an egg, a piece of meat and a glass of milk a day.

Trust Youngsters To Follow

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

What's the matter with parents? Why can't they trust their children?

Surely if the training they have been giving them for 17 or 18 years doesn't "take," it never will. If correct inhibitions and restraints are not incorporated in that length of time, the case is hopeless and experience will take a strong and much harsher hand than that of said parents to teach them right from wrong.

You can't keep your boy and girl straight by denying them the companionship of young people of their own age. If they can't meet such friends openly where you can oversee the activities, they will do so on the sly—which, you must admit, is far worse for their morals.

You can't make them choose nice friends by constant yammering at them. They—like you at their age—will not always use good judgment in this respect. They may occasionally be fascinated by some undesirable person or persons, but ten to one, the allurement won't last. And the safest way to guard them even then, is to allow such persons to come to your home where they can see what your standards are and unconsciously—or consciously—compare them with their own.

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am a girl 17 years of age. I have been 'held down,' so to speak, all my life. I don't, however, feel hard toward my parents, for I feel that they were right, to some extent.

"But now I feel that I am old enough to judge for myself, as I am rather reserved and considered a 'quiet, sensible girl' by older people.

"My father thinks that I shouldn't be seen with my companions until I have known them for quite awhile. I think I should know a person pretty well after being in college with them for two months and seeing them every day. My parents do not think so.

"My father doesn't want me to have dates at night at all. I know that I can trust a few boys here, as I have known them and they are all right. They have a good reputation in town. Daddy doesn't want me to go with them. I am going away to school in the fall. My parents fear for my selection of friends. I am a Christian girl and like the same kind of friends. How can I make my father trust me? Please advise me what I should do. "Undecided S"

I hardly know how you can inspire trust in such doubting parents if 17 years of leading an upright life and choosing wise friends don't do it, dear. You would think your parents would know the daughter well enough to KNOW you would choose nice friends and would do nothing wrong. You can only tell them to trust the results of their upright training.

I am glad you are going away to college. Nothing is so broadening to a young person, especially one who has been "held down," even ever so lovingly, as getting out and adjusting oneself to a strange environment.

BROKEN-HEARTED ANNE

BROKEN-HEARTED: If the boy friends "step out on you, the best thing to do is—not to speak to the other girl as you wanted to, Anne—but to "step out" yourself. I know such experiences are heart breaking, but what can one do? You only look ridiculous by going into jealous rages, and while a man may feel a bit flattered that he has such "power over wimmen," he seldom returns to his allegiance because of it. He tries the same stunt with his next girl. Weeping and losing sleep and food never helps, either, so brace up, make up your minds that almost every girl has to go through this experience, and that you will bear it with fortitude, and accept the first attractive date that comes. You may not enjoy it but at least you can't pine while you are trying to give a boy a good time—as you should do if you accept his date.

Then, by and by, you'll find your broken heart is knitting together, and finally, you'll be surprised to find it as good as new. Don't say I'm wrong, now. Try it.

And, moreover, these tactics are much more likely to bring the boy friend to time.

Beautifying Methods, Improving

By GLADYS GLAD

IT IS SURPRISING to note the rapid strides taken in the advancement of beauty culture within the last ten years. Old methods and instruments are being constantly discarded and newer and more efficient ones substituted.

One of the newest developments in hair-waving machines and one that is being constantly improved upon is the "cool" hair-waving apparatus. It is now used in innumerable beauty shops, and with it has come the "cool face-peel." This process consists of sitting under a cool glow of light for a period of a few minutes for three or four days. And at the end of that time the old, dirty skin is gone.

In the business of electrolysis great advancements are being made. One operator I know of has an invention in needles that will render impossble the failure of electrolysis to remove hair permanently. I have seen these needles do their work, and I have known of cases where the hair has not returned, although years have passed since it was taken out. And the process is painless. One hundred hairs are removed at one sitting. But you'd be surprised at the small area of skin that that covers.

From France, within the last two years, has come a portable hair-waving apparatus. It is small enough to be put into a shoe box. But the charges for the use of this machine are far more exorbitant than the fee charged to have the same work done on the big machines that are installed in all beauty shops.

It is encouraging to know that inventive minds are at work on all the problems of beauty culture; that not all the creative energy is going into the production of new designs for the same old powders creams and lotions. For beauty culture is of as much importance and deservng of as much study as any of the other sciences.

H. E. W.: Exercise your arms and legs vigorously every day to prevent fatty tissues from forming. Also, of course, be careful of your diet.

Make-up

E. J. J.: I think that a soft peach shade of powder, soft orange rouge, and light lipstick would blend harmoniously with your coloring. Your present lipstick contains too much pink.

Scars

Peggy, Genevieve M., Mrs. P. E. L. and X. Y. Z.: For effective eradication, scars should be treated in their early stages. Consult a skin specialist about them at once. The only way that I know of in which you can have your nose reshaped is by plastic surgery. The work should be done by an expert, or not at all.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED by Phil

Police Chief O. H. Cornwell, commanding officer of Company L, 147th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, rises to the defense of the local guard unit's softball team, which recently withdrew from the American League competition.

A misapprehension appears to exist as to the exact reason for withdrawal of the team, according to Chief Cornwell, who explains the real reason was in protest to the alleged action of the softball commission in ordering one of Company L's games forfeited while the guardsmen were spending two weeks at Camp Perry, O., under government orders.

Cornwell, knowing that the company would be in camp for two weeks and of course unable to play softball during this time, declares he called this situation to the attention of the commission and requested that no game be scheduled for the company during the period of its absence.

Despite this fact the commission scheduled Company L for a game during its stay at Camp Perry and when it was not played declared it forfeited, the company commandant claims.

Anyway this is the explanation of the chief and he is sticking to it. He declared he wished to air the company's side of the question to clear up the existing misunderstanding that the team withdrew because its members had lost interest, having failed to win a game all season.

Possibly the softball commission has a different explanation of the forfeiture in question or perhaps it was just a general misunderstanding all around.

The Graham Paints softball team has been severely jolted by the loss of two of its best players, namely, Ernest Milburn, outfielder and catcher, and Roy Muterspaw, infielder, who are working in Cincinnati and will no longer be available to the team this season.

Milburn for a time led the National League in batting and last averages showed him with a mark of .405, giving him sixteenth place in the list of hitters. Muterspaw has also been one of the team's best hitters with an average of .392.

Geyers was also hard hit when N. Murrell, of the Murrell brother act, was transferred by the railroad to Cincinnati. Murrell, center fielder, had been one of the Geyer mainstays all season, both at bat and in the field. An uncommonly good fly-chaser, he was batting at a .425 clip for the team. His brother, Dick, is still with the team, however, doing back-stopping duty as Boxie's battery mate.

Gerald Smith, Wilmington, has advised this columnist that the Smith Cleaning Works horseshoe pitching team of Wilmington would like to play our team some time in the near future and to let him know about the arrangements. We are sorry to report that this column has no team. This is regrettable but possibly the Gazette's combination of Jack Scramling and Ray Mahaffey or the team out on Home Ave. are still in existence, so that will save us the necessity of getting busy and organizing ourself into a team.

That new Humpty-Dumpty miniature golf course of Arthur Hornick's on Dayton Hill back of Ed Lampert's greenhouse opens Thursday night and is a beauty. Par for the eighteen holes has been fixed at forty-eight strokes and the holes are farther apart, indicating it will be more sporty and harder to get around in par figures. This will be Xenia's fifth baby links if you count the one on which the "N. Galloway St. Gang" is working.

CARROLL - BINDERS LOSE TO CRITERION IN NATIONAL LOOP

The Criterion softball team, occupying last place in the National League, had a good game in its system Wednesday night and registered its third victory in thirteen stars this season by defeating the Carroll-Binder Co. nine, 11 to 8 at Cox Field.

Thirteen may be an unlucky number but the Clothiers were evidently not the least bit superstitious for they proceeded to play a good fielding game in the pinches and snapped out of it with a vicious batting attack. It was not only their thirteenth game but it was also the thirteenth day of the month.

Randall, Carroll-Binder catcher, fractured a bone in his left ankle in the last half of the sixth inning sliding into third base. He had doubled and raced to third on Haller's sacrificial hoist to center field. Following his retirement from the game the Carroll-Binder team, being short-handed, played out the remainder of the game with only eight players.

Jacobs, pitching for the losers, was nicked for fourteen hits while Herman Wells, Criterion hurler, released ten blows. Both pitchers, strangely enough, led their respective teams at bat, Jacobs getting three singles and Wells a double and two singles. D. Finlay also got three hits for the winners.

Carroll-Binder was away to a two-run lead in the first but the Criterion tied it up in the second and then untied it with a run in the third, only to have Carroll-Binder assume the lead again by scoring twice in the last of the third. The Clothiers kept pecking away at Jacobs, scoring twice in the fourth and three times in the fifth. Carroll-Binder added a run in the fifth and three in the seventh but the winners came back with two in the seventh and one in the eighth, then called it a day.

Burk, Criterion thirdsacker, did not make a hit but he played a snappy fielding game.

Krippendorf and Ki-Ro are scheduled to meet Thursday night, weather permitting. Lineups:

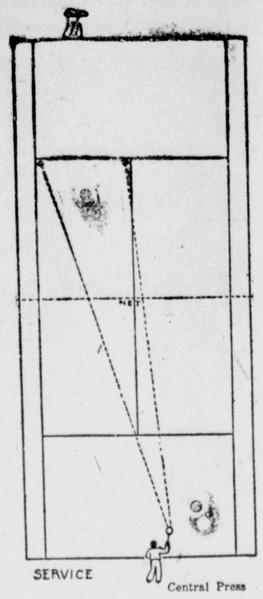
Tennis

HOW IT IS PLAYED



By WILLARD CROCKER
Canadian Davis Cup Star
Written for Central Press
No. 12—SERVICE

Service is the third stroke to learn for the tennis equipment. The forehand and backhand drive must be mastered first. Service begins each point and is the base upon which ground strokes are made. All tennis technique and strategy is carried out by means of the drives. Make your service the first step to your drive. Never consider it as a separate play in itself.

Make both first and second service as consistently the same as possible. Never play the first one very hard, thereby taking risks of a fault and follow it with a soft ball. Practice always to have them both alike.

The secret of successful service is PLACEMENT. Speed is only accessory to be cultivated for the enhancement of placement. Under no condition make a foot fault. Dig up the rule right now and learn it by heart.

Take your position about a foot back of the base line and you will never go wrong. Study placement of service thoroughly by your own experimenting.

Make your mind up definitely where you are going to place your serve before you you up to position.

In practicing or experimenting, learn two places first. 1. Stand toward the middle of the baseline and serve straight down the center lines as near as possible to the corner of your opponent's service court. 2. Standing in same position for service, place the ball into the sideline corner of your oponent's court.

Mix these two up trying to outguess your opponent. Study how he returns each of these placements. Build the remainder of your service attack on this foundation always sacrificing speed to accuracy.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Dullness and irregularity ruled in the stock market today. While a number of the speculative favorites made further recoveries from the early slumps, renewed selling in other sections of the market forced prices steadily lower. Transactions up to the noon period totalled only 662,000 shares, or about 50 per cent as many as in the same period yesterday.

A 5-point dip in Republic Iron and Steel to 32 3-4, the lowest price in three years, reflected the market's uncertainty over the dividend. Industrial Alcohol was weak for the same cause, the stock settling down to a new low price at 59. Standard Oil of New Jersey, above 70, was the outstanding strong spot in the industrials, though United States Steel was in good form most of the day, with good demand around 160.

The industrial and business news of the day was unchanged, and not sufficient to show any new trend in important trade lines. Wall St. believes that the drought damage reports have painted too drab a picture of the agricultural districts and that in the end the loss and damage will be far under present etsimates. For that reason the big bears have maintained a hands-off policy, and short selling has been in small volume in the last few days.

EIGHT ESCAPE COUNTY JAIL

LEWISBURG, W. Va., Aug. 14.—Eight prisoners, one of them a murderer sentenced to be hanged November 14, escaped from the Greenbrier county jail here early today.

Descriptions of the missing men were flashed throughout the tri-state district by Greenbrier County authorities and an intensive manhunt was begun in an effort to round-up the prisoners.

Roosevelt Darneli, convicted of slaying Clarence Hobrook and sentenced to be hanged November 14, was believed to have been the leader of the escape.

Poems that Live

TO A LITTLE GIRL

HER eyes are like forget-me-nots,
So loving, kind and true;
Her lips are like a pink sea-shell
Just as the sun shines through;
Her hair is like the waving grain
In summer's golden light;
And, best of all, her little soul
Is, like a lily, white.

CORNS

Root and All;Out to Stay!

Two tablespoonfuls of that amazingly refreshing cool foot invigorating Radox to one gallon of water makes a footbath which after 3 to 4 night's soaking lifts out aching, maddening corns, callouses, too—root and all.

Radox softens the hard outer layers of corn—and oxygen which Radox liberates, enters the pores, each night penetrating further and further, carrying the salts right to root of corn which can be lifted out bodily.

Wonderful to take out pain and burning and refresh tired feet!

"MA" FERGUSON AGAIN SEEKING OFFICE OF GOVERNOR IN TEXAS

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 14.—Mrs. Miriam A. "Ma" Ferguson, one-time governor of Texas, is but a step away from possessing that distinction again. Now that she is, anxious political leaders are rallying their forces to defeat her next move. They hope to crush her permanently.

Through a dozen years or more Ferguson has been to a large number of this state's Democratic party leaders what a red flag is to a bull. These leaders have been joined by a majority of the press. Yet, in spite of those facts, Mrs. Ferguson and her husband, James E. have each held the state's highest office.

Winning over a field of ten other candidates in Texas primary election on July 26, with a majority of more than 50,000 votes over her nearest rival, "Ma" has but to repeat her victory in the run-off election on August 23. There she will oppose Ross Sterling, Houston publisher and the second best candidate in the primary.

And there, also, will probably be the hardest battle she and the stalwart "Jim" ever fought. For against them will be arrayed virtually the entire forces of the candidates she defeated in the primary, not to speak of Governor Dan Moody, who "saved Texas from Fergusonism" by defeating "Ma."

How tautly the anti-Ferguson lines are drawn is indicated in a statement from the blond young Moody, who declared that "this state will not again be shamed at home and ridiculed abroad" through having a Ferguson at its helm, and a declaration on the part of more than one defeated gubernatorial candidate that he will throw his entire strength toward Ross Sterling.

The remarkable thing about the Fergusons is that they are faced with tremendous odds on every hand, but somehow or other old "Jim," the small-town business man has a way of overcoming odds. Never before, however, are they believed to have faced such united opposition as that which they now will meet. The fight will be an interesting one.

"Jim" first came into prominence some fifteen years ago when, an unknown, he announced for governor and, remarkably enough, was swept into office. In 1917 he was impeached.

Returning to the fray on another quarter, he was the force which resulted in Mrs. Ferguson being elected governor in 1924. A "proxy government," young Dan Moody contemptuously called it in his campaign against Fergusoniasm two years later.

Moody won after a bitter fight, his victory the result of a stern "anti-Ferguson, anti-corruption" platform. Not entering the race himself this year, he is nevertheless aligned against his old foes, and as bitterly as ever.

With such odds against them, the Fergusons are not slated to win the coming run-off, but with the astute, redoubtable "Jim" at the helm of the steam roller which flaunts his banner, predictions are futile. You can never tell about the Fergusons.

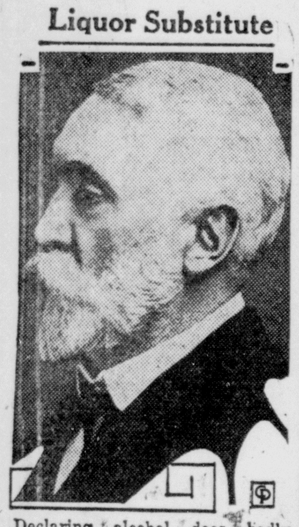
Liquor Substitute



Declaring alcohol does badly what it sets out to do, Viscount D'Abernon, chairman of England's wartime liquor control board, says the world needs a substitute for alcohol as a beverage. He believes the inventor of a substitute would win a fortune in wealth and human gratitude.

HEALTH BETTER THAN IN YEARS THANKS KONJOLA

Happy Lady Finds Health After Long Search—Gives All Credit To New Medicine

"I suffered for many years with stomach trouble," said Mrs. E. L. Cohee, West Alexandria, Ohio, near Dayton. "I underwent eight operations in as many years and was in a badly run-down condition. Gas formed after meals and I bloated until I became short of breath.

MRS. E. L. COHEE

I had little or no appetite and such food as I ate caused misery. My work was a burden and no medicine I tried did me the least bit of good.

"In desperation, I turned to Konjola and this medicine lost no time in getting to the source of my trouble. After completing the Konjola treatment, my stomach troubles are over. No gas forms in my stomach after meals and I do not bloat nor become short of breath. I sleep well and am in better health than I have been in years. All this is due to this wonderful compound, Konjola."

Designed to afford lasting relief from ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness, Konjola continues to be the most talked-of medicine in America.

Konjola is a new and different medicine of 32 ingredients, 22 of them the juices of roots and herbs long known for their medicinal value. Konjola works quickly and thoroughly at the very root, the fount of the ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Konjola is not designed to give mere temporary relief, but to bring new, glorious and lasting health.

Konjola is sold in Xenia, Ohio at the Gallaher Drug Store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

FREIGHT RATES FOR DROUGHT AREAS ARE EFFECTIVE HERE

Greene County is included in a list of counties in Ohio and other Mid-western states where emergency freight rates approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission as a step to relieve the drought situation which has affected farm communities seriously, are to be applicable.

The Ohio Public Utilities Commission has issued a blanket order permitting all railroads to make voluntary reductions in freight rates on agricultural products, particularly feed and live stock, but such reductions will not be subject to the usual regulations and will be allowed to stand until October 31.

There are thirty-nine counties in the Ohio list announced by Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of agriculture. In these, Secretary Hyde said, the 50 per cent reduction in freight rates applies to live stock shipped out of the drought areas for feeding purposes, but not to shipments of cattle to market.

MAY HEAR REPORT ON POWER VALUATION

Report on the approximate valuation of its distribution system within the corporation limits of Xenia may be submitted by the Dayton Power and Light Co. to City Commission at the bi-monthly commission meeting Thursday night.

The commission may also give consideration to the question of an appointment of a successor to the late Commissioner E. E. Lighthiser. Fifty-eight applications have been received from persons who desire to be appointed to fill the vacancy.

Gridder Files Suit

How much is a football and baseball career worth? At least $10,000 thinks Walter Opekun of Jessup, Pa., two years ago regarded as a bright prospect for the University of Pennsylvania football team. Opekun has filed suit for that amount in damages in Scranton, Pa., against Louis Weiss, also of Jessup, alleging that injuries he sustained while riding with Weiss in his auto in 1928 ended his prospects as a great athlete.

Pleasure Bound from Prohibition's Ban

One of the lively scenes which is said to have characterized the recent "wet cruise to nowhere" of the S. S. California. Some of the passengers are shown livening the ship's costume ball with calls at the ship's bar. Note that there is a liberal supply of wet goods on hand. The list included 1,520 quarts of wine, 1,020 pints of wine, 220 quarts of liqueurs, 30 pints of liqueurs, 993 bottles of beer and ten kegs of beer.

BLAME DROUGHT FOR FLOODED MARKETS

CLEVELAND, Aug. 14.—Drought-stricken areas of Kentucky and southern Ohio are flooding the Cleveland livestock market with unusually large shipments of cattle, lambs and old sows, United States department of agriculture agents here said today.

Although the Cleveland market receives some shipments regularly from these districts, the present influx is heavier than usual, since livestock raisers in the drought-stricken areas are anxious to sell due to their inability to fatten the stock because of lack of feed and water, it was said.

Better grade stock is being forced to higher prices, it was said. Poor grade stock, however, which is being poured into the local market, is acting as a drag.

PARIS sets the styles in women's dress for the world. London is the arbiter in matters of dress for men. But, New York and Chicago, Boston and San Francisco and hundreds of smaller cities and towns throughout the United States may know what are the latest styles even before they are shown in Paris.

A seeming paradox, but true. Merchants maintain representatives in Paris, London, Vienna and other European style centers who cable the latest news of the modes, and ship samples long before they are sold abroad. In America, the news is translated into advertisements and printed by local newspapers throughout the United States. And so, American women are able to dress in the latest styles in dress more accurately than the women of any other country on the face of the globe.

Advertising keeps you abreast of the times in other ways. It tells you of the newest and best in every line of merchandise. It keeps you posted on what other people are doing and wearing and using. Read the advertisements. They are truthful and helpful. You can depend on their accuracy, for the reputations of the merchants sponsoring them guarantee their integrity.

President's Son Gets Job in N. J. Plant

Starts Vacation Work "At Bottom" in Radiator Factory—Duties Indefinite.

ALLAN, PRESIDENT and HERBERT HOOVER, JR.

BAYONNE, N. J., Aug. 14.—This summer will not be any joy-riding sinecure for American college boys if they follow the example set them by Allan Hoover, younger son of the President of the United States.

Instead of taking a pleasure jaunt to Europe or spending the torrid months playing golf in some exclusive vacation resort, young Hoover, who just completed his first year in the Harvard Graduate School for Business Administration, has taken a summer job in the American Radiator Company plant.

This young man, whom any corporation in the country would welcome as an employe in almost any capacity, got his new job without influence and in applying for it asked to be started "at the bottom."

His work, which consists of studying accounts, typing notes, and adding long columns of figures, is the same as would be assigned to any unknown college student who applied at the plant.

Allan's salary is a secret between him and the company. His first day of work was hampered by the rush of newspaper reporters and photographers and also by the interest aroused in him among the feminine employes, but after the first flurry of excitement young Hoover settled down to labor in earnest.

"I got the job myself," he told inquirers proudly, "and I'm not being shown any favors because of my father."

Allan is a good-looking, affable lad, with steady blue eyes that occasionally flash with humor. He said he had no plans for his life work after he completed his post-graduate course at Harvard.

Promptly at 8 o'clock each morning, the Executive's son arrives at his desk in the large offices of the company. At noon he eats his lunch out of a pasteboard box like the other young men and women.

A statement from the company announced the addition of Allan Hoover to the staff. It stated that there was nothing unusual or significant in the appointment, and added, "It runs in his family to become wisely self-supporting as early as possible."

During the summer, Allan will be given a bird's-eye view of the routine working of the entire plant. The first day on the job he was taken for a tour of the factory and shook the oil-greased hands of the workers.

"The President," he said, "made no comment on my choice of employment." But intimates of the President declare he is delighted at the independence and initiative displayed by his son.

Relief From Curse Of Constipation

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

FILLING STATION ROBBERS ELUDE POSSE AT JAMESTOWN

Three youths who were reported to have held up and robbed a Pure Oil filling station in Washington C. H. of $46 and a wrist watch early Wednesday night managed to elude a trap set for them at Jamestown, led a posse of half a hundred Jamestown residents and Washington C. H. authorities a merry chase until midnight and finally escaped the dragnet at South Charleston.

After the filling station robbery, the trio stole a Chrysler coupe in that city and headed in the direction of Washington C. H. with police in full pursuit.

John Baughn, village marshal and Dr. R. L. Haines, county coroner, and a large number of citizens arranged to blockade the street through the town and watch both roads leading to the village.

The Chrysler coupe was sighted soon afterward. It contained two of the fugitives with the third in a Ford coupe which was trailing the Chrysler. The trio, realizing the main street was blockaded with machines, turned the two autos around and managed to avoid another group of pursuers coming from the opposite direction by driving through the front yard of a private residence.

Then a long chase ensued with fifteen Jamestown cars and Washington C. H. authorities trying to corner the robber cars. The fugitives drove in and out of many by-roads and in the darkness defied efforts of pursuers to pocket them.

The Chrysler coupe was finally abandoned near South Solon, the two occupants jumping into their companion's Ford, which was able to outdistance every pursuing car. It ran without lights and with the license plates covered. Two officers tried to stop the fugitives at South Charleston and a number of shots were exchanged but the youths were reported to have made their get-away toward London.

A fact you should not overlook

More red-cells in the blood! Good health and resistance to infection and disease, depend on that! Loss of appetite, underweight, sluggishness, a weakened condition, nervousness, pimples and boils are symptoms, often seen, of a deficiency of red-cells in the blood. If a lowered red-cell count is allowed to continue, ANEMIA often results. S.S.S. should be your safeguard. A hundred years of experience has proved its usefulness in building red-cells in the blood. Take it before meals. Millions of people have found it the easiest and surest way to restore their red-blood-cells. The appetite picks up, the whole body is invigorated. FOURTH MINIATURE GOLF COURSE OPENS

Formal opening of Xenia's fourth miniature golf course, the attractive new Humpty-Dumpty eighteen-hole links, installed by Arthur Hornick on property leased from Ed Lampert, florist, in the rear of the Engle Floral Co., 221 Dayton Ave., is scheduled for 6 o'clock Thursday night.

The latest course constructed at a cost said to have been approximately $5,000, is an exact duplicate of a Humpty-Dumpty links located on the Shroyer Road, in Oakwood, suburb of Dayton, which is one of the finest in that city.

Par for the local course has been tentatively fixed at forty-eight strokes and because of the interesting hazards and greater distance between the holes, Mr. Hornick believes it will prove fascinating for Xenians.

CHILD SUCCUMBS TO ILLNESS HERE

George Hazelbaker, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hazelbaker, 31 Trumbull St., died Thursday morning at 8:50 o'clock after a few days' illness. The child had been ill since Sunday, suffering from intestinal grip. The baby was born November 12, 1928.

Besides his parents, George is survived by two brothers, Charles and Robert and a sister, Effie, all at home. Funeral services will be held at Whitmer's funeral parlors Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock with burial in Woodland Cemetery.

THE FUTURE MRS. MENCKEN

Girl Who Turned Premier Bachelor To Thoughts Of Love Quite a Personage.

MISS SARA POWELL HAARDT

H. L. MENCKEN

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 14.—Henry L. Mencken, 50, militant bachelor, who avers that "church weddings, in fact most weddings, are primitive orgies in the worst state," says with a laugh that he will have a wedding Wednesday, Sept. 3, that "will be very refined." He and Miss Sara Powell Haardt, 30, writer whom he is to wed, are undecided on the clergyman.

Apparently Mencken is as happy as anybody else would be at the prospect of marriage.

That the ceremony of the noted critic and editor to his writer-fiancee will be without frills is conceded. "Being married," comments Mencken, "with all one's friends about you, is as private and discriminating as eating in the window of a restaurant."

The Bride-to-Be

The announcement of the engagement was made by Mrs. John Anton Haardt, Miss Haardt's mother, of Montgomery, Ala., former home of Miss Haardt, and where she was visiting at the time of the announcement.

The engagement announcement was simultaneous with word that Miss Haardt's first novel, "The Making of a Lady," would soon appear.

Miss Haardt first came to Baltimore in 1916, after finishing a course at Margaret Booth School in Montgomery. She was graduated in 1920 from Goucher college, receiving the Phi Beta Kappa key for the excellence of her scholastic work.

In 1921 Miss Haardt returned to Baltimore for three years of post-graduate work at the Johns Hopkins university.

Began Writing

Due to serious illness, Miss Haardt was unable to present herself as a candidate for a Ph. D. degree. She returned to Montgomery, remaining there for a year and a half. It was during this period that she began writing. Virtually her first articles went to the Baltimore Evening Sun, of which Mencken was an editor.

Returning to Baltimore in 1926, Miss Haardt made writing her profession. She became a regular contributor to "highbrow" magazines. In addition, she was the author of the "Jelly-Bean" stories known chiefly by college students.

H. L. Mencken, who will reach the half-century mark on September 12, was born in the house at 1524 Hollins St. opposite Union Square, Baltimore, in which he still lives. He is the son of the late August and Anna (Abau) Mencken.

Mencken's Career

After being graduated from the Baltimore Polytechnic Institute, he became a reporter on the old Baltimore Herald at 19. He advanced successively to city editor and editor.

In 1906, Mencken, at 26, joined the staff of the Baltimore Sun. Then, when the Evening Sun was founded in 1910, he associated himself with the late John Haslup Adams, its first editor. Whereupon Mencken began his column "The Free Lance." Mencken still is contributing editor of the Evening Sun.

The Sun gives this chronology, for the intervening years.

"His first literary effort was a book of poems, 'Ventures Into Verse,' published in 1903 in Baltimore and now a collector's tidbit. In those days the youthful Mencken was a great admirer of Rudyard Kipling, and the verse in the thin little book clearly shows the source of its inspiration.

"Two years later he wrote 'George Bernard Shaw: His Plays' a book which did for the Irish dramatist exactly what Shaw had sought to do for Ibsen in his "Quintessence of Ibsenism.' This book and 'The Philosophy of Friedrich Nietzsche,' which followed in 1908 gave him a standing among the rising literary folk of the time and the magazines began to seek contributions from him.

"In 1908 he began his work as literary critic for the old Smart Set and found therein the field on which he fought the battles which ultimately changed the whole trend of American literature. Here, too, he began the association with George eJan Nathan, dramatic critic, which culminated, in 1924, in the establishment of the American Mercury under their joint editorship.

TO IMPROVE ROADS

An appropriation of $16,000 to finance improvement of a county road extending from New Burlington to Lumberton, a distance of ten miles, was voted Tuesday by Clinton County commissioners. This makes a total of $150,000 appropriated during the last two weeks to speed up road work to give employment to drought-stricken farmers in that county.

MRS. W. D. SIEGEL CALLED BY DEATH

Word has been received in Xenia of the death of Mrs. W. D. Siegel, formerly of this city, which occurred at her home in Cincinnati early Wednesday morning. Complication of diseases was the cause of death. The Siegel family formerly resided in Xenia at 434 S. Detroit St., but moved from here to Cincinnati six years ago at which time Mr. Siegel was transferred on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Mrs. Siegel is survived by her husband and two daughters, of Cincinnati. Funeral services will be held at the home in Cincinnati Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Will Bells Peal for Don Luis and Aged Princess?

PRINCESS AMEDEE DE BROGLIE & DON LUIS DE BOURBON

PARIS, Aug. 14.—These are sad, bad days indeed for European royalty!

The latest is that elderly blue-bloods are not to be permitted to marry whom they please. That was bad enough in the era when thrones were involved but now that dukes and princes have been divested of their rightful or wrongful domains, it seems that the least people can do is to allow these ex-wearers of ermine to embark on whatever matrimonial adventures they choose to hazard.

The latest royal marriage plans to be held up are those of Prince Luis de Bourbon, cousin to King Alfonso of Spain and Princess Amede de Broglie, member of one of the most aristocratic families of France.

Objection to the match has been made by the family of the blushing bride-to-be, who declare that a seventy-four-year-old grandmother is too old to marry, particularly when the claimant to her hand is only forty-one and known as one of the gayest playboys in Western Europe.

The Prince's family can also be said to be none too enthusiastic about the proposed match. The Infanta Eulalie, his mother, commented timely: "It is all so ridiculous. Why, she is older than I am, and I can only say I am sorry for her children and grandchildren."

However, the entire matter is to be threshed out in the Tribunal of the Seine. That celebrated high French court will decide whether the mariage is legally possible. Amedee's protesting family will be represented in court by her nephew, the Duc de Brissac.

This is not the first time that Prince Don Luis' romances have been aired in the newspapers. About a year ago, he was reported engaged to marry Mabelle Gilman Corey, wealthy former wife of William E. Corey, the Pittsburgh millionaire.

This romance was wrecked when the rich Mrs. Gilman announced that she had broken off with her Spanish gandee because of a dispute about the amount to be settled upon him before the wedding day.

In the prince's past life there have been other very unsavory episodes. In Paris, the boulevardiers call him the "black sheep" of Spanish royalty.

However, there are members of royalty who look with favor upon the curious match. For instance, there is the Princess Catherine Radziwell, who declares that the Princess Amedee should be lauded for wanting to marry at an advanced age and that modern women who refuse to grow old are entitled to their romance.

Incidentally, Princess Amedee is fabulously rich, While Prince Luis is said to be poverty-stricken. It is for the Tribunal of the Seine to decide the interesting question of just when a woman is too old to marry and whether the fact that she is a grandmother has any bearing on her matrimonial eligibility.

NATURALIST DIES

ASHTABULA, O., Aug. 14.—Dr. F. D. Snyder, 62, nationally known naturalist and a fellow of the Royal Geographic Society of London, is dead here today following an apoplectic stroke yesterday.

CRESWELL IS ALSO VICTOR FOR SHORT TERM NOMINATION

Paul H. Creswell, who won the Republican nomination for both the long and short term as county auditor at Tuesday's primary, received 717 votes for the short term although he had withdrawn his name from the ballot for the short term in order to avoid confusion which he had anticipated might arise from having his name printed on the ticket twice.

Instead he mailed post cards last Monday, the day before the election, to 1,000 of the 1,300 persons who had signed his nominating petition, inviting them to write his name in on the ballot for the short term as county auditor. His opponent, George Eckerle, was not a candidate for the short term nomination.

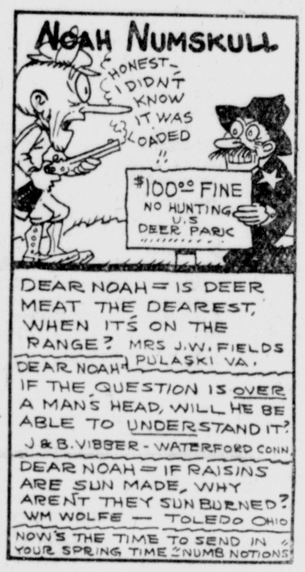
The post cards, he disclosed, were about 72 per cent effective, as he received 717 out of a possible 1,000 votes for the short term.

In order to obtain the short term nomination it was necessary to receive 8 per cent of the total Republican vote cast at the primary.

CHILDREN ATTEND CLINIC THURSDAY

A joint tonsilectomy clinic, under the auspices of the Federated Parent-Teachers Association and Greene County Chapter, American Red Cross, was held Thursday morning at the offices of Drs. Madden and Shields, this city. Six children from Xenia were operated upon under the direction of the P.-T. A. and nine cases were under the Red Cross. Two of the Red Cross cases were from Cedarville, one from Fairfield and six from Xenia.

Those assisting Drs. Madden and Shields were Dr. Marshall Best, Dr. W. T. Ungard, Miss Mary Smith, city health nurse; Miss Velma Smith, Mrs. William Keller, Miss Harriet Keller and Miss Nelle Weaver.



SOCIETY SISTERS DRESS SIMPLY

Miss Helen Louise Tunnell, left, and her sister, Miss Elizabeth Sherley Tunnell, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tunnell of Pittsburgh, wore the simplest of frocks as they appeared at Newport recently. Miss Helen Louise is a debutante of this season, and was introduced to Newport society recently by Miss Lilian Washburn Newlan, at the latter's Newport home, "The Playhouse."

READ THIS FIRST:

Kitty Wilmot, secretary to Ellery Goss, assists Gordon Platt, Goss' confidential man, in running down a "leak" in the offices; Atlee, Goss' chief clerk, makes violent love to Kitty, who flees to her friend Sally Ayers. After meeting Boss Kelliher at a party given by Hilda, blond 'phone operator, at Platt's request she gets to know Hattie Bridges, another of Goss' secretaries, at whose house she discovers an apparent connection between Sally Ayers, Bridges and the stock market, through Hattie's nephew. But he turns out to be Joe Fortune, of whom Kitty has heard, long in love with Sally! Kitty reproaches herself with too much imagination. Listing all possible suspects of the leaks, she determines to be active, not passive in the work for Platt. At midnight she is asked to the telephone; she indignantly refuses on hearing that it is Kelliher who wants her.

She spends Sunday afternoon at the natatorium with Atlee, as the safest place to hear his explanations. He first tells her he loves her, and finally, asks her to marry him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 18

There is nothing romantic about a proposal on the street on a bright Sunday afternoon! Especially is it unromantic when the lover looks as miserable as a wet cat and is evidently proposing under some other emotion.

After a moment of great surprise, Kitty laughed. It was too unreal to take seriously. His declaration of love this afternoon had sounded partly real. But this proposal, coming at the last moment, after she had just indicated her desire not to see him again, was theatrical, farcical—it did not ring true.

"Let's go upstairs and tell Baby that!" She knew this was unkind, but she began to lose patience. Atlee stared for a moment, then lifted his hat and turned away. "You tell her!" he said.

Kitty knit her brows. It was all very strange. But as she watched him stride down the street, resolutions hardened in her; something was queer here! Something moved below the surface that she couldn't see. "I will tell her!" she thought, and mounted the two flights to Sally's and Baby's little home.

Sally was peeling potatoes for supper, Baby reading a magazine. Characteristic occupations, Kitty thoughts; Sally all housewife, homemaker, loving and caring for her sister; Baby selfishly enjoying herself while her sister worked. Kitty saw much that was likeable in Baby, but she did not wholly trust her. She loved Sally and knew that Baby worried her sister, although not exactly why Sally was worried.

"Sally, dear, I've just had an experience!" began Kitty, after greeting her friends. "Don't go, Baby, I want you to hear this, too. I kept my promise to you and saw Atlee. I've just finished listening to him."

Baby's magazine fell to the floor with a bang. Sally looked eagerly interested.

"Well?" demanded Baby. "He explained it, didn't he?"

"So he did," agreed Kitty, watching Baby narrowly. "But the surprising part is that he told me he loved me and asked me to marry him."

Baby did not change color. There was no suggestion of hysterics. Kitty fancied Baby's eyes gleamed a darker blue for a moment.

"And you said—?" she asked.

"I haven't said!" answered Kitty. "I didn't give him an answer."

"How very exciting!" cried Sally. "Are you going to marry him, Kitty, dear?" The big girl put an arm around her. "I've known Atlee for some time—I think he's a fine chap, and—and—" She didn't finish.

"What would you do, Baby?" inquired Kitty.

"I told him you wouldn't—that is, I told him you wouldn't hold it against him," Baby was suddenly embarrassed. In a lightning flash of partial understanding, Kitty thought Baby knew Atlee was going to ask her to marry him! Why should Atlee tell Baby before he told her?

"Are you sure he is free?" went on Baby deliberately.

"I asked him if you were anything to him; he said you were not except a good friend!"

Kitty rather expected this to be a bombshell, and to produce an explosion. Before, Baby had had hysterics at the very mention of marriage between her and Atlee. Now Baby only laughed.

"Quite right, Kit!" she answered. "Marry him if you want him—"

"I don't!" answered Kitty, teased into the declaration she had not expected to make.

"Oh, I knew that!" answered Baby. "Sally, when do we eat?"

Sally, looking from Kitty to Baby and Baby to Kitty did not answer.

"Why Baby!" she gasped. "I thought—you and Atlee—you said—I don't understand—"

"Oh, that's all over! I did have a crush on him—but no more!" The small girl retrived her magazine from the floor and waved it airily. "Let's talk of something more interesting!"

She buried her nose in the book. Kitty saw her small hands gripped it with force; Baby was evidently making a great effort not to show that they trembled. Much as she wished to believe in her, Kitty was miserably conscious that she was the outsider at a mystery play; that Atlee and Baby had some sort of an understanding from which she was excluded.

It was a difficult afternoon. Baby said little; Sally was reserved and anxious. She smiled only once when Kitty told her she had met Joe Fortune. "There's a real man!" Kitty made her voice enthusiastic. "Sally, why don't you take him?"

"Oh, I don't know—I'm so tall and he isn't—"

"Good goods come in small packages!" smiled Kitty.

"Like me!" put in Baby unexpectedly. "Joe's a good scout. But so's Atlee!"

Kitty left after supper with the conviction that she had accomplished nothing. Whatever Baby and Atlee had between them, whatever they had desired to do by a secret understanding, was accomplished.

The net result is that Atlee has apologized and asked me to marry him. Baby knew about it before and was on her guard; I know nothing of the secret causes of their queer behavior. Sally is bothered about her. Oh, dear, why is life so difficult?

She walked to her home, if puzzled and depressed, with no let up in her determination to take an active, rather than a passive part in Gordon Platt's hunt for the sources of the office leak. She tried to be fair, to tell herself that Baby's and Atlee's queer action and words must not prejudice her. It was impossible either had anything to do with it. "Just because people act queer with me is no sign they are thieves!" she stormed at herself. "Be sensible! He's evidently just ordinarily prosperous. He spends no great amount of money—"

She stopped in the middle of the street. "How do I know that?" she demanded of herself. "I don't even know where he lives. I don't know how he spends his time. He evidently knows wealthy people—the Kellihers must have huge amounts of money. Atlee spent it like water that evening. He said he had resources outside his salary. Maybe that's a good place to start; find out where he lives and what he does with himself when he isn't acting with me, or spending an evening with the Ayers'—"

She walked on, busy in her thoughts. A man drew abreast of her. She paid no attention. He did not pass her, but he walked by her side. Suddenly conscious that this must be from design, Kitty looked up. Staring down at her were the well marked and remembered features of Boss Kelliher!

"Good afternoon!" he said. "This is an unexpected pleasure!"

"Yes? It's a lovely afternoon." Kitty was non-committal. She had not forgotten she had eluded this man's escort from Hilda's by craft or that he had called her at midnight with no right to do so.

"Sorry you couldn't talk to me last night!" He took her arm. Kitty removed it from his hand, not rudely, but decidedly. "I prefer to walk alone!" she stated, and didn't care how he took it.

"I had something important to say to you," he went on.

"I cannot imagine anything important you could have to say to me!" Kitty was distinctly annoyed. The man was too possessive.

"That's good!" he laughed. "I like a girl without too much imagination. However, it really is important. Otherwise I wouldn't have called you at midnight. How was I to know you kept such early hours? Most girls are out after midnight on Saturday—"

"So you thought you'd call me up while I was out?" Kitty laughed.

"Just taking a chance!" he was quite cool. "Well, will you ask me to your home, or will you come to mine, or shall we go into the park to talk?"

"None of them!" answered Kitty.

"Oh, come now, sister!" reproached Boss Kelliher. "Don't treat me like an orphan child, and me trying to do you a favor. "I just want to show you a piece of paper and ask you one question."

Kitty considered, rapidly. Was this part of the mystery? Or was it—something else? She looked up at him; there was nothing inimical in his face; a quizzical little smile, rather a friendly smile, she thought, on his lips.

"I'll sit with you for five minutes in the park!" she agreed. They walked in silence to a bench. Babies played within a few yards. A policeman strutted a swinging baton; men and women walked on the paths enjoying the fine afternoon. New York was taking its ease on a Sunday—

Kelliher produced his pocketbook and from it took something which he laid in her lap.

"Will you come to work for me?" asked Boss Kelliher, softly. "For one of these every month?"

Kitty looked at it in stupified amazement.

It was a $1000 bill!

TO PAINT ANCIENT CIVILIZATION

A unique pioneering expedition into the unexplored regions of Central America, having as its object the making of mural paintings of the ancient Aztec and Mayan civilizations, will be launched shortly by Warren Chase Merritt, California artist, and his wife, known professionally as Aline Kistler. They will enter the jungles in the spring and push their way southward for a year or more until their work is completed. Photo shows them returning to Los Angeles after a preliminary survey and plan-laying trip.

BRINGING UP FATHER — By GEORGE McMANUS

The Theater

Hollywood is reported to be still gasping over the announcement that Mary Pickford, "America's sweetheart" during silent photoplay years and still regarded as one of the most appealing figures in filmdom, will desert the talkies for the legitimate stage.

Years ago little Gladys Smith began a career as an actress on the legitimate stage, but when the motion picture was in its infancy, her talent was drawn in that direction and she became Mary Pickford of the films.

Now, after a long span of years in which her name has glistened near the top of movie success, she is deserting the cinema to return to the medium with which she got her start. And amazed Hollywood gossips over the back fence about this strange thing that has happened to it.

"A few months' stage appearance will be excellent experience and training for my later work in talking pictures," says Miss Pickford, who evidently feels that she is going to go on forever.

When the talkies came into being higher salaries and better hours drew much of the cream of stage talent to the screen. Now, it would appear, this tide of stars, is reversing itself. Other film stars of unimpeachable luminosity are declaring themselves for the footlights, including Vilma Banky, blonde star and her dark-haired husband, Rod La Roque, Lya De Putti, the exotic Viennese and Colleen Moore, sprightly film flapper. Hollywood takes comfort in the statement of Douglas Fairbanks that he will not consider stage offers.

Heeding the call of the open spaces, Charles Rogers, whom Paramount has decreed may no longer be called "Buddy," will go Western in his next talking picture.

Herman Manckiewecz, erstwhile New York reviewer and now scenarist, is writing a story for Charles about a dude ranch and Paramount may send the company on location to Gary Cooper's place in Montana. Charles is now making a film with the impossible name of "Molinoff," whatever that means, and Frances Dee, the pretty newcomer, is playing opposite him. Frances is the girl who had the argument with the studio about her film name. She liked her own, Dee; the studio wanted to change it to Deane. So they compromised and it is Dee.

Despite her success in the movies, Lillian Roth yearns to get back to vaudeville. She says that upon the completion of her current talkie, Broadway will see her again in an act at the Palace. After that she'll play several other theaters.

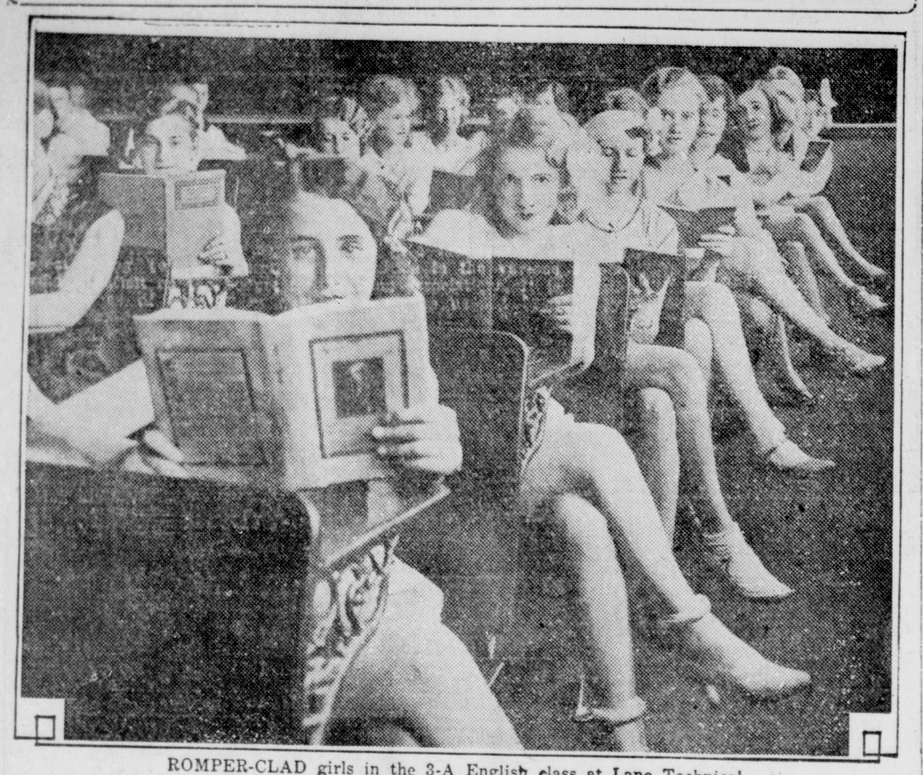
BAREFOOT BOY HAD NOTHING ON MODERN MAIDS



ROMPER-CLAD girls in the 3-A English class at Lane Technical high school, Chicago.

By FRANK J. CIPRIANI
Central Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—The old-fashioned barefoot boy who wended his way to school in overalls and a coat of tan hasn't anything on the modern maiden of the classroom.

In fact, the modern maiden hasn't so much of anything on—an abbreviated suit seeming to do very well.

At least this is the rule in one classroom of a technical high school here where the dimpled darlings find conventional clothing too burdensome in hot weather. So, with conventional feminine disregard for convention the girls have set their own style, and now attend class in rompers.

Most of the girls wear short socks to match their rompers—or no socks at all. Sitting in a group they resemble French dolls. Marching out during recess, they seem not unlike a proud Follies chorus.

The only hardship of the new style is on the male instrutcors, because it strains their eyes. That is, the colors strain their eyes, for the girls wear vivid rompers whose hues and tints would tax an artist's palette.

When the first hot wave hit Chicago, a committee of the girls studying English appealed to Principal Grant Beebe and Henry Mendelsohn, English instructor, for permission to dress according to the weather.

"Go ahead," consented Principal Beebe, "only be reasonable."

The girls were. They came in rompers, which weren't so much as clothes go these days but a concession after all. They might have tried swimming suits. The rompers were aproved by the principal, and within a week most of the girls appeared in class in the new style.

Comfort First

Principal Beebe believe in physical comfort in classes. No student, girl or boy, he holds, can do his or her best mentally when uncomfortable And so he stands out today as an educator far from prudish, far from Puritanical. Not that he isn't conventional. He's simply practical.

A century ago girls appearing in public in such scant costume would have been ostracized. Before that they might have been put in stocks and lettered by censorial Puritans.

But the girl of today does things her mother didn't, and the mother of today probably is kicking herself because she didn't do the things her daughter does.

DIRIGIBLE BEGINS HOMEWARD FLIGHT; HAS PERFECT START

"R-100—Bon voyage—Canada," the sign fairly shouted.

Manned by her tested crew of forty-four men commanded by Squadron Leader R. S. Booth, hopes remained high at the start of the hazardous 3,400-mile journey that a record return trip to Cardington would be achieved. The officers even promising to "bring her back to Canada as soon as the snow clears next spring."

With favorable tailwinds prevailing over the course, the officers expected to moor at Cardington sometime Saturday morning, or after a flight of approximately forty-eight hours. She headed straight for the St. Lawrence Valley after circling the city and airfield, soaring over Quebec shortly before midnight.

Commander Booth planned to leave the North American shore at Cape Race and today expected to be over open water where winds are steady and vertical gusts few.

Ideal weather conditions were promised by weather officials before departure. Southerly seven-mile breeze was blowing but this it was said would shift later to a tail wind which would help carry the dirigible eastward until she was at least half way across the Atlantic. The officers planned to use only five of her six Rolls-Royce engines.

Provided the dirigible reaches England under fifty hours she would be more than six hours under the record time made in any crossing of the Graf Zeppelin. Wing Commander R. B. B. Colmore denied, however, that there was any direct intention of establishing a new crossing mark.

The British government forbade the airship to carry freight or paying passengers, although she is capable of lifting fifty-six tons, approximately the weight of the average locomotive. Mail packages amounting in revenue to $500,000 were available if wanted. It was learned.

The dirigible arrived in Canada Aug. 1 after a three-day flight across the Atlantic. Two hundred miles from her destination she encountered terrific squalls and vertical currents which tossed her up and down in the air like a toy balloon, springing a bad tear in the fabric of her port stabilizer fin.

She remained here for thirteen days, making a short flight to Ottawa and Toronto after repairs were concluded on her torn fin. Approximately 16,000 persons were taken up to visit the ship by the mooring mast's elevator.

FOUR SENATE RACES TO CLAIM INTEREST AT NOVEMBER POLLS

homa. In 1928, Hoover carried the state by 394,000 to 219,000 for Smith but that was an exceptional campaign. On the other hand, Davis won the state in 1924 by 255,000 to 226,000 for Coolidge while Senator Elmer Thomas, Democrat, was elected in 1926 by 195,312 to 159,287 for his Republican opponent, the then incumbent Senator Harreld. On the strength of the primary turnout, Gore should be a favorite.

In Ohio, it will be difficult to choose a favorite until the campaign gets under way. While Bulkley ran far ahead of his opponents in the senatorial primary, the Democrats at the same time nominated a dry, George D. White, for governor. The drys also pointed out that three dry candidates for the senatorial nomination drew 12,000 to 15,000 more votes than the two wets.

Hopes of a Democratic senatorial victory in Ohio may rest upon getting the voters to the polls next November. The total Democratic vote Tuesday was less than 220,000 an almost negligible vote when compared to the turnouts at general elections. In 1928, for instance, both Fess and Senator Burton, Republicans, gathered total votes exceeding 1,400,000. In 1926, Vic Donahey Democrat, was elected governor with a vote of 702,000 while the late Frank B. Willis was re-elected to the senate the same year with a total vote of 711,000.

The wets, supporting Bulkley, however were enthusiastic. They had won a senatorial nomination in the dry state of Ohio for the first time. They believe he will draw heavily from Republican ranks in the larger cities next November and they feel sentiment in the Buckeye state has changed since 1922 when Ohio voted down a constitutional amendment, legalizing wines and beers by a vote of 908,522 to 719,050.

The Alabama contest between Heflin and Bankhead will be very close if Tuesday's results mean anything. The total vote in the senatorial primary, about 125,000, was about 20 per cent less than the total vote cast for state offices. This apparently indicated many voters obeyed Heflin's injunction not to participate in the primary. On top of this, Heflin can draw heavily from the thousands of Alabama Republicans and Democrats, who joined with him in 1928 in bolting Smith.

The extent of his drawing power can be estimated by the Hoover-Smith vote in Alabama, when the Democratic presidential nominee carried the state by only 7,000 votes. Smith drew 127,797 to Hoover's 120,725. Heflin's followers believe he will get most of the Hoover votes and that many regular Democrats, who voted Tuesday, will remain at home next November. In his last campaign in 1924, Heflin won by 154,560 votes to his Republican opponent's 30,818. His friends feel a much reduced total will give him a victory in November.

The four contests will attract wide attention, not only because of the issues involved but because of the personalities of the men engaged. Norris, veteran insurgent and administration "trouble-maker," Hitchcock, former league of nations leader and friend of Woodrow Wilson; Heflin, the Alabama "wild-cat," the blind Gore, the multimillionaire Pine and the wet and dry nominees in Ohio.

HAWKS BREAKS WEST-EAST RECORD

Plans Even Faster Time; Weather Was "Perfect"

NEW YORK, Aug. 14. — Not satisfied with establishing a new trans-continental flight record of twelve hours, twenty-five minutes and three seconds. Captain Frank M. Hawks today announced he would soon attempt to cross the country in "real fast time." The new record is the fastest time ever made by man for such a distance.

Hawks, who arrived here last evening after his record-breaking dash from Los Angeles, which lowered the record of Colonel Chas. A. Lindbergh by more than two hours and twenty minutes, said that after the national air races when better atmospheric conditions and more helpful winds may be possible, he would make a new assault on his own record. He said he was confident he could lower his record spurt from coast to coast.

"At no time during the flight yesterday was my engine opened wide," the air racer said. "Flying conditions were almost perfect. I first had the moon to fly by on leaving Los Angeles and then the sun. I struck a little rain near St. Louis but soon came into clear weather again.

"I made the fastest time in my trip between Albuquerque and Wichita," he said. "A tail wind of thirty-four miles an hour followed me out of Albuquerque and stayed with me for 300 miles or more. I moved along at 250 miles an hour and could have increased that speed."

Hawks left Los Angeles at 6:16:27 a. m., New York time, and arrived at his goal here at 6:41:30 p. m., he halted for fuel at Albuquerque, Wichita and Indianapolis, stopping for about fifteen minutes each time.

At times Hawks flew at more than 10,000 feet.

Hawks said a great deal of his success was based on the splendid service and good time made by crews who refueled his ship at the three stops. He said they were men specially trained for the work and that they handled their jobs to perfection.

As soon as his plane is overhauled he will fly to Chicago to participate in the national air races the later part of this month.

Captain Hawks began his persistent attacks on the transcontinental records in 1929. Twice before he held the west to east record, losing it last Easter Sunday when Colonel Lindbergh made his record flight with Mrs. Lindbergh as his passenger.

Only a week ago he took off from New York and flew west in fourteen hours, fifty minutes and forty three seconds, beating the record for the westward flight made by Captain Roscoe Turner by more than four hours. He now holds both the eastward and westward records.

YOUTH LAUNCHES EFFORT TO CAPTURE JUNIOR TRANS-CONTINENTAL RECORD

Eighteen-Year-Old Flyer Would Lower Time Set By Young Goldsborough; Will Make Refueling Stops

WESTFIELD AIRPORT, N. J., Aug. 14.—Edward Schneider, 18-year-old Jersey City boy hopped off from here for Los Angeles at 5:55 o'clock (E. D. T.) in his Cessna 110-horsepower cabin monoplane. He hopes to lower the junior trans-continental record established by the late Frank Goldsborough.

The record east to west is thirty-three hours and twenty-five minutes.

Schneider carried eighty-three gallons of gas but at Wichita he will equip his plane with a gas tank of 200 gallons capacity.

The youthful pilot carried letters from Mayor Walker of New York and Mayor Hague of Jersey City to the Mayor of Los Angeles. From the coast city Schneider planned to make a return flight.

Schneider has flown 275 hours, including a nine-hour flight from Wichita to New York.

Goldsborough, who held both the eastward and westward records for junior flyers, was fatally injured in July near Bennington, Vt., when his plane crashed on a mountainside. Goldsborough's father, Brice Goldsborough, was a noted aviator. He went to his death in the plane Dawn which disappeared on an attempted trans-Atlantic flight.

Young Schneider is a high school graduate. His plane was purchased for him by his father, Emil A. Schneider, a resident of Jersey City.

EDUCATOR DIES

NEW CANAAN, Conn., Aug. 14. —Funeral services were held here today for Abram D. Wilt, 88, prominent business educator. Interment will be in Dayton, O., his former home.

WON'T COME DOWN

LAMBERT-ST. LOUIS FIELD, Aug. 14. — Swooping as gracefully as a gull the endurance plane "Greater St. Louis," possessor of the world championship record, sailed into its twenty-fifth day of sustained flight at 7:11 this morning. The pilots, Jackson and O'Brine, had been in the air 576 hours at this time.

DECOMPOSED BODY OF MISSING DAYTONIAN FOUND NEAR OSBORN

Suicide Verdict Is Found By Coroner; Had Slashed Neck

The decomposed body of L. J. Wagner, about 60, of 36 E. Hudson Ave., Dayton, who had been missing from his home since July 23, was discovered on the site of Old Osborn Wednesday afternoon by two boys, who were playing amid the ruins of the buildings.

Dr. R. L. Haines, Jamestown, county coroner, who viewed the body, said that in his opinion the man had killed himself, all indications pointing to suicide because of despondency.

An open razor was found tied to the right hand and a handkerchief was bound about the head and in the mouth as a gag. Coroner Haines expressed the belief Wagner had cut his throat and that the handkerchief covering the mouth was designed to prevent an outcry which would attract attention.

The two boys discovered the body near a wrecked building on the old road leading into the former village site from Fairfield. This is near a farm owned formerly by Wagner, who sold it to the Miami Conservancy district when Old Osborn was re-located on a new site.

The youths who made the discovery brought the news to Samuel Todd and William Mellen, Fairfield, who communicated with authorities.

Although the body was badly decomposed, partial identification was made by the teeth, clothing, a watch and an umbrella. Mrs. Wagner completed the identification.

Mrs. Wagner said her husband was accustomed to taking long walks and that she had not seen him since the morning of July 23 when he got up and went for a walk. She believed he had been brooding over the sale of his old farm. It developed that the man had been seen in the neighborhood by a farmer the day after he had disappeared.

Wagner had $6.50 when he left home three weeks ago but only 50 cents was found in his pockets. There was also a large empty bottle in one pocket.

Marks on the neck indicated the razor blade, also identified by Mrs. Wagner as belonging to her husband, had slit the left side of the neck to the bone. The razor was evidently tied to the right hand in order that it would not slip. The blade was opened downward.

The body was taken in charge by Morris and Sons, funeral directors at Osborn.

DOLLAR DAYS ARE BEING HELD

FRIDAY and Saturday will both be Dollar Days in Xenia, it was revealed Thursday in advertisements in this paper.

The double bargain feast is being sponsored by the Xenia Retail Merchants Association and merchants generally are co-operating in the mid-summer sale program.

Bargains based on the "dollar day" idea are offered in all lines of merchandise, and as a result, merchants promise that the buyer's dollar will go much farther during these two days than at any other time.

The bargain feast is being carried over to Saturday so that the usual Saturday shopping crowd will be able to take advantage of the offerings. Merchants expect that the usual preparations for school days will make the sales here especially interesting to parents and are offering many attractive bargain features that will help in buying economies.

DIRIGIBLE BEGINS HOMEWARD FLIGHT; HAS PERFECT START

May Break Eastern Record To Trip To Cardington

ST. HUBERT'S AIRFIELD, Montreal, Aug. 14.—Gaining speed with the break of dawn, the dirigible R-100 passed the island of Anticosti on the gulf of St. Lawrence at 5:15 a. m. today Eastern daylight time.

The airship was speeding towards Newfoundland at the rate of eighty miles per hour, keeping in direct touch with the radio control room here. Anticosti Island is approximately 540 miles from here.

The huge dirigible was favored by a takeoff from the huge mooring mast here so graceful that experienced observers lauded it as the "smoothest in history."

The majestic airship's visit to Canada terminated at 9:26 p. m. Eastern daylight time last night, when she leaped ahead of her scheduled departure by nearly half an hour with no more than a gentle swing and a faint rattle of mooring clamps slipped into the air and pointed her nose upward.

Gray in the reflected light of motor cars and spotlights, the largest and fastest air queen of the world swung eastward and within eight minutes had disappeared in the dark skies. Three of her six engines roared au revoir to Canada.

The thirteen newspapermen and official Canadian government observers aboard as passengers peered down into the faces of thousands of cheering persons. Below them, momentarily, they spied

Lina Basquette, former dancer and actress, widow of Sam Warner, is recovering from a suicide attempt in Hollywood. She swallowed a draught following a party at her home. Friends say she was grieving for her two-year-old daughter, Lina, who was adopted by Warner's brother, Harry, when the dancer married Peverell Marley, film actor. Miss Basquette has since left Marley in hope of regaining the child, in which she has failed.

FOUR SENATE RACES TO CLAIM INTEREST AT NOVEMBER POLLS

Prohibition Issue to Turn Attention To Ohio Contest

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—Four senatorial battles will engage public interest next November, it appeared today, as a result of Tuesday's primaries.

The quartet of contests will find Senator George W. Norris (R) matched against former Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock (D) in Nebraska; Senator William B. Pine (R) oil millionaire, opposing former Senator Thomas P. Gore, the blind Democrat, in Oklahoma; Senator Roscoe McCulloch (R) against Robert J. Bulkley (D) of Ohio, and Senator Thomas J. Heflip repudiated by his state party fighting for another term against John H. Bankhead, regular Democratic nominee in Alabama.

The Ohio contest will be fought on the prohibition issue, since Bulkley is dripping wet and McCulloch bone dry. In the other states, all the nominees are classed as dry.

The defection of Norris in 1928, when he supported Alfred E. Smith for president, alone will make the Nebraska contest close. Some Republican regulars have declared they will bolt Norris in November but Senator Simeon D. Fess, new Republican national chairman, has declared his organization will support the Nebraska insurgent.

The light vote polled by Norris and by the whole Republican ticket in Nebraska's primary throws some doubt on the outcome. The total vote Tuesday was less than 200,000 far less than the 345,000 total given Hoover in 1928, or even the 274,000 Norris drew when he was re-elected in 1924. On the other hand, Nebraska Democracy has seldom exceeded a strength of 200,000 votes and Hitchcock drew but 148,000 when he was defeated for re-election in 1922. The results of former elections rather show Norris will be re-elected, despite opposition in his own party.

The Oklahoma race may be closer, with Gore likely to be a favorite. For one thing, the Democrats got out a 335,000 vote in Tuesday's primary, one of the largest totals ever recorded for them in Okla-

Two Hold-Up Men And Look-Out Companion Escape After Robbery In Auto; Southern Ohio Police Search For Trio

Holding three employes and a customer at bay with drawn revolvers, two youthful bandits, unmasked, robbed the National Bank at Waynesville, O., between $600 and $700 in currency about 10:15 o'clock Thursday morning and escaped in an automobile driven by a third companion.

John O. Cartwright, vice president of the bank; L. M. Henderson, cashier; Miss Helen Welch, bookkeeper, and a man who was a customer were in the bank when the two youths entered. Each stood at a different window and Cashier Henderson's attention was first attracted to them when one announced they "mean't business."

The youth standing in front of Mr. Cartwright's window commanded him to "hand over what you've got." The vice president pulled open a drawer and handed over six or seven piles of currency each amounting to $100, whereupon the hold-up pair walked out of the bank and jumped into an auto parked at the corner with a third man at the wheel. The customer who was in the bank at the time was ordered back into a corner while the robbery was in progress.

The bandit car, described as a brown Ford sedan with wire wheels, turned onto North St. at the bank corner and headed west along a road which would eventually bring it to a highway connecting Dayton and Lebanon.

Bank officials notified authorities of Xenia, Dayton and Lebanon and other surrounding cities. Police Chief O. H. Cornwell arranged to have the Cincinnati Pike closely watched for the bandit machine. Sheriff Fulkerth of Warren County hurried to the scene of the holdup.

Officials of the bank were engaged in checking Thursday morning to ascertain definitely the exact amount of the loot but the currency stolen is not thought to have exceeded $700.

The two youths who perpetrated the robbery were about 25 years of age. One passerby, although ignorant of the hold-up, noticed the bandit car drive away.

AVIATOR ADMITS HE PILOTED AIRPLANE THAT BOMBED MINES

Flyer Declares He Was Forced To Fly Bombers

MURPHYSBORO, Ill., Aug. 14.—Authorities today were to investigate the story told by Paul Montgomery local aviator, who confessed to piloting an airplane from which non-union coal fields near Providence, Ky., were bombed last Monday and said he was compelled to do so at the point of a gun.

Montgomery at first denied being involved in the bombing, but later admitted before department of justice and department of commerce officials and Sheriff William Flannigan that he had flown the plane. Nine bombs were dropped as miners were on their way to work, and six exploded. No one was injured, and the damage was slight.

Montgomery, a member of a prominent family, was held for extradition to Kentucky. He said he went to the Murphysboro airport with two girls and another young man for an early morning flight after a party, and was accosted by two men who forced him to fly them over the coal fields under death threat. He refused to identify the two men, saying he feared reprisals.

The aerial bombing came in the midst of a labor war which has been in progress for some time in the mine fields near Providence.

THREE INJURED BY AIR TANK BLAST

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 14.—Three workmen were recovering today from injuries which they received when a compressed air tank in the La Belle steel mill here exploded yesterday.

The injured men are Michael Stancewicz, 35, and Dan Murovich, 34, both of Pittsburgh, and Clarence J. Bachman 22, of Mt. Washington. The two local men were seriously burned about the hands and face as they attempted to extinguish the fire which followed the blast. Bachman received lacerations on the hands and arms.

DEMOCRATS GATHER TO DISCUSS COMING CAMPAIGN IN STATE

Republicans Plan To Confer Later; Set Convention Date

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 15.—Plans for the Democratic fall campaign in Ohio will be considered at a conference here this afternoon.

The conferees, including state nominees chosen at Tuesday's primaries, and other leaders of that party, will meet at Democratic state headquarters.

Nominees on the Republican state ticket will confer here sometime after Governor Myers Y. Cooper returns from Washington, D. C., where he is meeting with President Hoover and governors of other states in an effort to map out a program of relief for farmers in the drought-stricken states.

Indications today were that the Democratic state convention may be held here on Tuesday, August 26. A majority of the Democratic nominees prefer this date, it was stated. The Republican convention may be held about the same time. The state platforms of the two parties will be adopted at these conventions.

Strong pressure is being brought to bear upon Democratic leaders seeking adoption of a wet plank in the Democratic platform, in view of the nomination of former Congressman Robert J. Bulkley, Cleveland, for United States senator.

Henry G. Brunner, Mansfield, is scheduled to be re-elected for another two-year term as chairman of the Democratic state executive committee. He has held this office during the past three years, following the resignation of Thomas Dye, Urbana, as head of this committee.

Some opposition has developed to the retention of Arthur A. Nixon, Dayton, as chairman of the Republican state executive committee. A number of Republicans are urging that Charles R. Frederickson, Coshocton manufacturer, who managed Governor Cooper's gubernatorial campaign in 1926, be placed again at the head of this committee.

SEVEN PRISONERS FLEE COUNTY JAIL

GREENVILLE, O., Aug. 14.—Search for seven prisoners who escaped from the county jail here through a basement window Wednesday was continued today by a posse headed by Sheriff Samuel MacBride.

The men now enjoying a period of freedom are Arthur Ely, 25, of Union City; Otto Davis, 20; William Gibson, 18, and Donald Driner, 17, all of Muncie, Indiana; D. R. Rench, 19, and K. E. Rench, 18, cousins; and Arthur Horner, 20. All of the escaped prisoners were awaiting transfer to either the Ohio Reformatory at Mansfield or the Ohio State Penitentiary, at Columbus, on theft charges.

The prisoners gained their freedom by prying a bar loose in the bull pen and then loosening another bar in a basement window. Four other men who were in the bull pen at the time refused to participate in the wholesale delivery.

FESS NAMES HER

A former pupil of Senator Simeon Fess, chairman of G. O. P. national committee, when he was president of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, O., Mrs. Ellis A. Yost, national committeewoman from West Virginia, has been named director of women's activities in the party. She succeeds Mrs. Louise M. Dodson of Iowa, who resigned as a protest against what she believed unfair treatment of her former chief, Claudius H. Huston.

Fugitive Killed In Auto; Companion Makes Escape

DETROIT, Aug. 14. — Detroit's fifteenth gangland slaying in forty days occurred here today as preparations were completed for a twenty-three man grand jury investigation into crime conditions and the slaying of Gerald E. Buckley, crime-crusading radio announcer.

The guns of the underworld had been dormant since the murder of the radio idol July 23. They barked again today when Genaro Mangipani, 31, a fugitive from justice from New York, was shot and killed while driving his automobile.

Mangipani, who has a police record, was slain by a gunman who was riding with him in his car. After riddling his victim's back with five bullets, the assassin jumped from the automobile and escaped.

Police were unable to provide a definite motive for the slaying. They said, however, that he was a "petty" racketeer and that his death may have resulted from those activities. He had previously been arrested on burglary and larceny charges in New York City.

Prior to the slaying of Buckley, ten gagnsters had been slain in a two week period. Coupled with four other slayings and today's murder the toll was brought to fifteen.

The twenty-three man grand jury probe, which climaxed Buckley's violent death in the foyer of the LaSalle Hotel, will also delve into the general crime situation here.

COL. HORACE MANN TO FORM POLITICAL MACHINE FOR SOUTH

Lays Foundation For Uprising Among Hoovercrats

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—While administration leaders scoffed, and refused to take the movement seriously, Col. Horace H. Mann proceeded grimly today with the organization of a political machine in the South which will be diametrically opposed to the dictates of the White House and the Republican national committee.

The man who led the southern delegates to Kansas City in 1928 to ballot en masse for Herbert Hoover, and then failed to receive the recognition in southern affairs he thought due him, already claims to have laid the foundation for his uprising. With M. O. Dunning and Glenn Skipper, ousted Republican national committeemen from Georgia and Florida, respectively, as his principal lieutenants, Mann has assembled two meetings of disgruntled Dixie Republicans, and plans a third tomorrow in Atlanta. His next step, he says, will be the opening of "an intensive educational campaign," which will include use of the radio, distribution of literature, and even acquisition of newspapers at strategic points.

Great mystery surrounded the last gathering of the Mann clan, said to have been held here yesterday and the day before. First intimation that bolters from the Hoover organization were even in town came through the medium of a lengthy statement from Mann saying the meeting had been concluded and announced a "declaration of principles" thereat adopted. The colonel refused to say specifically who had met with him other than that it was his executive committee, but he asserted every state in the South but Mississippi was represented.

In administration quarters, this fact drew the comment it probably had been a "one-Mann meeting." The men who are in control of the national organization were inclined to belittle Mann's efforts. Mann has stated he will lead an army of "uninstructed and uncontested" delegates to that convention as against the array of Hoover supporters he collected together in 1928.

Mann was careful to state that this organization, "based on principle rather than patronage," is not for or against any candidate for office, but that he no longer regards President Hoover as highly as he once did might be gathered from this additional statement:

"The present depression represents no failure of Republican policies, but a failure promptly and fully to apply Republican policies."

An application for charter is to be filed, possibly tomorrow, at Atlanta for the new political organization. A suite of offices already has been leased in the Georgia city for permanent headquarters.

GUNMEN KILL WIFE OF BOOTLEGGER

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 14.—Gunmen, believed by police to have been attempting to assinate Rocco Perri, wealthy alleged Ontario bootlegger, early today shot to death his common-law wife, Mrs. Bessie Perri, 35, as the couple arrived home from a party.

The slayers hid in a car in the Perri garage and let loose a hail of slugs as Perri and his wife appeared.

MARATHON DANCER HELD FOR BURGLARY

DETROIT, Aug. 14.—Emmett McClellan, 22-year-old marathon dancer of Sandusky, O., and Mrs. Lena Farber, wife of a convicted Indianapolis bootlegger, are being held by police today for authorities at Indianapolis where they are under indictment for alleged participation in fifteen burglaries.

About $500 worth of alleged loot was recovered from their room in a fashionable hotel where they were arrested.

McClellan has taken part in marathon dances in various sections of the country. He at one time danced 1,400 consecutive hours. He is a dapper looking youth. Mrs. Farber, his sweetheart, police said, is the wife of Fred Farber, who is now said to be serving a term in the Marion County, Indiana, jail on liquor charges.

CYCLONE HITS NAPLES, ITALY

NAPLES, Italy, Aug. 14.—A violent cyclone struck Naples today, killing three persons and injuring twenty.

The terrified population sought refuge in the churches, praying loudly for cessation of the howling storm. All booths in the market place were smashed and littered about the streets.

The sea pounded fiercely, crashing huge waves upon the shore.

YOUTH KILLED WHEN PINNED UNDER AUTO

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Aug. 14.—One youth is dead and another is in a critical condition at Union Hospital here today as the result of an automobile crash near Beach City last midnight.

Bruce Wallick, 19, of Dover, died a few hours after the accident. Roland Beaver, 24, also of Dover, driver of the car, is suffering from a possible fractured skull, a fractured hip and serious internal injuries.

FARMER KILLS TWO MEN CAUGHT STEALING POTATOES; IS HELD

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 14.—Lester Coy, 23-year-old Toledo farmer, shot and killed two unidentified workmen today as they fled from his potato patch with two dollars worth of potatoes they had allegedly dug on Coy's property.

Coy called the sheriff's office in Toledo after the slayings and then went to bed and to sleep, according to police. He is at liberty pending an inquest.

One of the dead men was about 19 years old and apparently undernourished, authorities said. The second man was about 45 years old. Both were dressed in overalls.

Coy told deputies that during the past six months thieves have dug $200 worth of potatoes from his farm just east of the Toledo city limits.

When Coy discovered the men in his patch this morning, he opened fire with a shotgun. Both were killed.

ENDURANCE RECORD-CARRIES MAN TWO MILES

CLEVELAND, Aug. 14.—Another record for a new type of endurance contests was added to the already heavy list here today by one Paul Poltarec, a core maker, who yesterday had the pleasure of dumping his friend, Rudolf Ravas, a carpenter, into Lake Erie after carrying him two miles on his back.

Poltarec, incidently, won a bet of twenty-five cents. It was for the bet that he declared, in a moment of boastfulness, that he could carry Ravas for the two miles without dropping him. The privilege of tosssing Ravas into the lake at the end of the trip was decided upon as an added reward.

The men, who had announced their pending contest in the afternoon papers yesterday, were followed by more than 200 persons as the "ride" got under way.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY XENIA KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS HERE

Henry Walsh Xenia, was elected grand knight of Xenia Council, No. 1801, Knights of Columbus at an election and installation of officers held jointly at the club rooms here Tuesday evening.

J. Linn Cochran, Dayton, district deputy who supervised the ceremonies and Charles J. Brennan, Dayton, former district deputy, both addressed the Xenia Knights and Joseph Abel Dayton, recited. Members of the Dayton degree team attended the meeting.

Other officers elected were: William Baker, Yellow Springs, deputy grand knight; T. J. Canning, chancellor; Martin Berry, warden; Charles Weber, advocate; J. T. Hibbert, trustee; James McCurran, treasurer; Lawrence Whittington, recorder; Bryan Monahan, inside guard and William Rachford, outside guard.

Refreshments were served after the election.

WOMAN IS SUDDENLY CLAIMED BY DEATH

Suffering a cerebral hemorrhage while on her way home in Clifton, Mrs. Anna Elizabeth Reed, 67, was found dead on the sidewalk, near her home Wednesday night at 10:30 o'clock. Mrs. Reed had only been dead a few minutes when found by Adam Brewer, also of Clifton. Dr. J. H. Harris, who was called, said death had been instantaneous.

Mrs. Reed was born in Kentucky but had spent the greater part of her life in Clifton. Her husband, William, preceded her in death several years. She was a member of the Methodist Church in Clifton. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Aden Barlow, Cedarville and three sons, Lester and Stanley Reed, Cedarville and Arthur Reed, Clifton. Two sisters, Mrs. Stephen Whalen and Mrs. Louis Boolman, both of Springfield, and nine grandchildren survive.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home in Clifton and burial will be made in the Clifton Cemetery.

"A WONDERFUL HELP TO ME"

Dothan, Ala.—"What a wonderful help Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been to me. I was so nervous and rundown I couldn't be up half the time. When I had taken one bottle of Vegetable Compound I could tell I felt better, so I took seven bottles and I recommend it highly. It helped my nerves and keeps me strong to do my housework and wait on four little children. I hope some other suffering woman will try it." —Mrs. Porter L. Arnold, 1013 S. W. C. T. U. UNION ELECTS OFFICERS

Election of officers was held Wednesday afternoon when members of McClelland W. C. T. U. met at the home of Mrs. J. S. Van Eaton, Van Eaton Road. The election resulted as follows: president-Mrs. William Weiss; vice president, Mrs. Clint Manor; recording secretary, Miss Myrtle Barnett; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Walter Hess; treasurer, Mrs. R. L. Gowdy and parliamentarian, Mrs. J. S. Van Eaton.

The regular business meeting was held and took the place of a program. Wednesday's meeting marked the close of the point contest with the side captained by Miss Myrtle Barnett winning. The losing side, captained by Mrs. William Weiss, will entertain the winners, the time and place to be announced later.

Thirty women were present at the meeting Wednesday afternoon and following the business meeting a refreshment course was served by Mrs. Van Eaton, assisted by Mrs. William Butcher and Mrs. James Hollingshead.

HERR-SHIPLEY NUPTIALS PERFORMED AT PARSONAGE

In a quiet ceremony performed at the parsonage of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, W. Market with the Rev. W. N. Shank officiating, Miss Margaret Herr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Herr, W. Third St. became the bride of Mr. Herbert Shipley, Lancaster, O., Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Shipley was attired in a suit of maize satin with accessories in a harmonizing shade. She carried an arm bouquet of Bernet roses and orchid scabiosa. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Shain, Cincinnati, brother-in-law and sister of the bride. Mrs. Shain wore a navy blue crepe suit with hat and footwear of the same shade and carried Killarney roses.

After a two weeks' trip through the East Mr. and Mrs. Shipley will be at home at 317 S. Columbus St., Lancaster, where Mr. Shipley is employed in an official capacity by the Hocking Glass Co., and is also conductor of the Rainbow Revelers Orchestra.

BRIDE-ELECT HONORED AT PARTY WEDNESDAY

Mrs. John Finlay and Miss Mary Beals entertained at the home of the former on S. Galloway St., Wednesday afternoon in honor of their sister, Miss Ethel Beals, bride-elect of Mr. Dwight Bennett. The party was in the nature of a miscellaneous shower and Miss Beals was 'showered" with a lovely array of gifts.

Thirty-five guests were entertained during the afternoon. Mrs. John Ray was winner in a contest and she presented her prize to the guest of honor. Large baskets of gladioli, carrying out a color scheme of pink and white, were used about the rooms of the Finlay home. Late in the afternoon a [illegible] course was served by the hostesses.

THROUGH THE MICROPHONE

BY BROADCASTER

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—The hospital of the air, as Tom Noonan's Sunday afternoon broadcasting from the Chinatown Mission is, sometimes called, has completed its winter's work. Now the summer lull gives him a chance to tally the results in the numbers of wheel chairs, crutches, braces, radios, phonographs and other things which have been distributed over the radio to needy cripples, shut-ins and others.

The necessary articles are supplied by members of Tom's radio audience who listen-in to the services in the hope that they may be able to help some less fortunate person .This audience stretches out from the Rescue Society at 5 and 7 Doyers St., in New York and along the Atlantic coast from Boston to Baltimore through a special five-station hook-up. The services which are conducted by the "Bishop of Chinatown," are non-denominational in every respect and requests and gifts alike are all considered without respect to race, creed or color.

The check-up for the season from September to May shows the following approximate totals: wheelchairs, 34; crutches, 38 pairs; leg braces and artificial limbs, 30; radios, 81; phonographs, 68; and ear phones, 640. In addition, there have been scores of special gifts of bicycles, baby carriages, canes, pianos, cuckoo clocks, ear-trumpets, pets, toys and clothing.

No important request is sent out as an appeal to the radio audience until it has been investigated by a competent and reliable authority. When medical assistance is required, the case is usually referred to a local institution and where treatment is expensive, gifts of money are often made. In several cases where blood transfusions, have been necessary, donors have volunteered to give their blood without cost. In almost every case investigated, the requests have come from persons in real need.

Not all of the appeals which come in to the Chinatown Rescue Mission are for material things. Last winter, one hymn was sung for a young man who was spending his last week in the death house at Sing Sing, and more than one prayer has been said to comfort the widows of police and firemen who had lost their lives on duty. There have been many emergency pleas to broadcast the name of some member of a family who had become estranged or lost touch, to return because a father or mother was dying, or was dead. And now and then a message would come from a child pleading for the return of a deserting parent.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14—The radio industry owes its existence to the new economic theory which recognizes the workman as the purchaser of goods as well as their producer ,in the opinion of H. B. Richmond, president of the Radio Manufacturers Association.

Speaking over the Columbia Broadcasting System recently, Richmond said the radio industry in turn "has contributed much to our national prosperity. In a decade, the radio broadcast industry has grown in volume from nothing to a billion dollars a year."

"The Influence of Radio on Prosperity" was the topic discussed by the industrial leader, who faced the microphone in Columbia's new station, WPG, at Atlantic City. His talk was one of the weekly series on Romance of American Industry arranged in co-operation with the Washington branch of the American Trade Association Executives.

Richmond described the immensity of the radio business, saying: "In this decade, the annual sale of radio products has leaped to a figure at least twice that of all sales of sporting goods, and yet the demand for athletic equipment dates back at least to the days of the ancient Greeks and Romans."

"Following the war," he said, "there appeared to be a decline in the interest of music, both in the part of individual participants and in concert attendance. We were being criticized as a materialistic people. There is today a nation-wide awakening. People who have never before felt the beauty of music are responding. Can there be any question as to the important part the national distribution by radio of the concerts of our greatest orchestras or the songs by the great artists has had in this growing consciousness of the importance of music in our lives?

"There can be no quetsion but that radio has replaced the special editions of newspapers as the quickest medium of broadcasting the results of special events. It is equally certain that radio broadcasting is a most important factor in making us news-conscious and thereby exciting a desire to read the full story in the press.

"A ten-minute news summary by radio seldom covers over 1,000 words. On this basis, and with most liberal allowances for headings, it would take at least an hour to present the material of a single solid page of a metropolitan daily. No, the radio is a salesman for the newspaper, rather than its competitor."

NEW YORK, Aug. 14—Representatives of the broadcasting industry and educators have made plans to co-operate for the purpose of encouraging and fostering educational broadcasting in this country, according to Levering Tyson, author of "Education Tunes In: A Study of Radio Broadcasting in Adult Education," published by the American Association for Adult Education. The study is based upon a six months' survey of the possibilities of radio in adult education, made by Tyson for the Association with the co-operation of well-known educators, representatives of the radio industry and the Advisory Committee on Education by Radio appointment by the secretary of the interior.

According to the report, representatives of the broadcasting industry have assured educators that broadcasting facilities will be made available as soon as eductors devise programs that are educationally sound and at the same time adapted to the peculiar demands of broadcasting.

"One of the greatest obstacles to the development of educational broadcasting in the past," the report states, "has been the educators' insistence upon the retention of certain practices that have become traditional in our educational system. They have not realized that a lecture which is perfectly adapted to the class room may be useless for radio purposes. A class assembled before a teacher is compelled to listen to him for the length of the class period—forty, fifty or sixty minutes, as the case may be. But radio audiences is under no such compulsion."

A great deal of broadcasting that can be classified as educational is now being done in the United States. With the co-operation of persons interested in adult education in various parts of the country, Tyson has collected data which show that, over a period of four months in 1929, there were broadcast 1,169 programs which had definitely educational significance. Many of these programs were sent out by stations owned and operated by state universities and other educational institutions. Arranged in order of their popularity the list of subjects on which the programs were based is: health, home economics, English, music, history, religion, business, child training, sociology and community advancement science, agriculture, drama, political science, sport news, languages, fine arts and library and museum service.

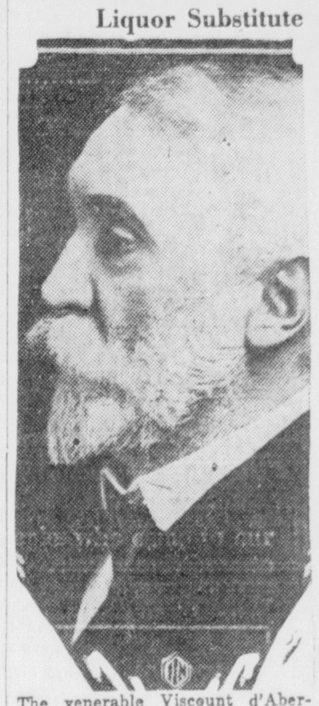
"The listening public is not interested in a "course," Tyson declares. "It wants to listen to lectures or talks that are sound in subject matter, spiritually, artistically or intellectually helpful and stimulating and attractively presented. The American public will eventually want to see established, educators believe, some constant source of supply of educational broadcasting material, and this the educational world of America should provide. Educational, however, will never be demanded at the expense of entertainment and emotional thrill; broadcasters need not worry about that. As time goes on there will probably be an increasing demand for such features as broadcasting of a presidential inauguration and of other events of general public interest. These broadcasts are valuable, but they should not be allowed to obscure the need for educational programs that possess academic soundness and a reasonable degree of continuity.

"Fields such as science, agriculture, home economics, parental education, nature lore, travel, public health and safety, to mention only a few of them, offer almost unlimited possibilities for educational broadcasting."

A chapter of the report is devoted to educational broadcasting in Europe. Great Britain, Denmark, Austria and Germany have made definite provision for it in their national broadcasting programs. Tyson advocates a study of European methods for the purpose of applying them, wherever feasible, to conditions in the United States.

Until recently there has been no central agency to develop educational broadcasting. Within recent weeks, however, the National Advisory Council on Radio in Education has been organized with this particular object in view. Tyson has been appointed director of the council. The council will make plans for and encourage educational broadcasting and act as a clearing house for information.

British Peer Seeks Liquor Substitute



The venerable Viscount d'Abernon, chairman of the wartime Liquor Control Board, has startled liquor interests by declaring that the world greatly needs a substitute for alcohol as a beverage. "Alcohol does badly what it sets out to do," is the explanation given by Lord d'Abernon of his stand.

Hamon Fortune Gone

Once she expected to be a millionairess, now Olive Belle Hamon, daughter of Jake L. Hamon, slain multi-millionaire oil man and Republican national committeeman of Oklahoma, is playing in vaudeville, appearing five times a day. After legal difficulties were untangled and taxes paid, the $13,000,000 estate had dwindled to nothing. Her stage name is Loma Worth and she is in Los Angeles at present.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE DAY OF JUDGMENT—Many will say to men in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity.—Matthew 7:22, 23.

MISSIONARIES IN CHINA

According to reports coming out of China, an American missionary, who had spent more than 35 years attempting to convert Chinese to Christianity, was stabbed to death in the recent sacking of Changsha by the socalled "Communist" army. All the other Americans in Changsha had been evacuated. This aged missionary, who pinned his hope to the Chinese friends he had made in his long residence in the district, chose to stay. There are two ways of looking at such a decision. One is that he who prays and runs away may live to pray another day. The other points to a martyr's crown.

American diplomatic and naval officers have no authority to compel Americans in the interior of China to come within range of their gunboats; but as gunboats can't climb hills or navigate paddy fields, anyone who wants protection must come to them. All the government in Washington and its agents in China can do is to warn Americans in the interior of their danger and urge them to come out to where they can be covered by American guns. The government has done that repeatedly during the present disorders.

The authorities in Nanking, who have lost practically all of the country north of the Yangtsze to the Yen-Feng faction and are now assailed in the rear by a proletarian revolution, confess their inability to afford protection to foreigners in the area overrun by the "Communists." There is only one thing for the foreigners, if they wish to save their lives, to do—and that is to get out, at least temporarily. One can see the point of view of the missionary who remained in Changsha to be stabbed to death; but it is doubtful that in China a Christian church will spring from the blood of such martyrs. The very friends he depnded on were proscribed and went down in the first slaughter by the sans culottes who took the city. Well intentioned and loyal as their native friends may be, at a moment like this the bodily salvation of foreign missionaries, if not their spiritual salvation, will be found more likely under the guns of their warships than in the friendship of those who themselves are marked by the enemy for death.

TRAGIC REMINDER

The applause that followed the recent pronouncement of the governors of seven southern states against lynching had hardly ceased echoing around the country before a mob stormed a county jail in northern Indiana, took from the authorities two Negro prisoners and summarily hanged them. This is a tragic reminder that the primitive urge to take the law into one's own hands knows no Mason and Dixon line. Only the District of Columbia and South Dakota, New Jersey and the six New England states are shown by the records to have been free of lynchings between 1889 and 1928.

The crimes to which the police claim the victims of the Indiana mob confessed are the most revolting on the calendar. The Negroes shot and killed a young man and then assaulted his girl companion. There can be no pity for them, if they were guilty; but there is pity for a community that lets its passions run as wild as theirs. An electric chair awaits murderers in Indiana. The accused were already in the hands of the law ; and a jury chosen from the same element that composed the mob would have sent them to a legal death, without compunction.

Another community has added a collective crime to an individual crime by itself overriding the law and stigmatizing it as inadequate. Complete submission to the orderly process of the law in this country is a distant goal, which will be reached only by slow and persistent steps. One of these is to visit the penalty for murder on those who commit it collectively, as inexorably as on those who commit it one by one.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

CAN YOU BE QUIET?

Most of man's troubles, said the philosopher Pascal, come from his inability to be still. Can you rest? Relax? Be quiet? Many cannot. Many men find they are too restless to sit down, to spend a week-end at a quiet place, too restless to put in an evening at home reading or thinking. They must have ceaseless activity. A kind of substitute for relaxation comes in constant movement. Some like to drive an automobile at high speed, not because there is any hurry but because there is a sort of relief to the unhappy tenseness of the nerves in rapid movement. If you are one of the victims of this inability to be still you ought to take yourself in hand. Perhaps you ought to have a thorough physical examination by a good doctor. Perhaps you ought to consult the best nerve specialist you know. You may be sure there is something the matter with you if you are keyed up to the point you cannot rest and relax in normal, natural fashion. The bowstring must not be always tight. The bow must be unstrung. If you can not do it there is something wrong in your manner of living.

MISJUDGING THE FARMER

A Brooklyn preacher, back from a trip through the middle west, says the farmer is better off than ever before. He says he saw few farmers who did not have radios and motor cars.

That's too light a judgment of the farmer. The preacher didn't look far enough and long enough. In the first place there are thousands of farmers who do not have radios and automobiles. In the second place what what if they do have radios and cars? What does it mean? Radios are cheap. So are cars. A man, by small installment paying, may have both. Surely the farmer deserves both. He is cut off from human contact to a greater degree than other men. And the possession of these things does not mean he is prosperous. He may be poor, doing badly, getting underpaid for his product and over-changed for his purchases and still have a few comforts that he has bought by long sacrifice. Nobody can judge the farmer so quickly and say that he is well off.

HAPPY DAYS

It is a happy thought of an admirer of the great fairy tale writer, Hans Anderson, to give to the birth-place of the author an Andersen memorial hall. In the town of Odense, Denmark, the hall stands next to the birth-place of the men whose imagination peopled a world of fairy folks for children. It is pleasant now and then to note that men who never rattled a sword or led a heroic cause are remembered for the good they did and the happiness they brought.

SELFISH DRIVING

Let's not think we are good automobile drivers just because we watch out for ourselves and our passengers with the geratest care. The policy of concentrating on our own car and our own driving is not a good one, though it sounds reasonable. The good driver watches out for the other fellow also. There's no such thing as being independent in motor driving.

Ex-Kaiser's Church

"In the Question Box appearing in our Daily Northwestern, you made the erroneous statement that the ex-kaiser is a member of the Lutheran church, which has been the state church of Prussia for many years.

"The ex-kaiser was a member of the 'Reformed church.' He endeavored to force a church union in Prussia, forcing Lutherans and Reformed to be one church body called 'The Prussian Union,' which union was the Prussian state church."

WAS THERE ever such a person as "Mother Goose"?

In 1860 a story was started to the effect that "Mother Goose" was a Boston woman; and she was later identified as Elizabeth Goose, widow of Isaac Vergoose, or Goose, and the mother-in-law of Thomas Fleet, a Boston printer, who issued a collection of the Mother Goose Melodies in 1719. However, it is now conceded that "Mother Goose" belongs to French folklore and not to English tradition. There is no reason to think that "Mother Goose" was a term used in English literature until it was translated from the French equivalent, "Mere l'Oye."

Of Indian Origin

What was the origin of the word caucus?

The word caucus was first used in Boston in the early part of the eighteenth century as the name of a political club, the "Caucus" or the "Caucus club," where public questions were discussed and arrangements made for local elections. The word is said to have been derived from an Indan word, kaw-kaw-was, meaning to talk.

Four-Leafed Clover

Why is it considered good luck to find a four-leafed clover?

America's Bread Basket

What states produce the bulk of the wheat in the United States?

Kansas, North Dakota, Montana, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Washington, South Dakota, Idaho and Illinois lead the states in the production of wheat and in the order named. Kansas produced 177,833,000 bushels in 1928, according to the department of agriculture.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK—Old Dave Belasco addressed the congregation recently, his text being "The Talkies." In the course of his remarks he referred to them as the "Squawkies." He has since been credited with originating the term and so far as I've been able to learn has not taken the trouble to deny it.

It's a very small thing and really doesn't make any difference; but the term "squawkies" didn't originate with Belasco.

David is not an originator. Like Confucius, he merely transmits.

It was for the Belascos of the world that quotation marks were devised.

ANCIENT DAVID

Years ago when Belasco and the elder DeMille were producing in partnership, in the course of a rehearsal DeMille voiced objection to a line in the play. The author spoke up:

"Why, Mr. DeMille," he said, "that's not my line. The Ancient David said that."

"Yeah," said DeMille, disgustedly, "that sounds like Belasco!"

HOBSON'S HASH

The average theatrical producer makes the mistake of trying to force on the public something he thinks the public should swallow.

The procedure, in its conception, is like that of the eating house proprietor in a wild little border-town out West. In some fashion, never explained, the proprietor obtained a Sherry-Netherland menu which he went to the trouble of daily reproducing, in type. The hungry visitor scanning the array of delectable ailments would call for some fluffy dish, whereupon the proprietor, spinning his six-shooter on the forefinger of his right hand, would drawl:

"Th, hash is pretty good today, stranger!"

QUIZ

"On the right," said the sight seeing bus barker, "we have the Rockefeller home."

"The John D. Rockefeller home?" queried the out-of-town passenger.

"No," said the barker, "the Penrcy Rockefeller home."

"No," said the barker, "Harold Vanderbilt's."

The Pyne home was encountered next.

"Moses Taylor Pyne, eh," said the man from the hinterland.

And only a few minutes thereafter the barker cried aloud:

"YOU ask him, he said.

FIGURES DO NOT LIE

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Senator Coleman L. Blease of South Carolina, who wants to succeed himself in Washington, is meeting with a good bit of opposition, from what I hear, for the Democratic renomination, which everyone recognizes as an ironclad guarantee of election in his state.

Why he is being fought, it seems to me, is easy enough to understand.

Not in years, if ever, has the country had "Coley" Blease's equal at getting up in the senate and, in ringing tones and the plainest terms, describing spades so that no one possibly can mistake them for anything but spades.

This is considered very poor taste, by folk who make a practice of referring even to a scoopshovel as a silver teaspoon.

Smug respectability frequently does things that it will not admit—or even discuss tolerantly.

Senator Blease insists on admitting whatever he knows is going on all around him—and talking about it—as, for example, drinking, under prohibition; an occasional lynching—subjects which most of his associates think ought to be ignored entirely or mentioned only in whispers.

Urged to "shush," he simply throws off all restraint and sometimes almost overdoes matters, in an obvious effort to puncture affectation and conventionality.

Illustratively, he practically defends lynch law in certain circumstances.

It sounds like sixty, undeniably.

Nevertheless, I have my doubts if the South Carolina solon is more bloodthirsty than various other statesmen, who, maybe, view necktie parties, for an especial class of offenses, much as he does, but are too discreet to say so.

In short, his candor appears to me to be Senator Blease's outstanding characteristic, rather than any exceptional streak of savagery in him. In fact, somewhat to the contrary, one of the principal complaints against him, as governor of the Palmetto commonwealth, was that he granted entirely too many pardons.

"Coley" unquestionably does derive a great deal of satisfaction from the laceration of standardized sensibilities.

He has a genuine gift for irreverent utterances—not religiously irreverent; he inclines to the fundamentalistic in that respect—but politically so. His language is picturesque, to express it displomatically. As soon as he takes the senate floor, all hands prepare to be shocked—and "Coley" seldom disappoints them.

I believe he is the ablest debunker in his house of congress.

Senator Pat Harrison can make funnier speeches and Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway is wittier in debate, but neither of them can say, in effect, "Aw! blah!" with the telling effect than Senator Blease can.

That "Coley" must have a fine crop of enemies is perfectly comprehensible.

If he is as indifferent to his home voters' likes and dislikes as he is of the senate's, the wonder is that he is the most-elected politician ever produced by South Carolina—as his record indicates.

To be sure, his detractors assert that this is not the case—that his appeal chiefly is to the rabble.

If so, how does it happen that he hails from so dry a state?—and yet has said more contemptuous things concerning prohibition than any half dozen senators, from wet states, put together?

My personal impression is that he is as independent as any Democrat who ever wore a toga.

Peter's Adventures

SOMETHING'S WRONG!

If someone had given the Ants a pound of sugar for a feast, they could have been no more excited than at Peter's offer to help them carry their burdens. For one awful moment Peter fancied he was going to be smothered. With hoarse cries the Ants again pressed 'round him. Then Peter saw the Ants had turned their backs and were bending and snatching at the white bundles that they had carefully laid on the ground beside them. A number of Ants on the outer edge of the crowd scuttled off, as if for dear life, with their white bundles. More stood their ground, glared at Peter. Peter was puzzled. What in the world had he said or done. Their manner toward him had changed in the twinkling of an eye. It had been so friendly. No one would have thought he was indeed an enemy.

"What can the matter be?" asked, Peter, of his companion. "Are your relatives mad or scared?" But before Ant could answer, the fat Queen took command of the situation. This time she spoke directly to the Ant who had brought Peter.

"Well, Busy, what does this mean? What have you to say for your friend now? Do you approve of what he has just said? Is he honest? Can he be trusted? Does he really wish to help us, or is he trying to worm his way into our good graces, that he may harm us? His idea may be good or it may be bad. You brought him here, Busy! You ought to know what his intentions are. Come on, Busy, speak up! We'll take your word for it."

Next: "Busy Passes Judgment."

By MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

Veal Loaf

Potato Chips Tomato Jelly Salad

Whole Wheat Rolls Butter

Sliced Peaches on Vanilla Ice Cream

Iced Tea Cup Cakes

Here is an easy Sunday dinner to prepare. The veal loaf could be made on Saturday and either reheated or served cold on Sunday. If you do not care for potato chips, cook potatoes in their skins on Saturday, then peel, and make a white sauce to cream them in. The menu will serve four.

Today's Recipes

Tomato Jelly Salad—One cup tomato juice, one cup water, one package lemon gelatin. Mix tomato juice and water and bring to the boiling point. Add lemon gelatin and stir until dissolved. Pour into molds to harden. Turn out jelly on lettuce and garnish with mayonnaise.

Suggestions

Meat Loaf

A good standard recipe for meat loaf is capable of many variations. One may use all beef, or half beef and valf veal or fresh pork. Or a little of the beef may be left out and ground salt pork added. The liquid may be water, meat stock, milk or tomato juice. Or one may use the water in which vegetables were cooked for it.

Seasonings are an important ingredient in the meat loaf, for to be tasty it should have a definite flavor. Enough salt, is an absolute necessity. In general one teaspoon to a pound of meat is enough, but more is sometimes added. Pepper, either black, white or cayenne, is used with discretion, while paprika, mace, a dash of allspice, catsup, chili sauce, Worcestershire, etc., used in moderation, will always give a "snap" to the loaf.

Sometimes, to this same standard recipe, we may substitute bread crumbs or cracker crumbs, or one of the packaged cereals.

Some new amusing paper ribbons for wrapping gifts come in a box with a slit, so the ribbon may be pulled out easily. We always have birthday presents or bridge prizes, etc., to wrap, so this new form should prove helpful. Some of the designs are done in gold or silver, as well as colors.

Have you a set of decorative skewers? If not, do get some. They are inexpensive and make food look more appetizing and "French-y." Leftover meats may be served en brochette with mushrooms and bacon rolled in egg and crumbs and browned.

The Basque linens being shown in the shops are most colorful and different. They fit in perfectly for the porch meal, or for a supper on the lawn, or for a breakfast or informal lunch. When using them set the table with plain china and get the full decorative note of the colored cloths.

These warm days are the ideal time to get recipe files up to date. It may be too hot to sew, but clipping recipes and pasting them on cards is just enough occupation to keep one from complaining about the weather.

Dr. Says Meat Eating Is Natural

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The body is made of certain materials, and these materials are constantly being torn down. The animal body differs from any man-made machine in this: that along with doing its work it replaces its worn-out parts.

One of the structures that must be replaced is protein, one is salt and one is water. Yet many diet faddists stress meat, salt and water as things to be avoided in the diet.

Protein, of course, can be obtained from vegetable sources. Beans, peas, nuts, wheat flour, all contain protein that can be utilized by the body. But in spite of all the enthusiastic preachments to the contrary, they are a wasteful form of obtaining protein. Man was designed by nature to be a meat eating animal and he never was built for vegetarian purposes. His intestine is short, while natural vegetable eating animals, such as the horse and cow, have enormously long intestines. His digestive glands are especially designed for digesting meat. And again, despite all the contrary arguments, meat does him no harm.

In fact, it is probable that lack of meat gives rise to several diseases. I know that many vegetarians live healthily on their strict diet, but most of them break over enough to eat eggs and drink milk. And as old Clemenceau, who besides being a statesman was a physician, is reported to have said:

"To be a vegetarian! How silly! When you even drink a glass of water you annihilate a million animals."

How much protein does the body require a day? There has been a great deal of scientific research on this topic, and there is much disagreement even among the best physiologists.

The lowest figure was that proposed by Professor Chittenden of Yale. He worked with a group of volunteers, who were all healthy young male athletes. He reduced the amount of protein they took lower and lower day by day. He found they could live healthily and feel well on 60 grams or about two cunces of protein a day. This included vegetable as well as animal protein. If he got lower than that they began to lose weight and strength. So he concluded that was the amount of tissue loss that occurred daily and had to be replaced.

Other investigators have, however, thought 100 or 150 grams was safer. I agree with them, and believe that over long periods of time this is the safest figure.

In rough amounts this represents an egg, a piece of meat and a glass of milk a day.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening cannot diagnose or give personal answers to letters from readers. Where questions are of general interest, however, they will be taken up, in order, in the daily column. Address your queries to Dr. Logan Clendening, care of this paper. Trust Youngsters To Follow

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Surely if the training they have been giving them for 17 or 18 years doesn't "take," it never will. If correct inhibitions and restraints are not incorporated in that length of time, the case is hopeless and experience will take a strong and much harsher hand than that of said parents to teach them right from wrong.

You can't keep your boy and girl straight by denying them the companionship of young people of their own age. If they can't meet such friends openly where you can oversee the activities, they will do so on the sly—which, you must admit, is far worse for their morals.

You can't make them choose nice friends by constant yammering at them. They—like you at their age—will not always use good judgment in this respect. They may occasionally be fascinated by some undesirable person or persons, but ten to one, the allurement won't last. And the safest way to guard them even then, is to allow such persons to come to your home where they can see what your standards are and unconsciously—or consciously—compare them with their own.

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am a girl 17 years of age. I have been 'held down,' so to speak, all my life. I don't, however, feel hard toward my parents, for I feel that they were right, to some extent.

"But now I feel that I am old enough to judge for myself, as I am rather reserved and considered a 'quiet, sensible girl' by older people.

"My father thinks that I shouldn't be seen with my companions until I have known them for quite awhile. I think I should know a person pretty well after being in college with them for two months and seeing them every day. My parents do not think so.

"My father doesn't want me to have dates at night at all. I know that I can trust a few boys here, as I have known them and they are all right. They have a good reputation in town. Daddy doesn't want me to go with them. I am going away to school in the fall. My parents fear for my selection of friends. I am a Christian girl and like the same kind of friends. How can I make my father trust me? Please advise me what I should do. "Undecided S——"

I hardly know how you can inspire trust in such doubting parents if 17 years of leading an upright life and choosing wise friends don't do it, dear. You would think your parents would know the daughter well enough to KNOW you would choose nice friends and would do nothing wrong. You can only tell them to trust the results of their upright training.

I am glad you are going away to college. Nothing is so broadening to a young person, especially one who has been "held down," even ever so lovingly, as getting out and adjusting oneself to a strange environment.

BROKEN-HEARTED ANNI—BROKEN-HEARTED: If the boy friends "step out on you, the best thing to do is—not to speak to the other girl as you wanted to, Anne—but to "step out" yourself. I know such experiences are heart breaking, but what can one do? You only look ridiculous by going into jealous rages, and while a man may feel a bit flattered that he has such "power over wimmen," he seldom returns to his allegiance because of it. He tries the same stunt with his next girl. Weeping and losing sleep and food never helps, either, so brace up, make up your minds that almost every girl has to go through this experience, and that you will hear it with fortitude, and accept the first attractive date that comes. You may not enjoy it, but at least you can't pine while you are trying to give a boy a good time—as you should do if you accept his date.

Then, by and by, you'll find your broken heart is knitting together, and finally, you'll be surprised to find it as good as new. Don't say I'm wrong, now. Try it.

And, moreover, these tactics are much more likely to bring the boy friend to time.

Beautifying Methods, Improving

By GLADYS GLAD

IT IS SURPRISING to note the rapid strides taken in the advancement of beauty culture within the last ten years. Old methods and instruments are being constantly discarded and newer and more efficient ones substituted.

One of the newest developments in hair-waving machines and one that is being constantly improved upon is the "cool" hair-waving apparatus. It is now used in innumerable beauty shops, and with it has come the "cool face-peel." This process consists of sitting under a cool glow of light for a period of a few minutes for three or four days. And at the end of that time the old, dirty skin is gone.

In the business of electrolysis great advancements are being made. One operator I know of has an invention in needles that will render impossble the failure of electrolysis to remove hair permanently. I have seen these needles do their work, and I have known of cases where the hair has not returned, although years have passed since it was taken out. And the process is painless. One hundred hairs are removed at one sitting. But you'd be surprised at the small area of skin that that covers.

From France, within the last two years, has come a portable hair-waving apparatus. It is small enough to be put into a shoe box. But the charges for the use of this machine are far more exorbitant than the fee charged to have the same work done on the big machines that are installed in all beauty shops.

It is encouraging to know that inventive minds are at work on all the problems of beauty culture; that not all the creative energy is going into the production of new designs for the same old powders creams and lotions. For beauty culture is of as much importance and deservng of as much study as any of the other sciences.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Exercise

H. E. W.: Exercise your arms and legs vigorously every day to prevent fatty tissues from forming. Also, of course, be careful of your diet.

Make-up

E. J. J.: I think that a soft peach shade of powder, soft orange rouge, and light lipstick would blend harmoniously with your coloring. Your present lipstick contains too much pink.

Scars

Peggy, Genevieve M., Mrs. P. E. L. and X. Y. Z.: For effective eradication, scars should be treated in their early stages. Consult a skin specialist about them at once. The only way that I know of in which you can have your nose reshaped is by plastic surgery. The work should be done by an expert, or not at all.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin, for each, to cover cost of printing and mailing. SPORT SNAP SHOTS

Police Chief O. H. Cornwell, commanding officer of Company L, 147th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, rises to the defense of the local guard unit's softball team, which recently withdrew from the American League competition.

A misapprehension appears to exist as to the exact reason for withdrawal of the team, according to Chief Cornwell, who explains the real reason was in protest to the alleged action of the softball commission in ordering one of Company L's games forfeited while the guardsmen were spending two weeks at Camp Perry, O., under government orders.

Cornwell, knowing that the company would be in camp for two weeks and of course unable to play softball during this time, declares he called this situation to the attention of the commission and requested that no game be scheduled for the company during the period of its absence.

Despite this fact the commission scheduled Company L for a game during its stay at Camp Perry and when it was not played declared it forfeited, the company commandant claims.

Anyway this is the explanation of the chief and he is sticking to it. He declared he wished to air the company's side of the question to clear up the existing misunderstanding that the team withdrew because its members had lost interest, having failed to win a game all season.

Possibly the softball commission has a different explanation of the forfeiture in question or perhaps it was just a general misunderstanding all around.

The Graham Paints softball team has been severely jolted by the loss of two of its best players, namely, Ernest Milburn, outfielder and catcher, and Roy Muterspaw, infielder, who are working in Cincinnati and will no longer be available to the team this season.

Milburn for a time led the National League in batting and last averages showed him with a mark of .405, giving him sixteenth place in the list of hitters. Muterspaw has also been one of the team's best hitters with an average of .392.

Geyers was also hard hit when N. Murrell, of the Murrell brother act, was transferred by the railroad to Cincinnati. Murrell, center fielder, had been one of the Geyer mainstays all season, both at bat and in the field. An uncommonly good fly-chaser, he was batting at a .425 clip for the team. His brother, Dick, is still with the team, however, doing back-stopping duty as Boxie's battery mate.

We are sorry to report that this column has no team. That new Humpty-Dumpty miniature golf course of Arthur Hornick's on Dayton Hill back of Ed Lampert's greenhouse opens Thursday night and is a beauty. Par for the eighteen holes has been fixed at forty-eight strokes and the holes are farther apart, indicating it will be more sporty and harder to get around in par figures. This will be Xenia's fifth baby links if you count the one on which the "N. Galloway St. Gang" is working.

CARROLL - BINDERS LOSE TO CRITERION IN NATIONAL LOOP

The Criterion softball team, occupying last place in the National League, had a good game in its system Wednesday night and registered its third victory in thirteen stars this season by defeating the Carroll-Binder Co. nine, 11 to 8 at Cox Field.

Thirteen may be an unlucky number but the Clothiers were evidently not the least bit superstitious for they proceeded to play a good fielding game in the pinches and snapped out of it with a vicious batting attack. It was not only their thirteenth game but it was also the thirteenth day of the month.

Randall, Carroll-Binder catcher, fractured a bone in his left ankle in the last half of the sixth inning sliding into third base. He had doubled and raced to third on Haller's sacrificial hoist to center field. Following his retirement from the game the Carroll-Binder team, being short-handed, played out the remainder of the game with only eight players.

Jacobs, pitching for the losers, was nicked for fourteen hits while Herman Wells, Criterion hurler, released ten blows. Both pitchers, strangely enough, led their respective teams at bat, Jacobs getting three singles and Wells a double and two singles. D. Finlay also got three hits for the winners.

Carroll-Binder was away to a two-run lead in the first but the Criterion tied it up in the second and then untied it with a run in the third, only to have Carroll-Binder assume the lead again by scoring twice in the last of the third. The Clothiers kept pecking away at Jacobs, scoring twice in the fourth and three times in the fifth. Carroll-Binder added a run in the fifth and three in the seventh but the winners came back with two in the seventh and one in the eighth, then called it a day.

Burk, Criterion thirdsacker, did not make a hit but he played a snappy fielding game.

Krippendorf and Ki-Ro are scheduled to meet Thursday night, weather permitting. Lineups:

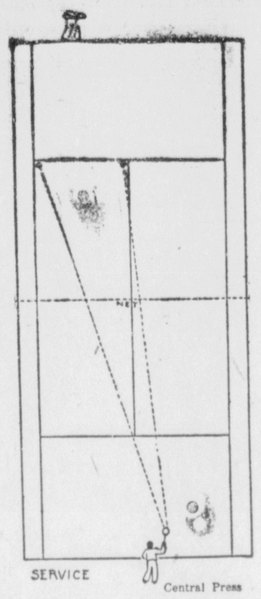
Tennis

HOW IT IS PLAYED



By WILLARD CROCKER
No. 12—SERVICE

Service is the third stroke to learn for the tennis equipment. The forehand and backhand drive must be mastered first. Service begins each point and is the base upon which ground strokes are made. All tennis technique and strategy is carried out by means of the drives. Make your service the first step to your drive. Never consider it as a separate play in itself.

Make both first and second service as consistently the same as possible. Never play the first one very hard, thereby taking risks of a fault and follow it with a soft ball. Practice always to have them both alike.

The secret of successful service is PLACEMENT. Speed is only accessory to be cultivated for the enhancement of placement. Under no condition make a foot fault. Dig up the rule right now and learn it by heart.

Take your position about a foot back of the base line and you will never go wrong. Study placement of service thoroughly by your own experimenting.

Make your mind up definitely where you are going to place your serve before you you up to position.

In practicing or experimenting, learn two places first. 1. Stand toward the middle of the baseline and serve straight down the center lines as near as possible to the corner of your opponent's service court. 2. Standing in same position for service, place the ball into the sideline corner of your opponent's court.

Mix these two up trying to outguess your opponent. Study how he returns each of these placements. Build the remainder of your service attack on this foundation always sacrificing speed to accuracy.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Dullness and irregularity ruled in the stock market today. While a number of the speculative favorites made further recoveries from the early slumps, renewed selling in other sections of the market forced prices steadily lower. Transactions up to the noon period totalled only 662,000 shares, or about 50 per cent as many as in the same period yesterday.

A 5-point dip in Republic Iron and Steel to 32 3-4, the lowest price in three years, reflected the market's uncertainty over the dividend. Industrial Alcohol was weak for the same cause, the stock settling down to a new low price at 59. Standard Oil of New Jersey, above 70, was the outstanding strong spot in the industrials, though United States Steel was in good form most of the day, with good demand around 160.

The industrial and business news of the day was unchanged, and not sufficient to show any new trend in important trade lines. Wall St. believes that the drought damage reports have painted too drab a picture of the agricultural districts and that in the end the loss and damage will be far under present etsimates. For that reason the big bears have maintained a hands-off policy, and short selling has been in small volume in the last few days.

Poems that Live

TO A LITTLE GIRL

HER eyes are like forget-me-nots,
So loving, kind and true;
Her lips are like a pink sea-shell
Just as the sun shines through;
Her hair is like the waving grain
In summer's golden light;
And, best of all, her little soul
Is, like a lily, white.

Joyous Foot Bath Then Lift Out CORNS

Root and All; Out to Stay!

Two tablespoonfuls of that amazingly refreshing cool foot invigorating Radox to one gallon of water makes a footbath which after 3 to 4 night's soaking lifts out aching, maddening corns, callouses, too—root and all.

Radox softens the hard outer layers of corn—and oxygen which Radox liberates, enters the pores, each night penetrating further and further, carrying the salts right to root of corn which can be lifted out bodily.

Wonderful to take out pain and burning and refresh tired feet!

Get a package of Radox at Sayre's Drug Store or any drug-store and know the joyous comfort of corn and callous free feet—Radox is the modern, scientific method to remove corns which completely eliminates old fashioned plasters, dangerous cutting, skin destroying acids and obsolete methods. —Adv.

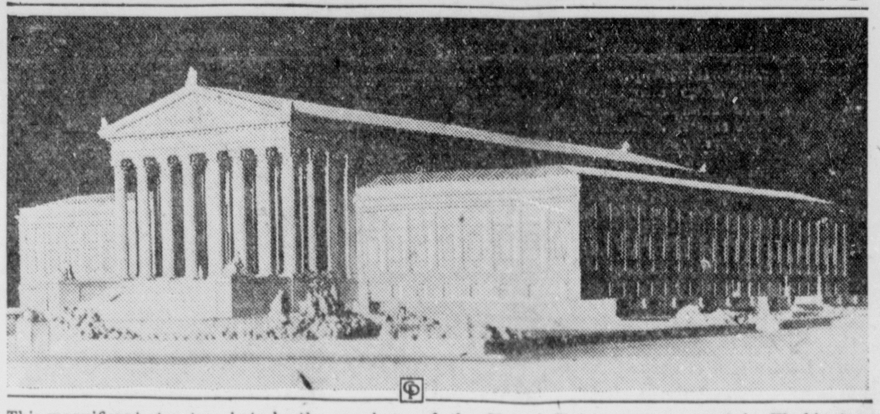
CHOOSE DESIGN FOR NEW SUPREME COURT BUILDING



This magnificent structure is to be the new home of the United States supreme court in Washington. The design is the work of Cass Gilbert, architect, and construction is to begin within three months. Three years will be necessary to complete the building, which will cost $9,740,000, exclusive of furnishings. It is of classic style and will be set in the form of a quadrangle, the stately Corinthian facade harmonizing with the senate wing of the capitol which it faces.

Death Breaks This Family Circle

AT END OF HAWKS' RECORD FLIGHT

Capt. Frank M. Hawks being greeted by his parents in Los Angeles, Cal., immediately after he completed his record trans-continental flight in 14 hours, 50 minutes and 43 seconds. Starting from New York, Hawks made six refueling stops and averaged 179 miles an hour. It was the first full daylight Atlantic to Pacific flight ever accomplished. Hawks planned to try for a West-East cross-country record as soon as his plane could be put into shape.

Mrs. Ana May Martin, with her son, Sidney, 18 months, of Landover, Md., while she was digging a well in her home in order to supply her small family with water. The long dought has dried up her normal supply to such an extent that she must dig fifteen feet into the ground for water.

RECORD VOTE CAST AT PRIMARY HERE

Election board officials, commencing Thursday morning the task of making the official compilation of the vote cast at Tuesday's primary election in Greene County, announced the total vote recorded was 6,941, exceeding the August primary in 1928 by 842 votes.

In Tuesday's primary 6,397 Republican and 544 Democratic ballots were cast as compared with 5,611 Republican and 488 Democratic ballots in 1928.

EIGHT ESCAPE COUNTY JAIL

LEWISBURG, W. Va., Aug. 14.—Eight prisoners, one of them a murderer sentenced to be hanged November 14, escaped from the Greenbrier county jail here early today.

Descriptions of the missing men were flashed throughout the tri-state district by Greenbrier County authorities and an intensive manhunt was begun in an effort to round-up the prisoners.

Roosevelt Darnell, convicted of slaying Clarence Hobrook and sentenced to be hanged November 14, was believed to have been the leader of the escape.

Poems that Live

TO A LITTLE GIRL

HER eyes are like forget-me-nots,
So loving, kind and true;
Her lips are like a pink sea-shell
Just as the sun shines through;
Her hair is like the waving grain
In summer's golden light;
And, best of all, her little soul
Is, like a lily, white.

CORNS

Root and All;Out to Stay!

Two tablespoonfuls of that amazingly refreshing cool foot invigorating Radox to one gallon of water makes a footbath which after 3 to 4 night's soaking lifts out aching, maddening corns, callouses, too—root and all.

Radox softens the hard outer layers of corn—and oxygen which Radox liberates, enters the pores, each night penetrating further and further, carrying the salts right to root of corn which can be lifted out bodily.

Wonderful to take out pain and burning and refresh tired feet!

"MA" FERGUSON AGAIN SEEKING OFFICE OF GOVERNOR IN TEXAS

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 14.—Mrs. Miriam A. "Ma" Ferguson, one-time governor of Texas, is but a step away from possessing that distinction again. Now that she is, anxious political leaders are rallying their forces to defeat her next move. They hope to crush her permanently.

Through a dozen years or more Ferguson has been to a large number of this state's Democratic party leaders what a red flag is to a bull. These leaders have been joined by a majority of the press. Yet, in spite of those facts, Mrs. Ferguson and her husband, James E. have each held the state's highest office.

Winning over a field of ten other candidates in Texas primary election on July 26, with a majority of more than 50,000 votes over her nearest rival, "Ma" has but to repeat her victory in the run-off election on August 23. There she will oppose Ross Sterling, Houston publisher and the second best candidate in the primary.

And there, also, will probably be the hardest battle she and the stalwart "Jim" ever fought. For against them will be arrayed virtually the entire forces of the candidates she defeated in the primary, not to speak of Governor Dan Moody, who "saved Texas from Fergusonism" by defeating "Ma."

How tautly the anti-Ferguson lines are drawn is indicated in a statement from the blond young Moody, who declared that "this state will not again be shamed at home and ridiculed abroad" through having a Ferguson at its helm, and a declaration on the part of more than one defeated gubernatorial candidate that he will throw his entire strength toward Ross Sterling.

The remarkable thing about the Fergusons is that they are faced with tremendous odds on every hand, but somehow or other old "Jim," the small-town business man has a way of overcoming odds. Never before, however, are they believed to have faced such united opposition as that which they now will meet. The fight will be an interesting one.

"Jim" first came into prominence some fifteen years ago when, an unknown, he announced for governor and, remarkably enough, was swept into office. In 1917 he was impeached.

Returning to the fray on another quarter, he was the force which resulted in Mrs. Ferguson being elected governor in 1924. A "proxy government," young Dan Moody contemptuously called it in his campaign against Fergusoniasm two years later.

Moody won after a bitter fight, his victory the result of a stern "anti-Ferguson, anti-corruption" platform. Not entering the race himself this year, he is nevertheless aligned against his old foes, and as bitterly as ever.

With such odds against them, the Fergusons are not slated to win the coming run-off, but with the astute, redoubtable "Jim" at the helm of the steam roller which flaunts his banner, predictions are futile. You can never tell about the Fergusons.

HEALTH BETTER THAN IN YEARS THANKS KONJOLA

Happy Lady Finds Health After Long Search—Gives All Credit To New Medicine

"I suffered for many years with stomach trouble," said Mrs. E. L. Cohee, West Alexandria, Ohio, near Dayton. "I underwent eight operations in as many years and was in a badly run-down condition. Gas formed after meals and I bloated until I became short of breath.

MRS. E. L. COHEE

I had little or no appetite and such food as I ate caused misery. My work was a burden and no medicine I tried did me the least bit of good.

"In desperation, I turned to Konjola and this medicine lost no time in getting to the source of my trouble. After completing the Konjola treatment, my stomach troubles are over. No gas forms in my stomach after meals and I do not bloat nor become short of breath. I sleep well and am in better health than I have been in years. All this is due to this wonderful compound, Konjola."

Designed to afford lasting relief from ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness, Konjola continues to be the most talked-of medicine in America.

Konjola is a new and different medicine of 32 ingredients, 22 of them the juices of roots and herbs long known for their medicinal value. Konjola works quickly and thoroughly at the very root, the fount of the ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Konjola is not designed to give mere temporary relief, but to bring new, glorious and lasting health.

FREIGHT RATES FOR DROUGHT AREAS ARE EFFECTIVE HERE

Greene County is included in a list of counties in Ohio and other Mid-western states where emergency freight rates approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission as a step to relieve the drought situation which has affected farm communities seriously, are to be applicable.

The Ohio Public Utilities Commission has issued a blanket order permitting all railroads to make voluntary reductions in freight rates on agricultural products, particularly feed and live stock, but such reductions will not be subject to the usual regulations and will be allowed to stand until October 31.

There are thirty-nine counties in the Ohio list announced by Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of agriculture. In these, Secretary Hyde said, the 50 per cent reduction in freight rates applies to live stock shipped out of the drought areas for feeding purposes, but not to shipments of cattle to market.

MAY HEAR REPORT ON POWER VALUATION

Report on the approximate valuation of its distribution system within the corporation limits of Xenia may be submitted by the Dayton Power and Light Co. to City Commission at the bi-monthly commission meeting Thursday night.

The commission may also give consideration to the question of an appointment of a successor to the late Commissioner E. E. Lighthiser. Fifty-eight applications have been received from persons who desire to be appointed to fill the vacancy.

Gridder Files Suit

How much is a football and baseball career worth? At least $10,000 thinks Walter Opekun of Jessup, Pa., two years ago regarded as a bright prospect for the University of Pennsylvania football team. Opekun has filed suit for that amount in damages in Scranton, Pa., against Louis Weiss, also of Jessup, alleging that injuries he sustained while riding with Weiss in his auto in 1928 ended his prospects as a great athlete.

Pleasure Bound from Prohibition's Ban

One of the lively scenes which is said to have characterized the recent "wet cruise to nowhere" of the S. S. California. Some of the passengers are shown livening the ship's costume ball with calls at the ship's bar. Note that there is a liberal supply of wet goods on hand. The list included 1,520 quarts of wine, 1,020 pints of wine, 220 quarts of liqueurs, 30 pints of liqueurs, 993 bottles of beer and ten kegs of beer.

BLAME DROUGHT FOR FLOODED MARKETS

CLEVELAND, Aug. 14.—Drought-stricken areas of Kentucky and southern Ohio are flooding the Cleveland livestock market with unusually large shipments of cattle, lambs and old sows, United States department of agriculture agents here said today.

Although the Cleveland market receives some shipments regularly from these districts, the present influx is heavier than usual, since livestock raisers in the drought-stricken areas are anxious to sell due to their inability to fatten the stock because of lack of feed and water, it was said.

Better grade stock is being forced to higher prices, it was said. Poor grade stock, however, which is being poured into the local market, is acting as a drag.

A la mode

PARIS sets the styles in women's dress for the world. London is the arbiter in matters of dress for men. But, New York and Chicago, Boston and San Francisco and hundreds of smaller cities and towns throughout the United States may know what are the latest styles even before they are shown in Paris.

A seeming paradox, but true. Merchants maintain representatives in Paris, London, Vienna and other European style centers who cable the latest news of the modes, and ship samples long before they are sold abroad. In America, the news is translated into advertisements and printed by local newspapers throughout the United States. And so, American women are able to dress in the latest styles in dress more accurately than the women of any other country on the face of the globe.

Advertising keeps you abreast of the times in other ways. It tells you of the newest and best in every line of merchandise. It keeps you posted on what other people are doing and wearing and using. Read the advertisements. They are truthful and helpful. You can depend on their accuracy, for the reputations of the merchants sponsoring them guarantee their integrity.

President's Son Gets Job in N. J. Plant

ALLAN, PRESIDENT and HERBERT HOOVER, JR.

BAYONNE, N. J., Aug. 14.—This summer will not be any joy-riding sinecure for American college boys if they follow the example set them by Allan Hoover, younger son of the President of the United States.

Instead of taking a pleasure jaunt to Europe or spending the torrid months playing golf in some exclusive vacation resort, young Hoover, who just completed his first year in the Harvard Graduate School for Business Administration, has taken a summer job in the American Radiator Company plant.

This young man, whom any corporation in the country would welcome as an employe in almost any capacity, got his new job without influence and in applying for it asked to be started "at the bottom."

His work, which consists of studying accounts, typing notes, and adding long columns of figures, is the same as would be assigned to any unknown college student who applied at the plant.

Allan's salary is a secret between him and the company. His first day of work was hampered by the rush of newspaper reporters and photographers and also by the interest aroused in him among the feminine employes, but after the first flurry of excitement young Hoover settled down to labor in earnest.

"I got the job myself," he told inquirers proudly, "and I'm not being shown any favors because of my father."

Allan is a good-looking, affable lad, with steady blue eyes that occasionally flash with humor. He said he had no plans for his life work after he completed his post-graduate course at Harvard.

Promptly at 8 o'clock each morning, the Executive's son arrives at his desk in the large offices of the company. At noon he eats his lunch out of a pasteboard box like the other young men and women.

A statement from the company announced the addition of Allan Hoover to the staff. It stated that there was nothing unusual or significant in the appointment, and added, "It runs in his family to become wisely self-supporting as early as possible."

During the summer, Allan will be given a bird's-eye view of the routine working of the entire plant. The first day on the job he was taken for a tour of the factory and shook the oil-greased hands of the workers.

"The President," he said, "made no comment on my choice of employment." But intimates of the President declare he is delighted at the independence and initiative displayed by his son.

FILLING STATION ROBBERS ELUDE POSSE AT JAMESTOWN

Three youths who were reported to have held up and robbed a Pure Oil filling station in Washington C. H. of $46 and a wrist watch early Wednesday night managed to elude a trap set for them at Jamestown, led a posse of half a hundred Jamestown residents and Washington C. H. authorities a merry chase until midnight and finally escaped the dragnet at South Charleston.

After the filling station robbery, the trio stole a Chrysler coupe in that city and headed in the direction of Washington C. H. with police in full pursuit.

John Baughn, village marshal and Dr. R. L. Haines, county coroner, and a large number of citizens arranged to blockade the street through the town and watch both roads leading to the village.

The Chrysler coupe was sighted soon afterward. It contained two of the fugitives with the third in a Ford coupe which was trailing the Chrysler. The trio, realizing the main street was blockaded with machines, turned the two autos around and managed to avoid another group of pursuers coming from the opposite direction by driving through the front yard of a private residence.

Then a long chase ensued with fifteen Jamestown cars and Washington C. H. authorities trying to corner the robber cars. The fugitives drove in and out of many by-roads and in the darkness defied efforts of pursuers to pocket them.

The Chrysler coupe was finally abandoned near South Solon, the two occupants jumping into their companion's Ford, which was able to outdistance every pursuing car. It ran without lights and with the license plates covered. Two officers tried to stop the fugitives at South Charleston and a number of shots were exchanged but the youths were reported to have made their get-away toward London.

FOURTH MINIATURE GOLF COURSE OPENS

Formal opening of Xenia's fourth miniature golf course, the attractive new Humpty-Dumpty eighteen-hole links, installed by Arthur Hornick on property leased from Ed Lampert, florist, in the rear of the Engle Floral Co., 221 Dayton Ave., is scheduled for 6 o'clock Thursday night.

The latest course constructed at a cost said to have been approximately $5,000, is an exact duplicate of a Humpty-Dumpty links located on the Shroyer Road, in Oakwood, suburb of Dayton, which is one of the finest in that city.

Par for the local course has been tentatively fixed at forty-eight strokes and because of the interesting hazards and greater distance between the holes, Mr. Hornick believes it will prove fascinating for Xenians.

CHILD SUCCUMBS TO ILLNESS HERE

George Hazelbaker, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hazelbaker, 31 Trumbull St., died Thursday morning at 8:50 o'clock after a few days' illness. The child had been ill since Sunday, suffering from intestinal grip. The baby was born November 12, 1928.

Besides his parents, George is survived by two brothers, Charles and Robert and a sister, Effie, all at home. Funeral services will be held at Whitmer's funeral parlors Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock with burial in Woodland Cemetery.

Relief From Curse Of Constipation

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

THE FUTURE MRS. MENCKEN

MISS SARA POWELL HAARDT

H. L. MENCKEN

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 14.—Henry L. Mencken, 50, militant bachelor, who avers that "church weddings, in fact most weddings, are primitive orgies in the worst state," says with a laugh that he will have a wedding Wednesday, Sept. 3, that "will be very refined." He and Miss Sara Powell Haardt, 30, writer whom he is to wed, are undecided on the clergyman.

Apparently Mencken is as happy as anybody else would be at the prospect of marriage.

That the ceremony of the noted critic and editor to his writer-fiancee will be without frills is conceded. "Being married," comments Mencken, "with all one's friends about you, is as private and discriminating as eating in the window of a restaurant."

The Bride-to-Be

The announcement of the engagement was made by Mrs. John Anton Haardt, Miss Haardt's mother, of Montgomery, Ala., former home of Miss Haardt, and where she was visiting at the time of the announcement.

The engagement announcement was simultaneous with word that Miss Haardt's first novel, "The Making of a Lady," would soon appear.

Miss Haardt first came to Baltimore in 1916, after finishing a course at Margaret Booth School in Montgomery. She was graduated in 1920 from Goucher college, receiving the Phi Beta Kappa key for the excellence of her scholastic work.

In 1921 Miss Haardt returned to Baltimore for three years of postgraduate work at the Johns Hopkins university.

Began Writing

Due to serious illness, Miss Haardt was unable to present herself as a candidate for a Ph. D. degree. She returned to Montgomery, remaining there for a year and a half. It was during this period that she began writing. Virtually her first articles went to the Baltimore Evening Sun, of which Mencken was an editor.

Returning to Baltimore in 1926, Miss Haardt made writing her profession. She became a regular contributor to "highbrow" magazines. In addition, she was the author of the "Jelly-Bean" stories known chiefly by college students.

H. L. Mencken, who will reach the half-century mark on September 12, was born in the house at 1524 Hollins St. opposite Union Square, Baltimore, in which he still lives. He is the son of the late August and Anna (Abau) Mencken.

Mencken's Career

After being graduated from the Baltimore Polytechnic Institute, he became a reporter on the old Baltimore Herald at 19. He advanced successively to city editor and editor.

In 1906, Mencken, at 26, joined the staff of the Baltimore Sun. Then, when the Evening Sun was founded in 1910, he associated himself with the late John Haslup Adams, its first editor. Whereupon Mencken began his column "The Free Lance." Mencken still is contributing editor of the Evening Sun.

"His first literary effort was a book of poems, 'Ventures Into Verse,' published in 1903 in Baltimore and now a collector's tidbit. In those days the youthful Mencken was a great admirer of Rudyard Kipling, and the verse in the thin little book clearly shows the source of its inspiration.

"Two years later he wrote 'George Bernard Shaw: His Plays' a book which did for the Irish dramatist exactly what Shaw had sought to do for Ibsen in his "Quintessence of Ibsenism.' This book and 'The Philosophy of Friedrich Nietzsche,' which followed in 1908 gave him a standing among the rising literary folk of the time and the magazines began to seek contributions from him.

"In 1908 he began his work as literary critic for the old Smart Set and found therein the field on which he fought the battles which ultimately changed the whole trend of American literature. Here, too, he began the association with George Jan Nathan, dramatic critic, which culminated, in 1924, in the establishment of the American Mercury under their joint editorship.

TO IMPROVE ROADS

An appropriation of $16,000 to finance improvement of a county road extending from New Burlington to Lumberton, a distance of ten miles, was voted Tuesday by Clinton County commissioners. This makes a total of $150,000 appropriated during the last two weeks to speed up road work to give employment to drought-stricken farmers in that county.

MRS. W. D. SIEGEL CALLED BY DEATH

Word has been received in Xenia of the death of Mrs. W. D. Siegel, formerly of this city, which occurred at her home in Cincinnati early Wednesday morning. Complication of diseases was the cause of death. The Siegel family formerly resided in Xenia at 434 S. Detroit St., but moved from here to Cincinnati six years ago at which time Mr. Siegel was transferred on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Mrs. Siegel is survived by her husband and two daughters, of Cincinnati. Funeral services will be held at the home in Cincinnati Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Will Bells Peal for Don Luis and Aged Princess?

The latest is that elderly blue-bloods are not to be permitted to marry whom they please. That was bad enough in the era when thrones were involved but now that dukes and princes have been divested of their rightful or wrongful domains, it seems that the least people can do is to allow these ex-wearers of ermine to embark on whatever matrimonial adventures they choose to hazard.

The latest royal marriage plans to be held up are those of Prince Luis de Bourbon, cousin to King Alfonso of Spain and Princess Amede de Broglie, member of one of the most aristocratic families of France.

Objection to the match has been made by the family of the blushing bride-to-be, who declare that a seventy-four-year-old grandmother is too old to marry, particularly when the claimant to her hand is only forty-one and known as one of the gayest playboys in Western Europe.

The Prince's family can also be said to be none too enthusiastic about the proposed match. The Infanta Eulalie, his mother, commented timely: "It is all so ridiculous. Why, she is older than I am, and I can only say I am sorry for her children and grandchildren."

However, the entire matter is to be threshed out in the Tribunal of the Seine. That celebrated high French court will decide whether the mariage is legally possible. Amedee's protesting family will be represented in court by her nephew, the Duc de Brissac.

This is not the first time that Prince Don Luis' romances have been aired in the newspapers. About a year ago, he was reported engaged to marry Mabelle Gilman Corey, wealthy former wife of William E. Corey, the Pittsburgh millionaire.

This romance was wrecked when the rich Mrs. Gilman announced that she had broken off with her Spanish gandee because of a dispute about the amount to be settled upon him before the wedding day.

In the prince's past life there have been other very unsavory episodes. In Paris, the boulevardiers call him the "black sheep" of Spanish royalty.

However, there are members of royalty who look with favor upon the curious match. For instance, there is the Princess Catherine Radziwell, who declares that the Princess Amedee should be lauded for wanting to marry at an advanced age and that modern women who refuse to grow old are entitled to their romance.

Incidentally, Princess Amedee is fabulously rich, While Prince Luis is said to be poverty-stricken. It is for the Tribunal of the Seine to decide the interesting question of just when a woman is too old to marry and whether the fact that she is a grandmother has any bearing on her matrimonial eligibility.

NATURALIST DIES

ASHTABULA, O., Aug. 14.—Dr. F. D. Snyder, 62, nationally known naturalist and a fellow of the Royal Geographic Society of London, is dead here today following an apoplectic stroke yesterday.

CRESWELL IS ALSO VICTOR FOR SHORT TERM NOMINATION

Paul H. Creswell, who won the Republican nomination for both the long and short term as county auditor at Tuesday's primary, received 717 votes for the short term although he had withdrawn his name from the ballot for the short term in order to avoid confusion which he had anticipated might arise from having his name printed on the ticket twice.

Instead he mailed post cards last Monday, the day before the election, to 1,000 of the 1,300 persons who had signed his nominating petition, inviting them to write his name in on the ballot for the short term as county auditor. His opponent, George Eckerle, was not a candidate for the short term nomination.

The post cards, he disclosed, were about 72 per cent effective, as he received 717 out of a possible 1,000 votes for the short term.

In order to obtain the short term nomination it was necessary to receive 8 per cent of the total Republican vote cast at the primary.

CHILDREN ATTEND CLINIC THURSDAY

A joint tonsilectomy clinic, under the auspices of the Federated Paren-Teachers Association and Greene County Chapter, American Red Cross, was held Thursday morning at the offices of Drs. Madden and Shields, this city. Six children from Xenia were operated upon under the direction of the P.-T. A. and nine cases were under the Red Cross. Two of the Red Cross cases were from Cedarville, one from Fairfield and six from Xenia.

Those assisting Drs. Madden and Shields were Dr. Marshall Best, Dr. W. T. Ungard, Miss Mary Smith, city health nurse; Miss Velma Smith, Mrs. William Keller, Miss Harriet Keller and Miss Nelle Weaver.

SPLASH! She Swims to Conquer

By Eleanore Burnett

Copyright, 1930, by Central Press Association, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST:

Kitty Wilmot, secretary to Ellery Goss, assists Gordon Platt, Goss' confidential man, in running down a "leak" in the offices; Atlee, Goss' chief clerk, makes violent love to Kitty, who flees to her friend Sally Ayers. After meeting Boss Kelliher at a party given by Hilda, blond 'phone operator, at Platt's request she gets to know Hattie Bridges, another of Goss' secretaries, at whose house she discovers an apparent connection between Sally Ayers, Bridges and the stock market, through Hattie's nephew. But he turns out to be Joe Fortune, of whom Kitty has heard, long in love with Sally! Kitty reproaches herself with too much imagination. Listing all possible suspects of the leaks, she determines to be active, not passive in the work for Platt. At midnight she is asked to the telephone; she indignantly refuses on hearing that it is Kelliher who wants her.

She spends Sunday afternoon at the natatorium with Atlee, as the safest place to hear his explanations. He first tells her he loves her, and finally, asks her to marry him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 18

There is nothing romantic about a proposal on the street on a bright Sunday afternoon! Especially is it unromantic when the lover looks as miserable as a wet cat and is evidently proposing under some other emotion.

After a moment of great surprise, Kitty laughed. It was too unreal to take seriously. His declaration of love this afternoon had sounded partly real. But this proposal, coming at the last moment, after she had just indicated her desire not to see him again, was theatrical, farcical—it did not ring true.

"Let's go upstairs and tell Baby that!" She knew this was unkind, but she began to lose patience. Atlee stared for a moment, then lifted his hat and turned away. "You tell her!" he said.

Kitty knit her brows. It was all very strange. But as she watched him stride down the street, resolutions hardened in her; something was queer here! Something moved below the surface that she couldn't see. "I will tell her!" she thought, and mounted the two flights to Sally's and Baby's little home.

Sally was peeling potatoes for supper, Baby reading a magazine. Characteristic occupations. Kitty thoughts; Sally all housewife, homemaker, loving and caring for her sister; Baby selfishly enjoying herself while her sister worked. Kitty saw much that was likeable in Baby, but she did not wholly trust her. She loved Sally and knew that Baby worried her sister, although not exactly why Sally was worried.

"Sally, dear, I've just had an experience!" began Kitty, after greeting her friends. "Don't go, Baby, I want you to hear this, too. I kept my promise to you and saw Atlee. I've just finished listening to him."

"Well?" demanded Baby. "He explained it, didn't he?"

"So he did," agreed Kitty, watching Baby narrowly. "But the surprising part is that he told me he loved me and asked me to marry him."

Baby did not change color. There was no suggestion of hysterics. Kitty fancied Baby's eyes gleamed a darker blue for a moment.

"And you said—?" she asked.

"I haven't said!" answered Kitty. "I didn't give him an answer."

"How very exciting!" cried Sally. "Are you going to marry him, Kitty, dear?" The big girl put an arm around her. "I've known Atlee for some time—I think he's a fine chap, and—and—" She didn't finish.

"What would you do, Baby?" inquired Kitty.

"I told him you wouldn't—that is, I told him you wouldn't hold it against him," Baby was suddenly embarrassed. In a lightning flash of partial understanding, Kitty thought Baby knew Atlee was going to ask her to marry him! Why should Atlee tell Baby before he told her?

"Are you sure he is free?" went on Baby deliberately.

"I asked him if you were anything to him; he said you were not except a good friend!"

Kitty rather expected this to be a bombshell, and to produce an explosion. Before, Baby had had hysterics at the very mention of marriage between her and Atlee. Now Baby only laughed.

"Quite right, Kit!" she answered. "Marry him if you want him—"

"I don't!" answered Kitty, teased into the declaration she had not expected to make.

"Oh, I knew that!" answered Baby. "Sally, when do we eat?"

Sally, looking from Kitty to Baby and Baby to Kitty did not answer.

"Why Baby!" she gasped. "I thought—you and Atlee—you said—I don't understand—"

"Oh, that's all over! I did have a crush on him—but no more!" The small girl retrived her magazine from the floor and waved it airily. "Let's talk of something more interesting!"

She buried her nose in the book. Kitty saw her small hands gripped it with force; Baby was evidently making a great effort not to show that they trembled. Much as she wished to believe in her, Kitty was miserably conscious that she was the outsider at a mystery play; that Atlee and Baby had some sort of an understanding from which she was excluded.

It was a difficult afternoon. Baby said little; Sally was reserved and anxious. She smiled only once when Kitty told her she had met Joe Fortune. "There's a real man!" Kitty made her voice enthusiastic. "Sally, why don't you take him?"

"Oh, I don't know—I'm so tall and he isn't—"

"Good goods come in small packages!" smiled Kitty.

Kitty left after supper with the conviction that she had accomplished nothing. Whatever Baby and Atlee had between them, whatever they had desired to do by a secret understanding, was accomplished.

The net result is that Atlee has apologized and asked me to marry him. Baby knew about it before and was on her guard; I know nothing of the secret causes of their queer behavior. Sally is bothered about her. Oh, dear, why is life so difficult?

She walked to her home, if puzzled and depressed, with no let up in her determination to take an active, rather than a passive part in Gordon Platt's hunt for the sources of the office leak. She tried to be fair, to tell herself that Baby's and Atlee's queer action and words must not prejudice her. It was impossible either had anything to do with it. "Just because people act queer with me is no sign they are thieves!" she stormed at herself. "Be sensible! He's evidently just ordinarily prosperous. He spends no great amount of money—"

She stopped in the middle of the street. "How do I know that?" she demanded of herself. "I don't even know where he lives. I don't know how he spends his time. He evidently knows wealthy people—the Kellihers must have huge amounts of money. Atlee spent it like water that evening. He said he had resources outside his salary. Maybe that's a good place to start; find out where he lives and what he does with himself when he isn't acting with me, or spending an evening with the Ayers'—"

She walked on, busy in her thoughts. A man drew abreast of her. She paid no attention. He did not pass her, but he walked by her side. Suddenly conscious that this must be from design, Kitty looked up. Staring down at her were the well marked and remembered features of Boss Kelliher!

"Good afternoon!" he said. "This is an unexpected pleasure!"

"Yes? It's a lovely afternoon." Kitty was non-committal. She had not forgotten she had eluded this man's escort from Hilda's by craft or that he had called her at midnight with no right to do so.

"Sorry you couldn't talk to me last night!" He took her arm. Kitty removed it from his hand, not rudely, but decidedly. "I prefer to walk alone!" she stated, and didn't care how he took it.

"I had something important to say to you," he went on.

"I cannot imagine anything important you could have to say to me!" Kitty was distinctly annoyed. The man was too possessive.

"That's good!" he laughed. "I like a girl without too much imagination. However, it really is important. Otherwise I wouldn't have called you at midnight. How was I to know you kept such early hours? Most girls are out after midnight on Saturday—"

"So you thought you'd call me up while I was out?" Kitty laughed.

"Just taking a chance!" he was quite cool. "Well, will you ask me to your home, or will you come to mine, or shall we go into the park to talk?"

"None of them!" answered Kitty.

"Oh, come now, sister!" reproached Boss Kelliher. "Don't treat me like an orphan child, and me trying to do you a favor. "I just want to show you a piece of paper and ask you one question."

Kitty considered, rapidly. Was this part of the mystery? Or was it—something else? She looked up at him; there was nothing inimical in his face; a quizzical little smile, rather a friendly smile, she thought, on his lips.

"I'll sit with you for five minutes in the park!" she agreed. They walked in silence to a bench. Babies played within a few yards. A policeman strutted a swinging baton; men and women walked on the paths enjoying the fine afternoon. New York was taking its ease on a Sunday—

Kelliher produced his pocketbook and from it took something which he laid in her lap.

"Will you come to work for me?" asked Boss Kelliher, softly. "For one of these every month?"

Kitty looked at it in stupified amazement.

It was a $1000 bill!

Practising for Novel British Contest

TO PAINT ANCIENT CIVILIZATION

A unique pioneering expedition into the unexplored regions of Central America, having as its object the making of mural paintings of the ancient Aztec and Mayan civilizations, will be launched shortly by Warren Chase Merritt, California artist, and his wife, known professionally as Aline Kistler. They will enter the jungles in the spring and push their way southward for a year or more until their work is completed. Photo shows them returning to Los Angeles after a preliminary survey and plan-laying trip.

BRINGING UP FATHER — By GEORGE McMANUS

The Theater

Hollywood is reported to be still gasping over the announcement that Mary Pickford, "America's sweetheart" during silent photoplay years and still regarded as one of the most appealing figures in filmdom, will desert the talkies for the legitimate stage.

Years ago little Gladys Smith began a career as an actress on the legitimate stage, but when the motion picture was in its infancy, her talent was drawn in that direction and she became Mary Pickford of the films.

Now, after a long span of years in which her name has glistened near the top of movie success, she is deserting the cinema to return to the medium with which she got her start. And amazed Hollywood gossips over the back fence about this strange thing that has happened to it.

"A few months' stage appearance will be excellent experience and training for my later work in talking pictures," says Miss Pickford, who evidently feels that she is going to go on forever.

When the talkies came into being higher salaries and better hours drew much of the cream of stage talent to the screen. Now, it would appear, this tide of stars is reversing itself. Other film stars of unimpeachable luminosity are declaring themselves for the footlights, including Vilma Banky, blonde star and her dark-haired husband, Rod La Roque, Lya De Putti, the exotic Viennese and Colleen Moore, sprightly film flapper. Hollywood takes comfort in the statement of Douglas Fairbanks that he will not consider stage offers.

Heeding the call of the open spaces, Charles Rogers, whom Paramount has decreed may no longer be called "Buddy," will go Western in his next talking picture.

Herman Manckiewecz, erstwhile New York reviewer and now scenarist, is writing a story for Charles about a dude ranch and Paramount may send the company on location to Gary Cooper's place in Montana. Charles is now making a film with the impossible name of "Molinoff," whatever that means, and Frances Dee, the pretty newcomer, is playing opposite him. Frances is the girl who had the argument with the studio about her film name. She liked her own, Dee; the studio wanted to change it to Deane. So they compromised and it is Dee.

Despite her success in the movies, Lillian Roth yearns to get back to vaudeville. She says that upon the completion of her current talkie, Broadway will see her again in an act at the Palace. After that she'll play several other theaters.

BAREFOOT BOY HAD NOTHING ON MODERN MAIDS

By FRANK J. CIPRIANI
Central Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—The old-fashioned barefoot boy who wended his way to school in overalls and a coat of tan hasn't anything on the modern maiden of the classroom.

In fact, the modern maiden hasn't so much of anything on—an abbreviated suit seeming to do very well.

At least this is the rule in one classroom of a technical high school here where the dimpled darlings find conventional clothing too burdensome in hot weather. So, with conventional feminine disregard for convention the girls have set their own style, and now attend class in rompers.

Most of the girls wear short socks to match their rompers—or no socks at all. Sitting in a group they resemble French dolls. Marching out during recess, they seem not unlike a proud Follies chorus.

The only hardship of the new style is on the male instrutcors, because it strains their eyes. That is, the colors strain their eyes, for the girls wear vivid rompers whose hues and tints would tax an artist's palette.

When the first hot wave hit Chicago, a committee of the girls studying English appealed to Principal Grant Beebe and Henry Mendelsohn, English instructor, for permission to dress according to the weather.

The girls were. They came in rompers, which weren't so much as clothes go these days but a concession after all. They might have tried swimming suits. The rompers were aproved by the principal, and within a week most of the girls appeared in class in the new style.

Comfort First

Principal Beebe believe in physical comfort in classes. No student, girl or boy, he holds, can do his or her best mentally when uncomfortable And so he stands out today as an educator far from prudish, far from Puritanical. Not that he isn't conventional. He's simply practical.

A century ago girls appearing in public in such scant costume would have been ostracized. Before that they might have been put in stocks and lettered by censorial Puritans.

But the girl of today does things her mother didn't, and the mother of today probably is kicking herself because she didn't do the things her daughter does.

Manned by her tested crew of forty-four men commanded by Squadron Leader R. S. Booth, hopes remained high at the start of the hazardous 3,400-mile journey that a record return trip to Cardington would be achieved. The officers even promising to "bring her back to Canada as soon as the snow clears next spring."

With favorable tailwinds prevailing over the course, the officers expected to moor at Cardington sometime Saturday morning, or after a flight of approximately forty-eight hours. She headed straight for the St. Lawrence Valley after circling the city and airfield, soaring over Quebec shortly before midnight.

Commander Booth planned to leave the North American shore at Cape Race and today expected to be over open water where winds are steady and vertical gusts few.

Ideal weather conditions were promised by weather officials before departure. Southerly seven-mile breeze was blowing but this it was said would shift later to a tail wind which would help carry the dirigible eastward until she was at least half way across the Atlantic. The officers planned to use only five of her six Rolls-Royce engines.

Provided the dirigible reaches England under fifty hours she would be more than six hours under the record time made in any crossing of the Graf Zeppelin. Wing Commander R. B. B. Colmore denied, however, that there was any direct intention of establishing a new crossing mark.

The British government forbade the airship to carry freight or paying passengers, although she is capable of lifting fifty-six tons, approximately the weight of the average locomotive. Mail packages amounting in revenue to $500,000 were available if wanted. It was learned.

The dirigible arrived in Canada Aug. 1 after a three-day flight across the Atlantic. Two hundred miles from her destination she encountered terrific squalls and vertical currents which tossed her up and down in the air like a toy balloon, springing a bad tear in the fabric of her port stabilizer fin.

She remained here for thirteen days, making a short flight to Ottawa and Toronto after repairs were concluded on her torn fin. Approximately 16,000 persons were taken up to visit the ship by the mooring mast's elevator.

homa. In 1928, Hoover carried the state by 394,000 to 219,000 for Smith but that was an exceptional campaign. On the other hand, Davis won the state in 1924 by 255,000 to 226,000 for Coolidge while Senator Elmer Thomas, Democrat, was elected in 1926 by 195,312 to 159,287 for his Republican opponent, the then incumbent Senator Harreld. On the strength of the primary turnout, Gore should be a favorite.

In Ohio, it will be difficult to choose a favorite until the campaign gets under way. While Bulkley ran far ahead of his opponents in the senatorial primary, the Democrats at the same time nominated a dry, George D. White, for governor. The drys also pointed out that three dry candidates for the senatorial nomination drew 12,000 to 15,000 more votes than the two wets.

Hopes of a Democratic senatorial victory in Ohio may rest upon getting the voters to the polls next November. The total Democratic vote Tuesday was less than 220,000 an almost negligible vote when compared to the turnouts at general elections. In 1928, for instance, both Fess and Senator Burton, Republicans, gathered total votes exceeding 1,400,000. In 1926, Vic Donahey Democrat, was elected governor with a vote of 702,000 while the late Frank B. Willis was re-elected to the senate the same year with a total vote of 711,000.

The wets, supporting Bulkley, however were enthusiastic. They had won a senatorial nomination in the dry state of Ohio for the first time. They believe he will draw heavily from Republican ranks in the larger cities next November and they feel sentiment in the Buckeye state has changed since 1922 when Ohio voted down a constitutional amendment, legalizing wines and beers by a vote of 908,522 to 719,050.

The Alabama contest between Heflin and Bankhead will be very close if Tuesday's results mean anything. The total vote in the senatorial primary, about 125,000, was about 20 per cent less than the total vote cast for state offices. This apparently indicated many voters obeyed Heflin's injunction not to participate in the primary. On top of this, Heflin can draw heavily from the thousands of Alabama Republicans and Democrats, who joined with him in 1928 in bolting Smith.

The extent of his drawing power can be estimated by the Hoover-Smith vote in Alabama, when the Democratic presidential nominee carried the state by only 7,000 votes. Smith drew 127,797 to Hoover's 120,725. Heflin's followers believe he will get most of the Hoover votes and that many regular Democrats, who voted Tuesday, will remain at home next November. In his last campaign in 1924, Heflin won by 154,560 votes to his Republican opponent's 30,818. His friends feel a much reduced total will give him a victory in November.

The four contests will attract wide attention, not only because of the issues involved but because of the personalities of the men engaged. Norris, veteran insurgent and administration "trouble-maker," Hitchcock, former league of nations leader and friend of Woodrow Wilson; Heflin, the Alabama "wild-cat," the blind Gore, the multimillionaire Pine and the wet and dry nominees in Ohio.
